CALL ON ROOSEVELT, THEN WORK FOR HIM

Ex-Gov. Fort and ex-Senator Colby Go Right Ahead, Expecting His Nomination.

HOPE COLONEL WILL SPEAK

Mr. Fort Urged Him to Give an Assurance That He Wouldn't Withstand a Popular Demand.

After a visit to Col. Roosevelt at the Outlook office yesterday ex-Gov. Franklin Fort of New Jersey gave out the following statement at his law offices in Newark:

"I have had to-day a personal interview with Col. Roosevelt, and have urged upon him that it was his duty to the public to make it known whether, if nominated by the Republican National Convention, he would accept that nomination. I have felt, as many of his friends have for a long time, that he was the only Republican who could surely win at the polls next November, and have believed that he could surely be nominated if he would only consent to say he would be willing to accept.

"It is not necessary for him to be an active candidate; in fact, he could not be expected to be, and I have not urged him to be, but have only asked that he give assurance to other friends and myself that he will not withstand a strong popular demand for him to accept the nomination. I have no authority to speak for Col. Roosevelt, but I know his nature, and I do not believe it will be long before he will make his position clear."

When questioned regarding his interview with Col. Roosevelt, ex-Gov. Fort said that it was quite satisfactory, and that there were others present at the interview. He felt sure that the Colonel would not refuse to comply with the popular demand which seemed to be springing up all over the country for his nomination.

Ex-Gov. Fort declared that, in view of the present political conditions in the country to-day, it was either "Roosevelt and evolution or somebody else and revolution."

"I regard Col. Roosevelt," continued the ex-Governor, "as the greatest man intellectually and as a statesman in this Republic, and he has no superior, if an equal, in any country, and his personal popularity with the masses of people exceeds, in my judgment, that of any other man living."

Ex-State Senator Everett Colby of West Orange, N. J., had a conference with Col. Roosevelt on Thursday, and will meet the Colonel again to-day at the Outlook office.

"I can't tell you a word about what Mr. Roosevelt said," Mr. Colby declared yesterday in Newark. The New Jersey Progressive leader admitted, however, that politics were freely discussed.

"Will you continue your activities in New Jersey in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf?" Mr. Colby was asked.

"We certainly shall keep right at it," was the enthusiastic response. "Now, that's enough; don't ask me any more."

TAFT MEN WORRIED.

Striving to Offset Indorsement of Roosevelt by St. Louis Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—Republican politicians here were very much interested to-day in two items of news published this morning, one from St. Louis, where the Republican City Committee declared yesterday for Col. Roosevelt for the next Presidential nomination, and the other from West Virginia, where Gov. Glasscock came squarely out for Col. Roosevelt in a statement urging the people to see to it that Roosevelt delegates to the National Convention are elected.

There is special significance in each of these matters. When Walter Brown, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Ohio, and Edwin Lee, Chairman of the Republican State Committee of Indiana, declared against President Taft about the time of the meeting of the Republican National Committee here last December, the Taft managers minimized the defection, and it was not long before the Indiana matter was pretty thoroughly exploded through the unanimous adoption by the State Committee of a resolution declaring that Chairman Lee's views were not shared by the committee. Mr. Brown, in Ohio, has been causing more trouble, but there were hopes of minimizing that.

Now, however, comes the declaration of Gov. Glasscock, and there is no denying that it is a hard blow to the Taft managers. Heretofore they have been inclined to belittle the Roosevelt movement, but to-day for the first time they were active to counteract the effect of Roosevelt talk, and were obtaining information from West Virginians in Washington and from the State itself with which to oppose Gov. Glasscock.

The hardest part of the Glasscock statement for them to meet is the way in which the Governor points out to the people how to go about obtaining the nomination of Col. Roosevelt. Gov. Glasscock was particularly adroit in his declaration that Col. Roosevelt does not want the nomination and would not take it as the result of intrigue, but that if called "to do a job of work" he would respond. That gives the people a direct incentive to get to work in the election of delegates.

One of the West Virginians interviewed by the Taft men here to-day was ex-Senator Nathan Bay Scott, who said that on a recent visit to his home State he found a very strong sentiment favoring the President's renomination and an equally strong sentiment against a third term, "which the great majority of citizens would regard a candidacy on the part of Mr. Roosevelt."

It has been pointed out in these dispatches frequently of late that men were going to the White House, and saying one thing to the Taft managers, and then coming away and saying an entirely different thing to others. Mr. Scott is one of these men, and his real attitude is well known at the White House. It was only the other day that he said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that the best Mr. Taft could get in West Virginia would be an uninstructed delegation.

"The State is full of Roosevelt sentiment," he said then. "The fact is that both Taft and Roosevelt ought to pull out, and leave the way open for a safe and conservative man like Fairbanks."

Much more reliance is to be placed upon what was said by V. L. Highland of Clarksburg, West Va., Chairman of the State Committee. He was called on the telephone and dictated the following:

"You can put it down just as strongly as you like that the West Virginia delegation will be for Mr. Taft. The Republicans of the State generally favor his renomination, and the sentiment of the delegates will be responsive to that feel-

JAMES SPEYER DECORATED.

Kaiser Confers on Him Order of the Red Eagle of the Second Class.

James Speyer, head of the banking house of Speyer & Co., has received from the German Emperor, through the German Ambassador at Washington, the decoration of the Red Eagle of the Second Class. The only other Americans to receive this decoration are J. P. Morgan, who was honored for gifts of art works to Germany, and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, for his work in connection with the interchange of professors between America and Germany.

James Speyer is the founder of the Theodore Roosevelt professorship in the University of Berlin, which brought about the exchange of professors between the leading universities of this country and Germany. The decoration was conferred on Mr. Speyer in recognition of the long record of the Speyer banking houses here and abroad in international affairs and his personal efforts to promote more cordial relations between the United States and Germany.

Mr. Speyer was born in this city in 1861 and is the son of Gustavus Speyer, one of the founders of the New York house of Speyer & Co. He was educated at Frankfort-on-Main, where his family have been prominent as bankers for 200 years. He has been successively connected with the Frankfort house of the family, and with its branches in London and Paris, returning to New York in 1885.

Mr. Speyer's brother-in-law, who is the head of the Frankfort banking house, two years ago was ennobled by the German Emperor under the name of Eduard Beit von Speyer. James Speyer's brother, Sir Edgar Speyer, who is the head of the London house, was made a baronet about four years ago by King Edward, and later on was created a Privy Councillor. Another of Mr. Speyer's connections, Mr. Arthur von Gwinner, (whose wife is the daughter of Philip Speyer, founder of Speyer & Co., and a cousin of Mr. Speyer,) is a member of the Prussian House of Lords and Director of the Deutsche Bank, Berlin.

YOUNG LEEDS RULES MANSION

Montclair, N. J., Boy of Nine Is a Monarch in $200,000 Palace.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Jan. 19.—In the absence of his mother, Mrs. Nonnie Leeds, who is in Europe, a nine-year-old boy, William B. Leeds, Jr., is master of fifteen servants in a $200,000 mansion on South Mountain Avenue. The lad, who is heir to three-fourths of the estate left by his father, the tin plate king and railroad magnate, estimated at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000, drives to a private school each day in a costly French limousine automobile, attended by a footman as well as a chauffeur.

Master Leeds has a male valet to dress and undress him and a governess to help him with his lessons. He also has a team of bay horses and a coachman to drive them for him when he tires of automobiling. He is relieved of the responsibility of attending to the details of the management of the large establishment over which he rules by a housekeeper, Jeanne Carpenter, who sees that his general orders are executed by the servants.

Each day the boy exchanges long cablegrams with his mother in Europe. In compliance with her wishes he does not play with other boys of his age, but orders out the servants to participate in snow battles and other games with him. Mrs. Leeds has expressed the opinion that American boys are snobbish and undesirable companions.

Mrs. William G. Stewart, the boy's maternal step-grandmother, was ejected from the house to make room for his occupancy. The immediate cause of her ejectment was a quarrel with his grandfather which led him to leave the house. Mrs. Leeds then ordered Mrs. Stewart and her daughter, Miss Ferne Parkhurst, ejected. A court order was obtained for this purpose, and officers carried the two women, screaming and struggling—Mrs. Stewart only partly clothed—from the mansion.

A NELLY BLY STORY HUSHED.

Magazine Giving an Account of Her Business Venture Kept from Sale.

The second issue of Fair Play, a weekly magazine, which contained an article by Nellie Bly (Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman) entitled, "How I Was Robbed of Two Million Dollars," was removed from all newsstands in the Subway and elevated stations yesterday by order of Ward & Gow, who control the stands, on the ground that the article was possibly libelous.

The magazine, which is published by the Public Weal Publishing Company of 501 Fifth Avenue, was put on the newsstands for sale late last Thursday night, and all copies were removed shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Marcus Braun, the editor, received a letter from Ward & Gow declaring that as the article treated of a matter which was objectionable, and further contained the possibility of a libel, they did not care to take the responsibility of handling it, and had ordered the magazine from the stands. Artemas Ward, head of the firm, refused last night to say who had brought the article to his notice.

CARNEGIE'S FEES HELD UP.

Notary's Seal Missing from Voucher—Steel Committee Calls Farrell.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Andrew Carnegie is having trouble collecting from the Government $28.70 in witness fees for his recent testimony before the House Steel Trust Committee. He told the committee when testifying that he was honored by its invitation to appear, that he would frame in gold his subpoena and expense voucher and keep them forever. Later, however, Mr. Carnegie apparently changed his mind, for on Jan. 17 he signed his expense voucher, and it was received to-day by Jerry South, Chief Clerk of the House.

It calls for 454 miles of travel at 5 cents a mile ($22.70) and for three days' witness fees at $2 a day, ($6.)

The notary in New York who witnessed the voucher for Mr. Carnegie failed to affix his seal. Not until this detail is remedied will Clerk South give up the money.

J. J. Farrell, President of the United Steel Corporation, and J. A. Reed, President of the Pittsburgh, Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad, and personal counsel for Andrew Carnegie, will be witnesses before the House Steel Trust investigating committee next Monday. The committee purposes to inquire of Mr. Farrell particularly about the corporation's export business, his special department before he became President.

NOT IN POLITICS, SAYS GARY.

Steel Trust Not Favoring or Opposing Any One for President.

Referring to recent reports that the United States Steel Corporation is supporting a movement to defeat the renomination of President Taft, Chairman Gary said to-day:

"There is no foundation for the statement that our corporation or any of its officers or any one in authority has done or said anything to favor or oppose the nomination of any one for President. We keep out of politics."

SUBWAY ULTIMATUM GOES TO INTERBORO

City's Negotiators Lay Down a Basis from Which an Agreement Can Be Developed.

ANSWER MUST BE YES OR NO

Prospects Reported Brighter After a Conference, with Which Mr. Shonts Kept in Touch.

Another chance was given to the Interborough yesterday to re-enter as a bidder for new subways. At a five-hour conference held at the Downtown Association, 60 Pine Street, at which both the city and the intermediaries were much more largely represented than at former conferences, the position of the city on the primary questions at issue were laid down clearly. Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, though not actually at the conference, was in the building, and each point was communicated to him as the city's representatives defined it. What is practically the city's ultimatum will be laid by him before a meeting of his Directors at the beginning of next week, and on their attitude toward it will depend whether the conferences are continued or not.

Both parties to the conference seemed rather more hopeful when they broke up that, after all, some arrangement might be made that both sides could accept. When they met it was with the belief that nothing would be gained by their discussions, and that all negotiations would be declared off, but one who has been regarded as acting for the company declared afterward that he thought the outlook was rather bright.

When Borough President McAneny, Chairman Willcox, and Controller Prendergast returned to the City Hall, they stated that the company now knew exactly what points the city considered as absolutely fundamental to the situation, and that next week would show whether they could be accepted.

"But suppose they are not accepted?" was asked.

"Then everything will be off," was the reply.

Getting Down to Business.

Present at the conference, which began with a luncheon, were for the city not only Mr. Willcox, Mr. McAneny, and Mr. Prendergast, but also Borough Presidents Miller of the Bronx and Cromwell of Richmond, who were members of the McAneny committee of last Summer. In addition to Samuel Rea, Morgan J. O'Brien, and A. J. County of the Pennsylvania Railroad, H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., and the Interborough's bankers, and Seth Low, who has attended a number of the conferences as an interested citizen, the company had another negotiator in J. P. Morgan, Jr. The luncheon began at 1 o'clock, and continued till 3:30 before the party arose from the table.

By this time Mr. Shonts had come to the club and Mr. Rea's party withdrew to tell him the result of the conference up to date. From that time on the negotiators were divided into two groups, the city officials formulating among themselves the terms that they wished, and the Pennsylvania and Interborough representatives making replies on the points raised.

Progress was made, in that for the first time in the long series of debates one side has defined its position. In the earlier meetings the Pennsylvania officials were showing the disability under which the omission of Seventh Avenue from the new subway plan would lay their company, and were asking the city what could be done to assist them.

Various possible routes and methods of dividing the net earnings of the new roads were debated, but the discussion was general. No offer was made on the part of the Interborough, and no conditions were laid down by the city. As soon as one snag was overcome another seemed to appear, and the conferees had almost agreed that a compromise was impossible.

Up to the Interborough Now.

Now the Interborough knows precisely what the city must have on the big questions at issue. The discussion followed in the main the lines of the McAneny report and assumed that the Interborough would be satisfied with the completion of its "H," the Bronx extensions, the Woodside, and Corona, and the Astoria routes via the Steinway Tunnel, and the Eastern Parkway extension in Brooklyn, while the B. R. T. had its line up Broadway and over the Queensboro Bridge. The city laid down its position on such contentious matters as the amount of preferential payment to the Interborough, the third tracking of the elevated lines, the purchase of the Steinway Tunnel, and the Bronx extensions.

Some hope of the success of the negotiations was derived yesterday from the fact that now for the first time the city is practically making an offer to the Interborough. On all previous occasions it has been the company that has put forward a proposal and the city that has had to pick holes in it. So often had this happened that Mr. Shonts had declared privately that he would never again put himself in the position of asking the Public Service Commission for anything. But now the situation is changed. Through the efforts of intermediaries, not directly concerned in the matter at all, the essentials as the city sees them have been submitted and it is the Interborough which has to say whether it will accept them or not.

Mayor Scorns Queens Routes.

At the same time it was pointed out yesterday by the city officials that though the company agrees to the fundamental principles there still remain a number of hardly less important points to be considered, and on many of these a break in the negotiations would be as easy as on the main questions.

Mayor Gaynor was asked yesterday as to his view of the Fifty-ninth Street and Queensboro Bridge routes, which are only awaiting his approval for adoption as rapid transit lines. He did not seem to be at all impressed by them and called them cornfield routes. He declared it was absurd to think of lines through the prairies before the congested districts of Manhattan were relieved. He spoke also of the Steinway Tunnel route and expressed the opinion that that should be completed with spurs running out to Astoria and Corona.

The Seventh Avenue Association has come forward with a solution of the subway problem in case nothing comes of the negotiations. It suggests that if the agreement with the Interborough fails the city should itself independently construct a subway across the city below Forty-second Street to connect the Lexington Avenue Subway with a new line to be constructed from Times Square to the Battery under Seventh Avenue.

LEISHMAN AGLEAM AT KAISER'S COURT

Resplendent in Navy Blue, Gold Braid, a Cocked Hat with Plumes, and a Sword.

25 AMERICANS PRESENTED

Embassy Secretaries Also in Court Uniform—Brilliant Display at First Court of the Berlin Season.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Twenty-five Americans made bows to the Kaiser and Kaiserin at the Berlin Castle to-night at the brilliant "schleppencourt," or "train drawing room," which opened the annual season of the German Court. They were presented by Ambassador John G. A. Leishman.

The Ambassador and his Secretaries were resplendent in court uniforms of navy blue, with collars, sleeves, and trousers heavily bordered with gold braid. They also carried swords and cocked hats, with white and black plumes.

The party, headed by Ambassador and Mrs. Leishman, included the following, who were formally presented to their Majesties for the first time: Countess Gontaut-Biron, (née Leishman,) Miss Nancy Leishman, Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Leishman, Mrs. S. Barton French, Mrs. Devereaux, Miss Devereaux, Mr. and Mrs. Price Collier, Miss Collier, Miss Gladys Waterbury, Mrs. Henry Wood, Capt. A. P. Niblack, the Naval Attaché, and Mrs. Niblack; Lieuts. Dowell and Bristol, U. S. N., and Second Secretary Willing Spencer.

The American circle also included the following, who had been presented at a previous "schleppencourt": Secretary Irwin B. Laughlin, Third Secretary Perry Belden, and Capt. Samuel Grant Shartle, the Military Attaché, and Mrs. Shartle.

Two other Americans who were introduced to the German Emperor and Empress for the first time were Lady Robert Hadfield of Sheffield, England, sister of Attorney General Wickersham, and Signora Augusto Pulido of the Venezuelan Legation, who was a Philadelphian prior to her marriage.

The magnificent gowns and jewels worn by the ladies of the ample American circle attracted universal attention, even amid the most brilliant array of feminine pageantry which German society has ever seen.

Mrs. Leishman wore a gown of white brocaded velvet, with bowknot designs in rhinestones, and a court train of the same velvet; Mrs. John Alexander Leishman wore silver brocade, with a train of pink velvet; Countess Gontaut-Biron wore pink silver cloth, with pink roses circling the edge of the skirt, and a train of the same material; Miss Nancy Leishman was a particularly charming figure in silver gauze, trimmed with bunches of roses, and a train of the same cloth; Mrs. Price Collier wore violet velvet, with a train of violet satin, outlined with orchids, shading from deep purple to pale mauve.

Miss Collier wore white chiffon, with a train of pink satin; Mrs. Devereaux, white and silver brocade, with a train of white brocaded velvet; Miss Waterbury, mauve gauze, with a train of silver lace, and Miss Devereaux, white chiffon, with a lace train over pink gauze.

Mrs. Niblack wore a gown of white satin, with silver embroidery, and a white satin train, covered with crystal trimming and garnished with bunches of pink roses; Mrs. Barton French, a gown of mauve chiffon and velvet, with a train of the same material, incrusted with Père Marquette lace and long trails of morning glories, shading from light to deep purple. She also wore a magnificent tiara and necklace of diamonds.

AT 'PHONE, HE HEARS WIFE'S DEATH SHOT

"Hold the Wire," She Tells Dr. Houck, Returning with Pistol That Ends Her Life.

SWITCHBOARD BOY HEARS IT

With Building Superintendent Breaks Into Room and Finds Woman Dying—Husband Hurries Uptown, Too Late.

Telephoning from her room, Mrs. Norah Houck asked Frank Cordoga, the switchboard operator in the Wadsworth Court Apartments, at Wadsworth Avenue and 180th Street, to call up her husband, Dr. Ulysses Grant Houck, at his office in the local branch of the United States Department of Agriculture, 104 West Forty-second Street, about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Over the wire sounded the voices of husband and wife, the latter pleading and the former stern.

As Cordoga broke in on the wire from time to time, as he answered other calls or sought for a clear wire, he heard Dr. Houck and his wife in a lively conversation over a sleigh ride which Mrs. Houck had enjoyed on Thursday. Finally he heard Mrs. Houck ask:

"But you'll be home to dinner, won't you, dear?" and he heard Dr. Houck answer: "No."

The woman hesitated an instant, and then exclaimed:

"Hold the wire just an instant, please?"

There was no sound on the wire for a moment, and then came the rustling of skirts as the woman approached the telephone again. An instant later there sounded the report of a revolver shot, and Mr. Houck's voice calling:

"What's the matter? Norah! Norah!"

Cordoga sprang from the switchboard and ran to the office of Supt. Nels Nelson. He told the superintendent of the shot, and together the men ascended in the elevator to the Houck apartment on the third floor. The door was locked, and when there was no response to their ringing of the bell or pounding on the door, the men put their shoulders to it and burst the door in.

They ran into the apartment and down the private hall in which the telephone hung. The receiver dangled from its yard or more of green wire, and beneath the instrument on the floor lay Mrs. Houck. A revolver lay beside her. From a hole in the front of her dress just above her heart blood was coming. The woman was unconscious.

They carried her to her bedroom and laid her on the bed. Then Cardoga went downstairs for Dr. G. O. Hefter, who lives on the first floor. The physician hurried upstairs and found Mrs. Houck still alive. He worked over her for ten minutes, but could not call her back to consciousness. She grew weaker and weaker, and Dr. Hefter rose from bending over the woman to announce to Nelson and Cardoga that she was dead, just as Dr. Houck rushed into the room.

He had lost no time in hastening from his office after hearing the sound of the revolver shot over the telephone, and he collapsed when he learned that he was too late.

Mrs. Houck was only 34 years old. The couple had been married for seven years, and had no children.

LIBRARIAN KILLS HERSELF.

Mary Wegman Had Been Out of Work—Inhaled Gas.

Harold Mason, a lodger in the home of Mrs. Virginia Argudoles, on the top floor of 316 West 115th Street, smelled gas yesterday, and traced it to a room rented yesterday by a young woman. He broke open the door and found the woman dead. She held in her mouth a tube fastened to the gas jet.

On a table was a letter addressed to Martin Wegman, 81 Centre Street or 527 Linwood Avenue, Brooklyn. The police communicated with the man, who came to the house and identified the dead woman as his sister, Mary. He said that she had been employed as a librarian for several years, but that a little more than a year ago she had lost her position and had not been able to get one since.

He said that recently she had been stopping with relatives at 33 Moringside Avenue. Wegman said that he would bury his sister.

ROOSEVELT RUNS AN AUTO.

Used One Reluctantly at First, Then Learned to Operate It.

Col. Roosevelt now sits behind the steering wheel of his automobile. Residents of Oyster Bay on several occasions recently have seen him driving through the town with his hand on the wheel.

The sight was surprising, because Col. Roosevelt's love of the horse and aversion to automobiles were well known. But he found an automobile indispensible when he began to make regular trips between Oyster Bay and The Outlook office in New York. Gradually he picked up information about the mechanism of the car, but it was only recently that he began to drive it. The Colonel still prefers the horse, however, and when he is at home takes daily horseback rides. As a concession to the automobile, Col. Roosevelt recently built a broad macadam road from his home on the crown of Sagamore Hill to the public highway below.

TWO STEEPLEJACKS KILLED.

One Grasps Other as He Falls and Is Himself Hurled to Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Two steeplejacks fell 180 feet to death to-day when one of them attempted to save his companion who had slipped from a ladder on the top of the North Broad Street Presbyterian Church. When a passer-by who had witnessed their terrible fall reached their bodies he found the hand of Herman Greenwald still clutching the overalls on the body of August Johnson, whose life he had vainly attempted to save.

The two men were engaged in placing new slates in the steeple of the church when Johnson, who was on a ladder, suddenly slipped and started to slide down the steep incline. As he rushed past Greenwald, who was standing on the ledge, the latter grasped him, but was unable to stop him and was himself hurled to death.

COURT OPEN TO DUCHESS.

Application Will Give Duchess of Marlborough Honored Place.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—In view of the statement published in New York questioning the accuracy of THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatch in respect to the Duchess of Marlborough and the English Court, I desire to repeat that the information is correct in every detail.

I may add that the King personally took the initiative in the matter. He examined the reports submitted, and decided that the Duchess was entitled to take an honored place among the ladies of his court.

Consequently, whenever it pleases her Grace to make the regulation application to the Lord Chamberlain's office he will pass it without demur.

The circumstance that the Duchess has not yet sent in her application is doubtless due to considerations of an entirely personal nature, and does not alter the fact that when she decides to make her application it will be treated on exactly the same footing as would that of, say, the Duchess of Sutherland.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 19.—In connection with the opening of the Panama Canal, a Danish financial group have proposed that the Government lease St. Thomas Harbor, they to deepen the same and build wharfs and docks.

The scheme is now under consideration, and will come before the Rigsdag, the consent of which is indispensable.

STIMSON TO SEE DIX.

Conference To-day on Dispute Over Water Rights.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—Secretary Stinson left Washington for New York to-night to hold a conference with Gov. Dix in regard to the new dam to be constructed above the State Dam at Troy for the purpose of deepening and widening the channel of the Hudson River.

The question of water rights and the lease of water power is complicated by the fact that the former New York State Canal Board complied with the River and Harbor act of 1910, which required that water power rights should be extinguished, but by change of personnel in the board the resolution of extinguishing such rights was rescinded, and all the plans have, therefore, been held up until the matter could be straightened out.

Since the latter action in April last the project has been awaiting an understanding between the State and Federal authorities.

DEMANDS BRITON'S RELEASE.

London Has Given Ultimatum to Mexico on G. W. Ham.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 19.—Great Britain has given the Mexican authorities until Monday to release George W. Ham, a banker and British subject, from the Balem prison in Mexico City.

Ham was the head of the Mexico City Banking Company, which failed two years ago, dragging down the Mexican National Packing Company. He was arrested and imprisoned without trial, and has been there more than two years, although he has been offered his liberty if he would consent to leave the country without seeking to vindicate himself.

Ham at last attracted the attention of the British Foreign Office to his case, and the ultimatum was the result. The demand made through the British Ambassador at Mexico City caused a stir in the Capitol. It is believed that President Madero will release the banker promptly.

DIDN'T MISUSE MAILS.

Taft Pardons New York Plasterer Convicted of Writing Offensive Letter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—President Taft granted to-night a pardon to Oscar Krueger, a New York plasterer, who has been serving a term of eighteen months in the Atlanta Penitentiary on the charge of sending improper matter through the mails. The pardon followed recommendation of District Attorney Wise of New York and of the Department of Justice, on the theory that Krueger was wrongfully convicted last February, an investigation having convinced the Department of Justice that the accused did not write the offensive letters.

The Department's version of the case is that a respectable young woman in New York advertised for a place and received a letter in response, which was considered improper. Anthony Comstock got possession of the letter and inserted a decoy advertisement, arranging for an appointment. The young woman went to the place, found no one there, but looking around saw a man in the neighborhood, and asked him whether his name was "Ed," the password for the meeting.

Krueger was the man whom she met, but denied that his name was "Ed," explaining afterward that he said it was for a joke. He denied that he had written any letter. The Department of Justice compared Krueger's handwriting with that of the letter and was satisfied that he had not written the missive.

CLING TO WRECK'S RIGGING.

Four of Sunk Schooner's Crew May Be Swept Away on Diamond Shoals.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 19.—After going ashore early this morning on Diamond Shoals in a heavy sea with her masts swept away, the schooner Horace Prescott, from New York, a three-master, quickly sank, the Captain and crew of seven men taking refuge in the rigging. To-night three of the men who could swim have been rescued, but four others are still in the rigging, and fears are entertained that they will be swept away before morning.

The surf men on the shore went to the rescue of the endangered men, but were unable to get a life line to the vessel, and efforts to launch a lifeboat were vain. Time after time the boats were launched, only to be hurled on the beach. Early in the afternoon three of the men in the rigging threw themselves into the sea and were rescued from the surf by the life savers. They are at the Life Saving Station, bruised, cut, and exhausted. They are Capt. V. R. Whilbrook of Weatherport, Maine; T. S. Smith, mate, of Boston, and George Robbins, seaman of Jonesport, Maine. They report that the other men are unable to swim.

The revenue cutters Itasca and Onondaga, called by wireless, are en route to the scene.

CUBANS MAY COME TO ARGUE WITH TAFT

Veterans Would Send Their Own Generals to Lay Their Case Before President.

SPURN NUNEZ AGREEMENT

Crisis in the Island Is Not Yet Averted, but Conferences Still Continue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—Despite the official note given out at the palace last night, following a conference of the Veterans' Committee with the President, and declaring that an agreement had been reached that the Veterans should abandon their anti-guerrilla campaign, the Veterans say it will persist. Gen. Nunez, the chief conferree, printed this morning a flat denial of any such agreement, which was evidently drafted after a conference by Gen. Nunez and his colleagues, Gen. Coronado and the President's secretary, Señor Remirez. It was identical in meaning with a resolution which Gen. Coronado this morning offered at the Veterans' meeting, which was tabled.

While the newspapers are appealing to the patriotism of Cubans to save their independence, they express the sentiments of only the politician class, while all the merchants, sugar planters, and other producers and owners of wealth are hoping for annexation, though not daring to say so.

The general sentiment seems to be that trouble is as far as ever from settlement, and that a crash may come at any moment. The extraordinary vigilance of the guard at the palace is noticeable.

Gen. Aranda, the most radical of the veteran leaders, presented a motion that the veterans send a commission, including some of their Generals, to President Taft to explain the justice of the veterans' movement, the corruption of the Government, and the vast fortunes accumulated by the President and his friends.

Many papers demand the immediate resignation of Gen. Nunez as President of the Veteran Association, and of Gen. Monteagudo, commander of the armed forces, as being chiefly responsible for the situation and bringing upon Cuba the shame of the Knox note.

In spite of the earnest efforts of the politicians to get together, all the causes of trouble remain unchanged. The conflicting interests are irreconcilable, and any settlement reached will be only a lull.

Vice President Zayas still insists that President Gomez should carry out the agreement, whereby the Zayistas joined the Miguelistas to elect Gomez, with the understanding that Gomez would support Zayas at the next election. This President Gomez cannot do.

The result of the conference between President Gomez and the Generals this afternoon was not given out after the banquet which was held to-night at the palace. After the Generals held conference with the veterans rumors were afloat that unless President Gomez and the Generals decided upon a definite programme, guaranteeing a settlement of the conflict, the United States would immediately intervene.

Sixty persons were present at the conference. Vice President Zayas was there with Gen. Pino Guerra.

Gen. Menocal, Secretary of Justice, and other Generals, the Chief Justice, the Cabinet, Speaker Ferrara, and Gen. Monteaguedo attended, together with dissenting Veterans.

The speakers included Señor Varona, Conservative; Vice President Zayas, and Señor Garcia, Liberals, and Gen. Nunez as President of the Veterans.

They reiterated their pledges of unity and agreed to back President Gomez in whatever action would satisfy the Washington Government.

President Gomez, with Señor Sanguilly, is now dictating a reply to Secretary Knox, the forty-eight-hour limit having been exceeded.

At a meeting of the Patriotic League, presided over by Marquis Santa Lucia, Gualberto Gomez protested against intervention, but urged silent sacrifice to save the prestige of several Orientals, who prefer that the Americans shall come rather than efforts to expel the ex-guerrilleros from the offices.

The sessions of Congress were tame to-day. They passed only pension and road bills.

There was a slight drop in the markets this afternoon, the frequent calls at the palace of a Franco-German contractor and the local correspondent of the Deutsche Bank attracting attention.

BUTTER AND EGG COLLUSION.

Charges That Chicago and Elgin Boards Fixed Prices Corroborated.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Charges of collusion between the Chicago Butter and Egg Board and the Elgin Board of Trade, made by the Federal Government, were corroborated to-day by E. L. McAdams, formerly a member of both, who testified that many of the Chicago Butter and Egg Board members also were members of the Elgin Board of Trade during the years he was a member. He also said that the Chicago men, after fixing prices in Chicago, went to Elgin and fixed the prices there to correspond.

The Government is attempting to show that the commission men and dealers here fixed prices to suit themselves.

Colvin W. Brown secretary of the Elgin Board, testified that board had a committee of five, known as the Quotation Committee, which investigated butter conditions and reported the results of such inquiry to the board. The board then fixed the prices with this repoprt as a basis.

WILSON STILL SILENT ON HARVEY INCIDENT

But His Manager Says That Only His Foes Are Shedding Tears Over the Controversy.

SENATOR GORE DEFENDS HIM

Judge Ewing Says the Governor Did Not at First Fear the Effect of Harvey's Support.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 19.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey addressed an audience of representative business and professional men and university students in the Opera House here to-day. As soon as he arrived he was shown the latest version of the Col. Harvey incident, that of Judge Robert Ewing, who had said that the editor of Harper's Weekly thus phrased his acceptance of Gov. Wilson's rejection of his support: "Well, I'll have to put on the soft pedal."

"I have nothing to say on that matter," said Gov. Wilson when this statement was shown to him. He also refused to discuss Col. Watterson's criticism of him and the assertion of the Wilson campaign manager, William F. McCombs, that "the tears that are being shed over the passing incident are wrung from those who have hitherto been the most conspicuous opponents of Gov. Wilson."

Before leaving Detroit, Gov. Wilson said that he had no opportunity as yet to give the statement of Col. Henry Watterson the consideration that it demanded. He said he was unlikely to issue any statement concerning this matter during his present tour. Further, he said, he was not in the habit of issuing statements, and might make no reply.

Gov. Wilson's topic was "Opportunities of Democracy." He said the time had come for the young man to enter politics understandingly, without prejudice, refusing to stand for private arrangements, secret sessions, frame-ups, and political prearrangements that have been endured in the past. He said that in his campaigns of the last two years he had discovered that the typical audience was not a partisan one, but was composed of men who realized a new breath was abroad in the Nation and that new issues confronted the Nation, men who he believed were ready to face these issues without respect to the party ticket voted by their ancestors.

CHARLOTTE, Mich., Jan. 19.—A large crowd of residents, attracted by the shrill announcement of a mill whistle, met Gov. Wilson's special car as it rolled into the local station to-day. The Governor made a short speech.

"Bully for you, the next President!" shouted a farmer.

Gov. Wilson looked in his direction inquiringly and smiled, but made no comment.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 19.—Gov. Wilson was met on arrival here this evening by a committee of representative Democrats. An hour later he delivered an address before the Ladies' Literary Club along the lines of the topic the club members at present are studying, "Problems of Government Before the People." The Governor was escorted to a hall where he took for his theme the subject of "Business in Politics."

"ONLY HIS FOES SHED TEARS."

Wilson's Manager Praises Governor's Candor with Harvey.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The Wilson-Harvey episode brought forth to-day simultaneously with the arrival of Col. Henry Watterson a statement by William F. McCombs, campaign manager for Woodrow Wilson. Col. Watterson, who will be here several days in connection with the work of the Perry Memorial Commission, read the McCombs statement as well as the one made to-day at Nashville, Tenn., by Judge Robert Ewing but declined to comment on either.

"As to the Wilson matter," said the Colonel, "I have nothing to add to what has already been said unless it be seriously challenged by some responsible person. Then I may have a good deal to say."

The statement issued by Mr. McCombs follows:

"With reference to the alleged Wilson-Harvey incident, it seems to me that Col. Watterson has said in a statement all that needs to be said. It appears therefrom that as far back as last October he himself suggested to Gov. Wilson that Col. Harvey's support, through Harper's Weekly, might be injurious, and that he probably told Col. Harvey himself the same thing.

"It would seem that Col. Watterson had convinced the Governor of the truth of his opinion, and had at least impressed Col. Harvey with the probability of its truth, else Col. Harvey would not have propounded the question. It is passing strange that Col. Watterson should feel concerned that the Governor, in private conversation with himself and Col. Harvey, should, in answer to a pointed question, give frank expression to the very view which Mr. Watterson himself entertained, and which he had communicated to the Governor and probably to Col. Harvey.

"In October last, also, the very month in which he made these suggestions to Gov. Wilson, Col. Watterson said, in The Louisville Courier-Journal, editorially:

> Two things seems tolerably sure to the surmise of The Courier-Journal: If Woodrow Wilson is nominated for President it will be through the force of an irresistible pressure of public opinion; and if he is defeated for the nomination it will be by some organized agency, well backed with money. No Democrat of modern times has come into the running, Samuel J. Tilden alone excepted, with half at once of the equipment and the claim of the New Jersey Governor.

"The tears that are being shed over the passing incident are wrung from those who have hitherto been the most conspicuous opponents of Gov. Wilson—witness the frequently quoted statement of Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, Neb., who has for months not only been openly opposed to Gov. Wilson, but who has been the aggressive champion of another candidate. The same applies to others who have indulged in lachrymose expressions. This, of course, is to be expected whenever any man delelops a decided lead for the nomination.

"The gist of the issue as I see it is whether one friend in private conversation with another should, in answer to a plain question, resort to flattery or dissimulation, or whether he should state the truth as he sees it."

Senator Gore of Oklahoma in a statement to-day came out flatly in defense of Gov. Wilson. He declared the entire incident was a "bubble, not a billow."

FORCED WILSON TO BE FRANK.

Judge Ewing Defends Governor's Reply to Col. Harvey.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 19.—"Well, I'll have to put on the soft pedal."

This is the exclamation Col. Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly, is declared to have made when Gov. Wilson, forced to reply to Col. Harvey's query, said he feared editorial support in the weekly was injuring his cause. A statement purporting to be a description of the meeting between Col. Harvey and Gov. Wilson with Col. Watterson in New York was given out here to-day by Judge Robert Ewing, Middle Tennessee representative of the State Woodrow Wilson organization.

Judge Ewing, who is related by marriage both to Gov. Wilson and Col. Watterson, says the Governor's statement to Col. Harvey was made against the dictates of personal friendship and with the realization that "Harvey's support had brought him (Wilson) to the front." Judge Ewing's statement says:

"Col. Harvey's intimates well knew that his editorial utterances were wholly untrammelled. He had been brought into close friendship with Woodrow Wilson and had conceived the highest estimate of his character."

Then Judge Ewing goes on to tell how Col. Harvey, through editorials in Harper's Weekly, championed the cause of Woodrow Wilson for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

"Many, not knowing the real independence of Col. Harvey, and seeking to harm the Wilson cause, began to indulge in all sorts of conjectures into unfounded intimations. As a result a number of Wilson's real friends began to be of the opinion that perhaps the Weekly's earnest support was militating against his prospects."

Judge Ewing declares Gov. Wilson's opinion was decidedly contrary to this view, appreciating that Col. Harvey "had brought him to the front, appreciating Harvey's support and feeling it to be valuable."

Then followed the meeting in New York between Wilson, Harvey and Watterson. Judge Ewing declares at the close of the conference Col. Harvey arose and said to Gov. Wilson:

"I wish to ask you a question, and I expect a frank answer. Do you believe that the booming nature of my articles in Harper's Weekly is injuring your cause?"

Judge Ewing says Gov. Wilson's friendship for Harvey demanded that the Governor answer in the negative to the query, but that Col. Harvey had demanded frankness and that Gov. Wilson was obliged, with much embarrassment, to make such a reply that later his name, as candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, was removed from the editorial column of Harper's Weekly. And Judge Ewing says Col. Harvey exclaimed: "Well, I'll have to put on the soft pedal."

BRYAN'S FRIENDS FOR WILSON.

Sign a Petition to Place Him in Nomination in Nebraska.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 19.—The Omaha friends of Woodrow Wilson will file to-morrow a petition with the Secretary of State placing Gov. Wilson in nomination for the Presidency under the Nebraska preferential laws. This petition was not circulated until after the Harvey and Watterson letters were made public, and it is the answer of the Wilson Club of Nebraska.

This petition is signed by many close friends of William J. Bryan, among them being I. J. Dunn, who made the nominating speech at the Denver Convention; C. J. Smyth, former Attorney General of the State, and Lee Herdman, formerly Secretary of the State Committee.

THINKS IT WILL HELP WILSON.

Tom Smith Adds That Dispute Cannot Affect the Party.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 19.—Tom Smith, who is here making arrangements for 2,000 "Braves" to whoop at the Democratic Convention, when asked to-day his opinion of the effect of Gov. Wilson's break with Col. Harvey and Col. Watterson, said:

"That is a dispute among three very eminent Democrats and good citizens and does not concern the party at all. So far as it concerns Gov. Wilson individually I should think it would help rather than hurt him. If it is true that he broke away from Harvey because he thought Harvey represented the interests, isn't it logical that such action will be sure to receive popular applause instead of condemnation?"

BRYAN WON'T DISCUSS IT.

But Will Have Something on Wilson-Harvey Dispute in His Paper.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19.—William J. Bryan was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the Woodrow Wilson Club here to-night. Mr. Bryan made no reference to the Watterson-Wilson-Harvey controversy. When asked directly for his opinion, he stated that he would give his views on the incident in the next issue of The Commoner.

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss the situation, but repeated his statement that he had never said he thought Wilson the most available man for the Democratic nomination.

"I have had no occasion to choose between the several gentlemen who are avowed candidates," he said, "and do not feel that my views on the matter are particularly pertinent to any one."

CLARK FIGHTS HIM IN KANSAS.

Speaker's Supporters Outnumber Wilson's on State Committee.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 19.—A contest between the supporters of Gov. Wilson and Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, for control of the Kansas delegation to the National Democratic Convention, developed here to-day when the Democratic State Committee met to fix a date for the State convention.

The Wilson men favor holding the convention Feb. 22, the date on which Gov. Wilson will speak in Topeka, while the Clark forces insist that April 1 be the date. It was indicated early that the Clark supporters included a majority of the committee.

CALL ON ROOSEVELT, THEN WORK FOR HIM

ing. Col. Roosevelt has many admirers in West Virginia, but he is not regarded as a candidate, and, as a consequence, Mr. Taft is assured of unanimous support at the Chicago Convention."

Representative James Hughes also contradicted Gov. Glasscock, saying:

"Gov. Glasscock's interview gave me a great surprise. There must be some mistake about it, that is to say, I don't see how it can be authentic. The situation certainly does not bear out the statements. West Virginia will send a delegation for President Taft. The people feel very kindly toward the President, and Mr. Roosevelt is not even a candidate. I don't see why any such statement as that attributed to Gov. Glasscock should be put forth."

For some time the Taft managers have been claiming the West Virginia delegation very confidently, but the general impression here to-day is that the statement of Gov. Glasscock means that they have a hard fight before them to deliver the votes at Chicago.

The action of the City Committee at St. Louis is a matter of especial interest to Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor. Mr. Nagel is the Republican National Committeeman from Missouri. He was elected four years ago and during a considerable part of the campaign then he was attached to the Chicago headquarters.

Missouri was carried for Taft in 1908 by a few more than 1,000 votes. Walter S. Dickey, then Chairman of the State Committee, has always been credited with doing the real work that put the State in the Republican column. He perfected the most thorough Republican organization ever known in the State and put a lot of his own money into the campaign. Just before the election Mr. Dickey went up to Chicago and asked the National Committee for some money to help get out the vote. He didn't get it, but he went back home and kept up his work until it was successful.

When the time came to hand out the rewards Mr. Nagel was made Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and Mr. Dickey's friends have always said that all he got was the "frozen face." However that may be, Mr. Dickey has not been active in Republican politics in Missouri for some time. Mr. Nagel has been the man to be seen in matters of Missouri patronage, and in general has had charge of Republican affairs in that State. But with all that he has not been able, apparently, to hold the organization in his own city, and now his city committee has declared for Col. Roosevelt.

TAFT IN NEW HAVEN LAUDS TARIFF BOARD

The President Addresses Chamber of Commerce in the Yale Dining Rooms.

TRAIN IS DELAYED BY FOG

It Goes Around New York on a Ferry Steamer—Mr. Taft Meets Connecticut Republicans To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 19.—Eulogizing the Tariff Board and summing up the prospects of tariff revision, President Taft, as guest of honor, spoke before 800 members of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce at their annual dinner to-night in the Yale dining rooms.

The other speakers were Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, who spoke humorously on political eccentricities, and Rabbi S. S. Wise, whose topic was the "Religion of Patriotism." The dinner did not begin until 8:30 o'clock, and the speeches were not reached until a late hour. Col. Isaac Ullman, President of the Chamber, presided, and the guests included ex-Senator Morgan G. Bulkley, United States Senator Frank P. Brandegee, Justices Hall, Wheeler, and Roraback of the Connecticut Supreme Court; former Govs. Walter, Woodruff, and Weeks, ex-Congressman Pigott, Congressman Tilson, Lieut. Gov. Blakeslee, President Hadley of Yale, and Mayor Rice of New Haven.

President Taft was cheered loud and long as he began to speak shortly after midnight. He said:

"Two years ago exactly as this hour I cut short a speech on the efficiency of the Federal Government in order to catch a train. I am going to finish that speech now, and this time I came prepared to stay till the next day. I am glad to stand under the roof tree of my Alma Mater with the men who have made New Haven the beautiful city it is. I hope that in my recent message my friend, Senator Bailey, may find material for learning how our Government may be run with greater efficiency at lest expense.

"I ask the Chamber of Commerce of New Haven its assistance in continuing the Commission on Efficiency, that our Government may not be run as it is with bureaus slapped together, but as parts of an organized system. I don't think that Senator Bailey fears Socialism as he says he does. A campaign of education will put us on the right road. The general government comes into contact with business in three or four parts.

"Let us not lift ourselves by condemning others, but let us not take pleasure in condemning some one else. Back of everything else in Government is the administration. The hand that is lifted against that plays a stroke that wields a dagger at the heart of civilization."

"There are times when it seems easy for the Government to set its face against prosperity in order to eradicate great evils," Mr. Taft continued. "There grew up in the conduct of railroads a series of evils that had to be restrained, and they had to be regulated without discrimination to the public. And yet the law passed in regulating them was regarded by many at its passage as a direct blow at prosperity. I am glad to say that I believe that generally lawlessness has been eliminated.

"There was a time when rebates seemed the rule in the management of railroad affairs. There are still problems that must be solved alone by the Supreme Court, but the men who have made political capital by denouncing railroads ought to go out of business. We ought to get together in team work to promote business and discountenance the stirring of discontent at business. Where we have to do with such large combinations that were formed with a view of evading law, if the laws are evaded, the penalty will be visited as it is being visited now.

"I believe that all business is now adjusting itself to that statute which regulates those combinations.

"We used to believe in a tariff wall so high that you couldn't see over it, but we don't now. Our Tariff Board has investigated several things, and Congress can now know, when it takes up a revision of the wool tariff, just what it is doing. By scientific investigation we can bring our tariff syste minto accord with business conditions with as little disturbance as possible."

Col. Ullman introduced Senator Bailey, who said that he had long passed the point when he believed that Connecticut manufactured wooden nutmegs, and that he believed that Connecticut would follow Texas's lead, if need be, to rescue the Republic from the perils of Socialism.

"It is difficult," said he, "to tell what the greatest eccentricities of politics are. There is a publisher down here in New York whose name is William Hearst, who has a lot to say about the use of money in politics, and yet he has spent more money for his personal advancement than any man I know of. Again, William J. Bryan, a patriot, has grown rich in politics, and so most of those who profess patriotism illustrate the evil they profess to warn against.

"When those of us, old-fashioned and simple-minded it may be, cling to the faith of our fathers, we are called reactionaries. I am a reactionary, and I am proud of it. I would like to take this Government from the point where these Republicans have brought it and bring it back to the faith of our Democratic fathers. I would not like to vote the Republican ticket, but I would gladly vote it to save my country from the unspeakable curse of Socialism. Socialism is monopoly run mad. Socialism, when it falls upon the energies of a people, benumbs them, till they are dead. If the people haven't sense enough to elect men to make the laws, how have they sense enough to make them themselves? You won't let a man put up a prescription in a drug store without getting a license in Connecticut, will you? Yet there are some of these eccentrics who say that any one is fit to pass laws for the benefit of the State and Nation."

Rabbi Wise said that, to him, America was religion.

"I am not concerned about the muckraker," he said. "He will find his own level, and it is a low one. What I am concerned about in this country is the muck maker. I fear no foreign foe, but the foe that lives within our own borders, who would undermine the foundations of our Republic. Why make politicians the scapegoat? Why lay everything at the door of Tammany Hall in New York City? When we want good government in our cities we shall have it."

A luncheon and reception had been arranged for the President at the home of Col. Ullman at 4 o'clock, but his train was more than an hour late because of fog encountered in Pennsylvania, and he spent only a few minutes in Col. Ullman's home. His party went to the Hotel Taft, where they dedicated the Presidential suite of seven rooms. There was a reception in Woolsey Hall before the dinner.

After the dinner the President returned to the Hotel Taft, where he will remain until he leaves for New York City, about 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. His brother, Horace Taft, Principal of the Taft School, was the only other member of the family here to-night.

The President talked by telephone with his son, Charles, at the Taft School, before the dinner. To-morrow morning he will attend a meeting of the Yale Corporation, of which he is a member.

A harmony conference of Connecticut Republicans with President Taft and United States Senator Brandegee was postponed till to-morrow because of the failure of the President's train to arrive on time. The Republican State Central Committee met, however, and voted to hold the convention to pick delegates to the National Convention in Hartford on April 16 and 17. John S. Light of South Norwalk, formerly Speaker of the House of Representatives, was elected temporary Chairman.

The sentiment of the State Central Committee was practically unanimous for President Taft's renomination, and indications are that the convention will instruct its delegates for the President. Instead of forcing the resignation of Michael Kenealy, Chairman of the State Central Committee, it was decided not to change the committee's personnel till the April convention, when he will retire. Of the thirty-five committee members thirty-three were present. While the outlook for the State ticket and the Legislature was regarded as dubious, the members were enthusiastic over the prospect of renominating Mr. Taft.

President Taft and his party made a water trip around New York yesterday afternoon on their way to New Haven. The train bearing the President was switched at Jersey City aboard a ferry steamer, which docked at the New Haven yards in the Bronx, where the train proceeded.

WICKERSHAM TAFT'S ENVOY.

Represents Him at Wisconsin Convention to Nominate Delegates.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 19.—Attorney General Wickersham will be President Taft's Cabinet representative at the convention where Taft delegates at large will be nominated to go before the primaries to represent Wisconsin at the National Convention, according to a telegram received by E. L. Philipp of Milwaukee today.

It is planned to hold a dinner about the middle of Ferbuary on the occasion of Mr. Wickersham's visit.

BACK TAFT AS A PROGRESSIVE

Nebraskan Republicans Have His Name Placed on Primary Ballot.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 19.—The name of William H. Taft was filed to-day with the Secretary of State to be placed on the Nebraska primary ballot as a Progressive Republican candidate for President. The petition bears the names of fifty Omaha voters.

Franklin A. Shotwell, former Secretary of the Nebraska Progressive Republican League, announces that his purpose is to present the name of President Taft as a progressive "in distinction from an element in the party regarded as standpatters."

DISCIPLINES NAVY WORKERS.

Meyer Takes Battleship from Norfolk to be Repaired.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The battleship New Hampshire has been ordered from Norfolk to the New York Navy Yard for repairs. This order, it is said, is due to the determination by Secretary Meyer not to be dictated to by labor organizations at the Norfolk yard and not to have the state of the work at any time in the latter yard such that the Government will be at the mercy of a strike such as occurred ten days ago there.

It also is the Secretary's intention not to be forced by any set of laboring men to abandon a policy as to reorganization of yard management. The recent trouble at Norfolk was over the introduction of scientific management and the issue of index cards to register the efficiency of all employes just as such cards are used in various parts of the Government service and in many private concerns.

The New York yard, on the other hand, has presented little or no difficulty arising from labor organizations.

$600,000 FOR BONAPARTES

By the Will of the American Widow of the Emperor's Grand-Nephew.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The will of Mme. Caroline Leroy Bonaparte, widow of Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, grand-nephew of the Emperor Napoleon, which was filed for probate to-day, disposes of an estate valued at $600,000.

The will makes provision for all of the children by her two marriages, except a daughter of her first marriage, Mary C. Edgar, now sister Mary de Sales of the Visitation Convent, Baltimore.

Commander Newbold Leor Edgar, U. S. N., and Webster A. Edgar of New York, sons of Mme. Bonaparte, receives the Newport home of their mother. To Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, another son, is bequeathed the jewelry belonging to the famous Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte of Baltimore, and given to her by King Joseph Bonaparte of Westphalia.

Other Bonaparte heirlooms are given to a daughter, Countess Louise de Moltke Huitfeldt of Denmark, and her children. The remainder of the estate is to be distributed equally.

"GAS STRIKE" CALLED OFF.

Never Really Started—Union President is Expelled.

The strike of the Gas Workers' Union, which never showed signs of life, was officially called off at a meeting of the union held last night in Labor Temple, Eighty-fourth Street, near Second Avenue. There were fifty-four persons present, the same number that attended the meeting at which the strike was called.

Henry Kane, the President, was expelled from the union for alleged disloyalty in trying to bring about the strike. John Lyons was elected in his place. Kane was not present at the meeting.

President Lyons said that the expulsion of Kane from the union had been recommended by the American Federation of Labor.

RICHESON NEAR COLLAPSE.

Guards Watch Every Movement—Fears the Death Chair.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, condemned poisoner of Avis Linnell, is on the verge of collapse, and guards at the Charles Street Jail are watching his every movement.

His condition is so precarious that the guards have not told him that Silas Phelps, who killed Sheriff Haskins of Monroe Bridge, must die. On the hope that Gov. Foss would commute Phelps's sentence, Richeson based his faith that his own sentence would be commuted. Every day he asks about Phelps, "Has the Executive Council commuted his sentence?"

Richeson fears the death chair. He is thoroughly familiar with its details, and shudders when discussing them with Harry Butts, his negro cellmate.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Miss Violet Edmands, who was engaged to the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, now under sentence of death, has been in a sanitarium here, it was learned to-day, ever since she left Cambridge, just after Richeson's arrest. Miss Edmands was brought to this city for treatment for nervous breakdown due to the terrific mental strain to which she was subjected at that time.

WILL DIVORCE WAYNE ROOT.

Wife Has Filed Final Complaint in Reno Court.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Jan. 19.—Living in apartments away from general activities of the city Mrs. Mabel J. Root has served the required time here, and to-day filed a divorce complaint against her husband, Wayne A. Root, connected with the New York Wire Cloth Company, 102 Chambers Street. The couple have been married less than four years, but she declares that he tired of her or marital life, or both, and they separated just before she came to Nevada. They have no children.

It is said that no contest of her action will follow, he being satisfied that she obtain a decree.

Wilson Also Lends a Hand—Fight to be Carried Into Caucus if Committee Rejects Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is a fine row brewing among the Democrats in the House, and serious complaints are being made about the leadership of Speaker Clark and Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee. The row is focusing around the efforts of Chairman Henry of the Rules Committee to have an investigation into the so-called Money Trust, the Shipping Trust or Atlantic Pool, and the Harvester Trust, and the efforts of Representative Smith of Texas, Chairman of a sub-committee of the Committee on Inter-State Commerce, to recover jurisdiction of certain bills dealing with inter-State commerce and trust legislation that have been referred to the Judiciary Committee and buried there.

The supporters of both these lines of effort are meeting with the discouraging opposition of Speaker Clark and Mr. Underwood, and some of them are flatly charging that this opposition springs from the fact that both these leaders are candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination and are flirting with big business in the hope of getting its assistance.

It is the progressive, or Bryan, element among the Democrats that is demanding the proposed investigations and the transfer of the trust bills back to the Committee on Inter-State Commerce. It is already demonstrated that the Judiciary Committee of the Democratic House, under the Chairmanship of Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, is just as capacious and thoroughly a morgue as it ever was in the Republican House under the domination of ex-Speaker Cannon.

Mr. Bryan has been urging especially the proposed Money Trust investigation. The argument is advanced that it is essential for the Democrats to make some kind of a record on the trust question for the coming campaign and prepare for legislation that should follow. It is reported to-night that Gov. Woodrow Wilson has also lent some delicate assistance to the matter. This is another evidence of the way in which Gov. Wilson has climbed on to the Bryan platform and is trusting to the Bryan influence for support at the Democratic National Convention.

A few weeks ago the path of the proposed investigations seemed entirely smooth, and the advocates of them were declaring confidently that they had votes enough to put them through. But the opposition that has been manifesting itself recently, under the noiseless but effective leadership of Mr. Clark and Mr. Underwood, has already detached some of the members of the Rules Committee, which is conducting hearings on the investigation proposition, and there are signs that it will detach others. So that to-day Chairman Henry is no longer certain that he can control enough votes to report an investigation resolution.

It was the realization of this weakness that led to the proposal to separate the three proposed investigations and have each stand by itself instead of grouping them under one committee, as was the original plan. The advocates of the investigations have come to the conclusion that they will be stronger separate than together, because each has some support of its own that the others do not have, and it is possible that by a combination all three may be put through.

The supporters of the proposed investigations and of trust legislation are very much in earnest, and they intend to make a hard fight before they admit defeat. The question of the investigations will not stop with the Rules Committee if it is beaten there. It requires only twenty-five names signed to a petition to call a caucus of the Democrats, and the supporters of the investigations are determined to submit the question to a caucus if they are outvoted in the Rules Committee.

They do not believe that Speaker Clark and Mr. Underwood will be willing to carry their opposition into a caucus and face a record vote on the proposition. Under the recent arrangement, such a record vote would be made public, and the two candidates for the Democratic nomination would be forced into the open.

BANCROFT TESTIMONY IN.

Generally Believed That Court Will Deny Young Husband a Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 19.—All the evidence in the case of John Bancroft, Jr., for a divorce from Madeline Dupont Bancroft, was concluded in the Superior Court, in Chambers, late this afternoon. An agreement was reached whereby there will be no oral argument. A decision will probably be announced late in February.

It is the general belief that a divorce will be denied Bancroft. It is also the understanding that the counter suit of the wife will be dropped. The primary reason, it is stated, why the court will probably decide against the young husband is because of suspicion of collusion all through the proceeding.

Near the close of to-day's session it was testified by Dr. Mary Fisher of Philadelphia that Mrs. Bancroft is seriously ill with bronchitis at the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia.

Miss Emma Dollinger of Munich, who said she is Secretary to Adjt. Gen. Max Senna of Munich, testified that nearly two years ago Bancroft tried to attack her in a taxicab in Munich. Later in the day young Bancroft denied this.

Dr. Barton Cook, Professor of Gynecology at the University of Pennsylvania; his assistant, Dr. Henry M. Norris, and Prof. Wilmer Krusen of Temple University, all of Philadelphia, and several Wilmington physicians, including Mayor Howell, all testified it was possible for young Bancroft to be the father of the infant whom he calls Max Heibler, Jr.

Jennie Toman, Mrs. Bancroft's maid, testified that after the birth of the child on April 19, 1911, she heard Bancroft tell his wife that unless she admitted the child was not his he would eject them both. He also said she testified if she would confess he would forgive her and they "would begin all over again."

REBEL ULTIMATUM TO YUAN THE LAST WORD

Immediate Action Demanded from Chinese Premier in Ousting Manchus from Power.

SEEK FOREIGN RECOGNITION

Two Foreign Powers Influencing Yuan, Say Rebels—Fighting Likely if He Doesn't Concede Their Demands.

NANKING, Jan. 19.—The Republican Government sent an appeal to the powers for recognition to-day. This took the form of a circular dispatched to Washington, Tokio, London, Paris, Berlin, and St. Petersburg, and was signed by Wang Chung-Wei, the Foreign Minister of the Republican Cabinet.

The terms of the circular are:

"The Manchu Government, having entered into negotiation with the Republic of China for the purpose of abdicating its entire sovereign rights, powers, and privileges, we fervently pray for recognition in order to avoid a disastrous interregnum."

A most important step was taken by the Republican Government to-day when it telegraphed an ultimatum to Premier Yuan Shi-Kai at Peking. The terms of the document are very drastic and are substantially as follows:

The abdication of the throne and the surrender of the sovereign powers are demanded.

No Manchu may participate in the provisional Government of China.

The capital of the provisional Government cannot be established at Peking.

Premier Yuan Shi-Kai cannot participate in the provisional Government of China until the republic has been recognized by the foreign powers, and the country has been restored to peace and harmony.

To-day's decided action by the Republican Government is due to Premier Yuan Shi-Kai's demand that Dr. Sun Yat Sen resign the Presidency, permitting Yuan Shi-Kai to exercise sovereign powers until the National Convention, which is to be called to decide on the form of government of China, shall have reached a conclusion. In the meantime Premier Yuan Shi-Kai desires the Court to retire, temporarily transferring its powers to him. The Court, however, objected to leaving Peking until the National Convention had reached a decision.

Ultimatum the Last Word.

The ultimatum to Premier Yuan Shi-Kai contains, according to the Republican leaders, their last word.

President Sun Yat Sen said to-day to The Associated Press:

"I have taken an oath to oust the Manchu rulers and restore peace to the country before resigning. I have taken an oath to establish a republic in China, and if I consented to the proposals laid down by Yuan Shi-Kai I should be foresworn.

"I am convinced that a republic is not only practicable, but that it would be the best thing for China. Those asserting otherwise know nothing about the Chinese.

"China cannot permit outsiders to dictate her form of Government. This republic is now an established fact. Nothing can swerve me from what I consider my duty to my fellow-countrymen.

"Undoubtedly the best thought of China unanimously supports the republic. There is no question of North and South. I am firmly convinced that the people of eighteen provinces are in favor of a republic.

"We are now confident of the righteousness of our cause, and of the superiority of our military strength. If Yuan Shi-Kai persists in obstructing, our armies will be ordered to march northward."

President Sun Yat Sen also declares that entire harmony exists within the ranks of the Republicans.

Republican officials assert that one and possibly two foreign powers are urging Yuan Shi-Kai to insist that he should be constituted the head of the entire Government, and that Yuan Shi-Kai has received the assurance of those powers of assistance. Hence his change of attitude.

Yuan Shi-Kai, it is stated, agreed a few days ago to the unequivocal retirement of the Manchus, and to the recognition of a republic as the Government of the Southern provinces. He accepted the idea of a dual administration, the North to be under Yuan Shi-Kai and the South under Dr. Sun Yat Sen, pending the decision of the National Convention on the future Government, which is to be held at a neutral point. There is reason to believe that this arrangement may be the final outcome of the negotiations between the Republicans and the Imperialists.

Tang Shao Yi is still hopeful that both the South and the North under such an agreement would be recognized by the foreign powers, and that peace would be restored. The convention could then be properly held, in which event there is every indication that the delegates from the provinces would almost unanimously support a republic.

It appears now to be absolutely certain that fighting between the revolutionists and the imperialists will be resumed on the morning of Jan. 28, unless Premier Yuan Shi-Kai concedes the demands of the Republican Government.

Split On Abdication.

PEKING, Jan. 19.—The Princes of the imperial clan, a number of leading Manchu officials, and several members of the Government held a protracted conference this morning with the Empress Dowager at the palace, but again separated without arriving at a decision on the question of abdication.

The leading Princes favored an unconditional abdication of the Throne. Three of the younger Princes, together with Tieh-Liang, the former Tartar General at Nanking, would not, however, agree to the Court's retirement to Jehol, although they did not suggest an alternative.

There has been considerable effervescence in Peking throughout the day among both foreign residents and the Chinese. Many rumors were rife of the possibility of a Manchu outbreak which, however, appears unlikely at present.

The ex-Regent, Prince Chun, and the former Premier, Prince Ching, visited Premier Yuan Shi-Kai this afternoon and had a long conference with him. It appears that the Court has not produced the gold it promised to provide, and the imperial soldiers do not show any anxiety to fight for glory.

It is reported in Chinese circles that the ex-Regent Prince Chun suggests the abdication of the Throne, the Court to remain in Peking, and Yuan Shi-Kai to establish a provisional northern Government at Tien-Tsin pending the decision of the National Convention as to the future form of Government.

OUR TROOPS LAND.

Detachment of 15th Infantry at Once Starts Guarding Peking Railway.

PEKING, Jan. 19.—The Fifteenth Regiment of United States Infantry, which is to act as a guard for the protection of a section of the railroad from Peking to the coast, arrived at Chin Wang-Tao to-day on board the transport Logan. Capt. J. H. Reeves, Military Attaché of the United States Legation, was on the quay waiting to greet the troops as they disembarked.

The American troops on landing were inspected by the commander of the expedition. A detachment then moved from Chin Wang-Tao along the railway, where they took over the duty of guarding the line from Tang-Shan to Lanchow from the British troops, who assembled and returned to Tien-Tsin.

Capt. Reeves made all arrangements for the troop trains, while barracks were purchased on behalf of the United States Government, and stoves and other equipment at the railway stations were taken over from the British troops.

Over 300 of the American troops are to be quartered in the new warehouse of the American Trading Company at Tien-Tsin, which had been rented for the purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The recognition of the Republic of China was directly thrust on the attention of this Government to-day. The State Department received to-day from Wang Chung-Wei, the Foreign Minister of the provisional republic, a circular note, as sent to the other interested powers, appealing for recognition, based on the agreement with the Manchu Government for the abdication of its sovereign rights and powers.

No official comment was made on the note, but it is known that this Government desires to wait until the new Chinese régime is established de facto before considering recognition of the republic.

MANCHUS MENACE YUAN.

Threats Follow Palace Conference, is Report—Europeans Flee to Legation Quarters.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 20.—Extravagant rumors are circulating in Peking that as a consequence of yesterday's conference at the palace the Manchu soldiers have threatened to kill Yuan Shi-Kai, says a dispatch dated Friday night and sent by the correspondent of The Daily Mail.

The correspondent adds that some of the European families living near the Chinese Foreign Office took refuge in the legation quarter. Three special trains are waiting at the Peking station for an unknown object.

SHAW SCORES PHILADELPHIA.

"Who Am I to Question Her Right to be Ridiculous," He Asks.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 20.—The experiences of the Irish Players in Philadelphia have moved Bernard Shaw to this characteristic outburst:

"The occurrence is too ordinary to be worth any comment. All decent people are arrested in America. For that reason I refused all invitations to go there. Besides, who am I that I should question Philadelphia's right to make itself ridiculous?

"I warned the Irish Players that America is being governed largely by a mysterious race, probably one of the lost tribes of Israel, calling themselves American Gaels.

"It is a dangerous country for genuine Irishmen and Irishwomen. American Gaels are the real playboys of the Western World.

"We are none the less grateful on this side to Col. Roosevelt for his public and, no doubt, representative, expression of contempt for this blackguardly agitation against art and literature which has made the names Synge, Yeats, and Lady Gregory famous and has called the attention of Europe to the fact that Ireland is a nation, with a specific and splendid national genius, and not merely a province of England."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—At a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Carey to-day the eleven members of the Irish Players and Manager L. A. Blumberg of the Adelphi Theatre were held for court in $500 bail each after several persons, among them two clergymen, had testified that the play was immoral.

Two priests, Father McGarrity and Father Heegan, denounced "The Playboy of the Western World" as "disgustingly immoral," "blasphemous," and "obscene."

Father McGarrity declared the play was degrading on account of "its adoration of a patricide," and pointed to certain passages which he characterized as "disgusting with immorality."

Former Assistant District Attorney William A. Gray, counsel for the plaintiffs, said that the McNichol statute under which the prosecution was brought was intended for just such exigencies as arise out of the arrest of the Irish Players, and contended that the presentation of "The Playboy" clearly constituted a violation of the law, which provides for a $1,000 fine and imprisonment.

In the discussion that arose over the morality or immorality of the play, Attorney Adolph Brown, for the defendants, held up some of Shakespeare's works as immoral plays. Magistrate Carey cut short the argument by announcing that as the McNichol enactment was new and never had been tested he would hold the defendants on general principles in order to get a ruling on the law.

Lady Gregory, under whose patronage the Irish Players are touring the country, was present, as were all the defendants. They are L. A. Blumberg, Eithne Magee, Sara Allgood, Eileen O'Dougherty, Maire ni Shiubhlaigh, Cathleen Nesbitt, J. M. Kerrigan, Arthur Sinclair, J. A. O'Rourke, U. Wright, Fred O'Donovan and Sidney J. Morgan.

BUYS THE BEIT HOUSE.

Capt. Guest, Who Married Miss Phipps, Acquires London Mansion.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Capt. the Hon. Frederick Guest, who married Miss Amy Phipps, is the purchaser of the house in Park Lane which was built by the late Alfred Beit.

SIGN OF ROYAL ENGAGEMENT.

Mecklenburg-Strelitz Palace, Under Repair, May Be Princess's Home.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Extensive repairs, which are being made on the Grand Ducal Palace at Neustrelitz, the seat of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, are taken there to mean that the castle is being made ready for Grand Duke Adolph Frederick, eldest son of the reigning Grand Duke, and Princess Victoria Luise, youngest child and only daughter of Emperor William, according to a dispatch from Neustrelitz. The dispatch reiterates a statment published here Tuesday that it is generally expected announcement of the engagement of the pair will be made on Jan. 27, Emperor William's birthday.

Court officials in Berlin still refuse to answer questions concerning the reported engagement of the Grand Duke and the Princess.

JOHN REDMOND BETTER.

Means to Attend Belfast Meeting if He Must Be Carried There.

DUBLIN, Jan. 19.—John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader in the House of Commons, was able to leave his bedroom to-day.

He says he is determined to attend the Home Rule meeting at Belfast on Feb. 8, even if he has to be carried there.

Lost Passage Ticket Strands Pastor.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 19.—The Rev. H. T. Purkiss of Scranton, Penn., is stranded here, having been obliged to land from the liner Philadelphia on account of the loss of his ticket. Mr. Purkiss, when the vessel was a few hours out from Southampton, reported the disappearance of his valise containing his ticket and some money. The valise was found subsequently in the steerage, but there were no tickets nor valuables in it.

Arrest American Fugitive in Cuba.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Jan. 19.—W. J. Kelley, an American who is said to have escaped from Jacksonville, Fla., where he was under a sentence of thirty years' imprisonment, was arrested here to-day by the Cuban authorities.

AMBUSHED MOSLEMS WAYLAY ITALIANS

Pour Galling Fire on Troops Marching from Tripoli, but Are Forced to Retreat.

SEIZE ANOTHER FRENCH BOAT

Italy Suspected the Manouba of Carrying Turkish Officers—The Carthage Reported Released.

TRIPOLI, Jan. 19.—A terrific attack was made by a large body of Turks and Arabs yesterday on an Italian column which was on the march about ten miles from the town of Tripoli.

The Italian troops, which consisted of detachments of all arms, left Tripoli early in the morning for Ghirgarish, a small oasis situated about ten or eleven miles along the coast to the west of the town, and surrounded by a number of mud forts, which had hitherto given shelter to Arab irregulars.

Suddenly, as the soldiers were marching along the road which runs parallel to the coast, they were attacked in a series of onslaughts by a large force of Turks and Arabs.

The Italian Army, which included three battalions of line infantry, a battalion of grenadiers, two batteries of artillery, two squadrons of cavalry, and other details, took up position after the first onslaught by the Turks, and a galling fire was poured in on them. The Turks and Arabs, who were in considerable strength, were under cover in the brush of the oasis.

Artillery fire from the Italian batteries caused the enemy to withdraw for a time, but they returned later with heavy reinforcements, and succeeded in turning the Italians' right. The Italian commander succeeded in rallying his force, and after several hours' fighting the Turks finally retreated to the desert.

Details of the losses are not yet reported.

The military situation in Tripoli the last month to all appearances has not undergone any change. All the fighting has been begun by the Turks, who have repeatedly attacked the Italian troops at different points, and have just as often been repulsed.

As a matter of fact, however, the Italian commanders have been using time as an ally. They have been busily engaged in strengthening the positions held by their troops and preparing for a great advance into the interior. Transport on an enormous scale has been gathered together here, and material for the construction of a railroad into the desert is arriving in large quantities.

The only possible interruption to the plans of the Italian staff is that peace may be declared at an early date.

The Arabs do not understand the reasons for the Italian delay, and they are impressed with the idea that the Italian Army is unable to encounter effectively the insignificant number of Moslems opposing it. Under the circumstances even should the Turkish troops be withdrawn, the Arabs are determined to continue the fight against the Italians.

As punishment to the inhabitants of Zoara who fired on Italian boats, the warships Carlo Alberto, Iride, Fulmine, and Ciprio Casiope bombarded that locality to-day, destroying the barracks, the residence of the Kaimakan, or administrator, and sweeping the Turkish trenches. A number of Turks were seen fleeing in disorder. Many of them were struck by Italian shells.

TUNIS, Jan. 19.—Some Italian destroyers to-day seized the French steamer Manouba, bound to Tunis from Marseilles. The Manouba is a mail boat belonging to the French Line. She is carrying ninety-nine passengers, including twenty-seven Turkish nurses belonging to the company of the Red Crescent, which has the same object as the Red Cross Society.

The steamship company declares that the Manouba was not carrying contraband of any kind. In spite of this the vessel was arrested and taken to Cagliari in Sardinia.

The Italian officers who effected the seizure of the Manouba declare that the reason for her arrest was that they believed Turkish officers were on board disguised as nurses.

Italian destroyers also stopped and searched the German steamer Schleswig of the North German Lloyd, which left Marseilles on Wednesday, reached here yesterday, and is due at Alexandria on Jan. 22.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The seizure of the French Line steamer Manouba by Italian destroyers while that vessel was proceeding to-day from Marseilles to Tunis has aroused intense feelings in political and commercial circles. Premier Poincaré has instructed the French Ambassador at Rome to protest against the seizure, and several members of the Chamber of Deputies declare they will interpellate Premier Poincaré about it. The Premier has announced that he will make a declaration on the subject Monday.

The association of ship workers of France has written a letter to M. Poincaré pointing out the injury to neutral shipping caused by the Turco-Italian war as clearly demonstrating the urgent necessity for the establishment of an international prize court, and asking him to do his utmost to hasten the ratification by Parliament of The Hague Convention of 1907, the declaration of London of 1909, and an additional protocol thereto of 1910.

No official confirmation has been received of the release of the steamer Carthage, which was seized by Italian war vessels some days ago, and taken to Cagliari in Sardinia, because she was carrying two aeroplanes, which the Italians regarded as contraband. The Eclair published a dispatch this morning from Rome, saying that the Carthage had sailed for Tunis.

MARSEILLES, Jan. 19.—The steamer Manouba, which is the regular Tunis mail boat, carried, when she was seized by the Italian warships, a Turkish medical mission consisting of twenty-seven members of the Red Crescent, headed by Drs. Eymin Bey and Rifki Effendi. She also had on board sixty-seven sacks of mail for Tunis and one for Tripoli.

ROME, Jan. 19.—The Italian Government telegraphed the authorities at Cagliari to-night to release immediately the steamer Carthage, which was recently seized by the Italians with her cargo. It is said that the steamer Manouba will also be released after a number of Turks who are on board her are taken off.

The order for the release of the Carthage was sent after the French Chargé d'Affaires here had assured the Marquis San Giuliano, Foreign Minister, that Aviator Duval, who was a passenger on the steamer, had promised the French Government to place neither himself nor his aeroplane at the service of either the Italians or the Turks in Tripoli, for which port the Carthage was bound.

BREMEN, Jan. 19.—A private wireless dispatch received here says the North German Lloyd steamer Schleswig, after having been held up by two Italian warships near the Sardinian coast and searched, was permitted to proceed on her voyage to Alexandria.

GERMAN AIMS FOR PEACE.

Object of Kiderlen-Waechter's Visit to Rome—For Renewing Triple Alliance.

ROME, Jan. 19.—Although it is officially announced that the object of the visit of Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German Foreign Secretary, who is expected to arrive on Friday, is to meet Foreign Minister San Giuliano, the real reason for his coming is to discuss possible conditions of peace between Italy and Turkey, and the amount Italy is ready to pay as indemnity to Turkey for the loss of Tripoli.

During the visit of Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter the basis for a renewal of the Triple Alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy will also be discussed.

Evidently aiming at exerting an influence on Italy's decision, Austria has made a move intended to revive the Roman question, having put forward the inquiry whether an international guarantee might be found with a view to effect the freedom and independence of the Papacy under present conditions in Italy.

Shortly after the taking of Rome in 1870 Italy herself might have accepted such an international guarantee, which the Marquis Emilio Visconti Venosta, who was then Italian Foreign Minister, suggested, but now it would certainly be rejected on the ground that it was foreign interference in Italian internal affairs.

KING'S VISIT HERE A GUESS.

Only Basis So Far Is a Suggestion in a London Paper.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The statement that King George and Queen Mary will go to Canada in 1914, and possibly visit the United States, is said here to be based on pure conjecture.

Thus far the only foundation for it is an article in The Pall Mall Gazette on contemplated royal visits to Continental countries, in which the writer suggested that King George might, after going to France and Germany, determine to extend his travels to the Dominion across the Atlantic, in which case he would possibly visit the United States.

The Pall Mall Gazette, under its new management, is rapidly earning a reputation for romancing, and its suggestion of a royal transatlantic visit is not even regarded in the light of "intelligent anticipation" of future events.

BIG GAINS FOR Y. M. C. A. FUND

Over a Thousand Letters, Bringing $20,000, Come in One Mail.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Considerably over 1,000 letters, containing donations from a penny to £200, and aggregating £4,052, reached Guildhall by this morning's post for the Young Men's Christian Association fund. This makes the total £52,153. Every post is pouring in subscriptions from all parts of the country.

The utmost enthusiasm prevailed at to-day's meeting of collectors, every one feeling that the corner was well turned and success well in sight.

Among to-day's subscriptions was one from T. B. Williamson of San Francisco of £5, and a sovereign from New York. Thus far there have been nearly 5,000 subscribers to the fund.

MACEDONIA IN TURMOIL.

Murders and Bomb Outrages Common—Secret Petition to Foreign Powers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 19.—The commission of inquiry sent by the Ottoman Government to investigate the conditions in Macedonia shortly after the recent dynamite outrages in that region have reported that the greatest dejection is manifested by the people. They have, according to the report of the commission, prepared a secret petition to the foreign powers asking for intervention.

Assassinations are multiplying day by day and dynamite outrages everywhere are on the increase. Even officers of the Turkish Army are unable to hide their gloom. Everywhere the people speak of a general rising, which, if it does not occur immediately, will take place in the Spring.

The conditions are due to the presence of officials who are utterly unworthy of the confidence the Turkish Government has placed in them. They disarm the Christian populations and supply arms to the Mussulmans. Innocent people are condemned by them on the merest suspicion and are cast into prison.

At Istib, about ninety miles north of Saloniki, violence and assassination continued throughout an entire week, and there, as in other towns and villages, consternation prevails. Early in December a bomb outrage in a mosque at Istib caused the death of twelve persons. The Turks avenged the outrage on the Bulgarians, of whom they killed and wounded a large number.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Turkish troops have had a sharp fight with a Bulgarian band near Kratovo, a town of 6,000 inhabitants in the vilayet of Kosovo, a short distance east of Uskup, says a dispatch to a news agency from Salonika. Five of the Bulgarians, including their leader, were killed, while the Turks lost one man. It is said that bombs and a number of important documents were found on the dead Bulgarians.

BRITISH COTTON STRIKE ENDS

Coal Miners' Delegates to Give Notice of a National Strike.

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 19.—The dispute in the cotton trade, which culminated in a lockout affecting about 300,000 men on Dec. 27, has been settled. The question at issue between employers and workers was the employment of non-unionist labor. All the mills will be reopened on Monday.

The operatives by a two-to-one vote agreed to accept a truce for a year. This is regarded as a victory for the employers. The rank and file of the operatives are satisfied with the settlement, but the union leaders are not, as their difficulties in persuading non-unionists to join the unions have increased.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 19.—The conference of delegates of the Miners' Federation has decided to give notice forthwith of a National stoppage of work at the coal mines in Great Britain. The end of February, however, is the first date at which the notice can become effective.

The conference of delegates decided to add to the notice an intimation to the employers that the men are ready to continue negotiations for a settlement. The conference has adjourned until Feb. 1.

As both sides appear to be heartily desirous of finding a way out of the deadlock there is a general feeling that a National strike, which would affect about 900,000 men, will be averted.

FIERCE FIGHT IN ECUADOR.

Quito and Guayaquil Forces Lose 1,000—Latter Are Defeated.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 19.—Over 1,000 men were killed and wounded in a battle yesterday at Yaguache, to the northeast of this city, between an army supporting the Quito Government under the command of Gen. Julio Andrade, formerly Ecuadorean Minister to Colombia, and an army of Guayaquil troops, supporting the provisional Government proclaimed by Gen. Montero under the command of Gen. Flavio Alfaro.

The latter's forces, which were attacked by Gen. Andrade, were defeated, and Gen. Alfaro was wounded.

France Wants $4,400,000 for Airships.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The French Government has decided to ask the Chamber of Deputies for an appropriation of $4,400,000 for the construction of aeroplanes for military purposes.

King George at Suez.

SUEZ, Jan. 19.—King George and Queen Mary arrived here on board the steamer Medina on their return journey to England from India to-day.

King George Shot Altogether Thirty-seven of Them—Nineteen Rhinoceri Also Fell.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 20.—Jacomb Hood, artist for The Graphic, who had special permission to make sketches of King George's shooting expedition in Nepal, accompanies the drawings he sends to his paper with a letter, in the course of which he writes:

"The Maharajah of Nepal and his three sons spared no trouble and expense to give us all a good time during our ten days' visit as his guests in his tiger-infested jungles.

"There were two camps, in each of which some days were spent, which were furnished with every comfort, including electric light. To show you how we have to rough it in the jungle, I inclose the ordinary breakfast menu:

"Porridge. Bekti Maitre d'Hotel. Oeufs aux choux saucisses. Grillies. Curry de legumes viandes. Froides. Café.

"The roads into the camps were made more than forty miles up through the virgin forest from Thori, the nearest railway line on the borders of Nepal, and motor cars kept up communication, sometimes running into tigers or rhinoceri on the road.

"The game in the way of rhinos and tigers was plentiful, and an excellent organization was employed for effecting its destruction.

"His Majesty shot altogether thirty-seven tigers. He has been shooting remarkably well, and it is not often that he had to give a second barrel.

"From an artist's point of view this was to be regretted, as I have seen no exciting incident of a tiger charging an elephant or trying to pull a sportsman out of his howdah. No sooner had his stripes broken cover than he bit the dust, as the saying is, without the chance of biting anything or any one else.

"Nineteen rhinos also fell. They showed more fight, as there are only two places in their thick hides in which a bullet may bring death, and when wounded only they are apt to charge.

"I send drawings of two of his Majesty's equerries, who had an experience of a fight with an enraged rhino.

"Major Wigram was on a pad elephant, and Capt. Godfrey Fausset was in a howdah. He eventually shot his rhino, and its horn was the biggest of any taken. Christmas Day, after service in a tent, a long line of the Maharajah's servants brought around costly presents for every one of us and elaborate Christmas cards from himself and one from each of his sons.

"To the King the Maharajah's present was a truly princely collection of all the wild animals of the country, in cages, some of them very rare. They were carried into camp by coolies in their cages and placed in three lines.

"One of the most difficult to capture was a kyang, or wild ass, from the borders of Tibet. A snow leopard, different sorts of bears, and various kinds of deer, from the large shou, with antlers like the red deer, to the little home deer and musk deer; every sort of bird, and fishes, dead, of course, were represented, and baskets of every fruit and vegetable known completed the gift."

CZAR'S PERSIAN GRIP GROWS.

Northern Province Rapidly Passes Into Occupation by His Troops.

URUMIAH, Persia, Jan. 19.—The whole of the Province of Azerbaijan, in the northwest of Persia, bordering on Turkish territory, is rapidly passing into the occupation of Russian troops.

Seven Russian military posts have been established along the road from this city to Khoi, a distance of about 120 miles.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is still hope of an amicable adjustment of the claims of the fourteen Americans who were taken to Persia by W. Morgan Shuster, the deposed Treasurer General of Persia. F. E. Cairns, who was left in charge of the Treasury office when Mr. Shuster left, reports in a telegram to the State Department to-day that the negotiations were proceeding satisfactorily, and that an adjustment is expected in a short time.

MORGAN GIVES $700 ORGAN.

Gift to Swiss Church in Memory of a Concert He Heard There.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 19.—In remembrance of a concert he heard two years ago in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas at Fribourg, J. Pierpont Morgan has sent $700 to the church, to be used in the purchase of a new organ.

The Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas is a Gothic structure, the foundations of which were laid in 1185. The edifice is rich in ancient works of art, including stained glass windows of the fourteenth century, but the best known of the furnishings is the world-famous organ with its 74 stops and 7,800 pipes. The organ was built in 1824.

In the Summer two organ concerts are held daily in the cathedral, and it was probably at one of these that Mr. Morgan heard the music which prompted his gift.

EGAN DINES DANISH KING.

Return Honor Paid for Our Sending the Fleet to Denmark.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 19.—Maurice F. Egan, the United States Minister, and Mrs. Egan, gave a dinner to-night at the Legation to King Frederick and a number of Court dignitaries, diplomats, and other distinguished personages.

This is the first invitation accepted by the King this season, and is regarded as a return for the honor the United States paid to Denmark in sending the Atlantic fleet to Copenhagen last Spring.

SIR JAMES DEWAR STARTLES SCIENTISTS

London Audience Enthralled by Novel Experiments at Lecture on Heat.

COLD BELOW HUMAN THOUGHT

How Metals Lose Their Properties Under Such Conditions—No Resistance to Electricity.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Brilliant experiments are always expected when Sir James Dewar lectures. His talk at the Royal Society to-night was no exception. Across the great theatre Sir James had drawn a thermometer scale such as a giant might have used for measuring temperatures, but most of the scale was far below the freezing point of water. Indeed, it went far down beyond even the freezing point of air, and suggested cold regions almost beyond human thought.

Although he lectured on heat, it was really the absence of heat that he was talking about. In vacuum vessels he had stored up liquid air, which he allowed to drip from the top of the theatre, perhaps thirty-one feet above his head. There were even moments when one might almost have expected the fiercely cold liquid to have touched him, but, as he explained, it did not matter at all, as the drops of cold air had long since lost terrors for those who worked with them. Even small drops of liquid hydrogen were allowed to drop on the floor from a height of eight feet, but these usually vanished in little rings before they reached the floor.

The more serious part of Sir James Dewar's lecture had to do with the effect of low temperatures on metals. Somewhere about the condition where there is no heat at all, all metals and gases seem to be much the same. They lose all their usual properties under great cold. Gold, copper, and platinum have no resistance to electricity or heat, and almost all other elements lose what is known as their special heat.

The curious thing, according to Sir James, is that none of these things tend toward absolute zero, no heat at all. All matter appears to obey laws which are different from those that hold in the warmer world we live in.

RIOT IN A CHURCH.

Many Hurt in Clash When Lisbon Priest Denounces Separation Law.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—Many persons were injured to-day at Santo Bartholomeu in a conflict with the militia. A priest attacked the separation law from the pulpit, and announced that he would close the church. Republicans among his auditors protested, and a fight between them and the clericals ensued.

The military was called out and drove the warring factions from the church, but in doing so many persons were injured.

Sale today—at Saks'
Men's Silk Knitted Scarfs at 1.15
values $2 and $3

¶ The knitted scarf is a popular choice with the man who has a taste for smart neckwear. We ourselves think it one of the prettiest scarfs that ever nestled in a fold collar. And in accordeon effects it is just about as clever as a scarf can hope to be. It is accordeon silk scarfs which occasion this sale. We made a handsome trade for 600 of them and are going to sell them at 1.15 each, instead of $2 and $3, which are their customary prices.

¶ Combinations are black and white, black and navy, black and red, black and helio, black and purple, and all the other desirable combinations, in plain stripe and hobble stripes. A value, Gentlemen, just good enough to be a Saks value—and just too good to be anybody else's.

Men's $3 Wool Hats at $2

¶ A soft answer turneth away wrath—and a soft wool hat maketh light of the cold. In addition to which, the soft wool hat is a vogue in masculine hat styles. It is a welcome change from the uncompromising hard felt Derby, can be set firmly on the head and kept there, and in the new "Continental" shapes has raciness and snap in its lines.

¶ These hats come from Germany and are perfect in workmanship and finish. There are six different styles and sixteen different colors, the latter including browns, grays, greens, tans, and a dozen different hues between, as well as white, and some rich looking heather effects that are smart to a fault. Finished with self bands, silk ribbed bands and taffeta bands, and many with ribbed corduroy brims. Get one.

SHOW HOW PACKERS FIXED MEAT PRICES

Former Employes Say the Companies Exchanged Memoranda of Their Daily Shipments.

BEEF COST SHEETS IN COURT

Used to Regulate Prices, According to the Government—Four Firms Sold 5,000,000 Pounds a Week Here.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Several thousand original memorandum cost sheets for beef used by Armour & Co. at its South Omaha plant, between March and September, 1910, were introduced in evidence by the Government in the packers' trial to-day.

They are the first original data dealing with the actual figuring of the beef cost within the period covered by the indictment, brought to light in the trial, and show the allowances made for by-products by the test cost system. The system, the Government declares, was used by the packers as the basis of fixing prices. The sheets were produced by Edward J. McAdam, office manager at the South Omaha plant of Armour & Co.

Earlier in the day, Everett B. Dill and Perry N. Waterhouse, formerly managers for the National Packing Company at Boston from 1903 to 1906, testified that it was the practice for the representatives of Armour & Co., Swift & Co., and Morris & Co., to exchange memoranda of the daily shipments, margins, and selling prices. They said that in this way the representative of each company knew what the other was doing. Sometimes this information was obtained by telephone, and at other times the branch managers made the rounds of the other offices to get the figures.

Waterhouse testified that when he was in charge of the National Packing Company's business in Boston, the managers met every Saturday to exchange this information. He said they made daily and weekly reports to the main offices in Chicago, regarding the price obtained on sales.

Dill said there were ten independent packers selling meat in Boston in 1905 and 1906. He described the butchering of cattle for the Jewish trade and said Swift & Co. and the National Packing Company had special departments to supply this trade, receiving two-cents a pound more for the meat than for that from beeves slaughtered in the regular way. He said that in 1906 the four big Chicago packers sold 5,000,000 pounds of beef a week in New York City, divided as follows:

	Pounds.
Armour & Co.	1,200,000
Swift & Co.	1,000,000
Morris & Co.	800,000
National Packing Company	2,000,000

Dill estimated that 80 per cent. of the fresh meat supplied to New York City was shipped by Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., the National Packing Company, Cudahy & Co., and the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company.

Counsel for the defense attempted to show that the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company sold three times as much beef in New York City in 1905 and 1906 as Armour, Swift, Morris, or the Nation Packing Company and that the Cudahy shipments exceeded those of Morris & Co. The witness doubted the accuracy of these comparisons.

Edward J. McAdam, office manager for Armour & Co. at Omaha since 1905, identified a letter from the Chicago offices of Armour & Co., dated July 11, 1910, giving a list of allowances to be made for by-products in figuring the memorandum test cost of beef. It allowed $2.75 a head for killing, 35 cents a head for offal, 8 cents a pound for fat, and 3 cents a pound for hides.

The witness produced several hundred specimen beef test cost sheets for 1910, which were offered in evidence. McAdam was on the stand when court adjourned.

Walter A. Wall, for eighteen years an employe of Morris & Co. in responsible capacities, continued his story of the packers' business secrets. After saying he was now a clerk with the St. Louis Independent Packing Company, Wall was asked by Attorney Borders if that company used a beef test cost, and replied that it did.

Q.—Did you ever know a packing company that did not use a test cost system for handling beef? A.—I only worked for two and both of them used that system.

Q.—Did you send the weekly reports on shipments and the test cost on beef to Edward Morris or Ira Morris? A.—I thought it went to Edward Morris, head of the company, but I would not be certain.

Q.—Could the allowances made in figuring the test cost of beef be determined from these weekly reports? A.—No.

On redirect examination Wall said the books of the branch houses were kept in accordance with instructions from the Chicago office.

WOULD SHUT UP FACTORIES.

Supt. Miller Asks Power to Act When Fire Laws Are Violated.

In a brief submitted yesterday to Senator Robert F. Wagner, Chairman of the New York State Factory Investigating Commission, Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings of Manhattan, asks for the building authorities summary powers to shut up any factory or loft building until the necessary work has been done to protect its occupants against fire. This is only one of a number of provisions recommended. His brief reviews the conflict of laws and regulations pertaining to fire protection and cities his efforts covering a period of ten years to get more centralized control.

Supt. Miller makes the point that it is as important to safeguard the exit of occupants from manufacturing and loft buildings as it is to protect their lives while they are at work in these buildings. Whether a building is fireproof or not, Supt. Miller demands that the exit facilities be made safe and kept unincumbered, and that to this end the number of persons allowed to each floor should be limited. To fully protect fire exits Supt. Miller recommends the building of fire towers as against the present antiquated and ill-advised fire escapes, or, in other words, he asks for a sufficiently broad and safe staircase, with wide, easy steps, separated from the rest of the building by a fire wall, with doors so built that every occupant can leave his place at the first alarm of fire, pass along the most direct means of exit and get out of the building without delay. In summarizing his brief, Supt. Miller emphasizes these points:

"Radical measures, putting to test the courage of your commission, are necessary for proper solution of the question of the safety of factory workers and others against fire; provision for systematic inspection to see that safe conditions are maintained; ample authority to the administrative officers to secure compliance with the provisions of law; fire drill or at least adequate instructions to employes in all workshops and factories; the jurisdiction over exit facilities, and inspection in connection therewith, vested with the same officials that administer the building law; the occupancy of a new building or a change of occupancy of any existing building prohibited until a certificate has been issued by the proper authorities."

FIXED PRICES OF FLOUR

But Nebraska Millers Recall Plans Made When Reporters Were Present.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 19.—The South Platte Millers' Association received a shock last night when it was found that three newspaper reporters had sat through the afternoon meeting of the association and had heard the mill owners make all plans for controlling the prices of flour, which is to be sold in Nebraska this year. State authorities are said to be considering a prosecution of the association for restraining trade.

The association comprises the owners of practically all the flour mills south of the Platte River in Nebraska, and from admissions made at the meeting, it is now known that the millers north of the Platte already have an organization for controlling prices. The reporters mixed with the millers and went into the meeting without having been recognized, but were thought to be members of the association. Later, when it was discovered the whole scheme was known, the millers hastily recalled the Price-Fixing Committee and declared the deal off.

CLARK-FOLK TRUCE.

Each Agrees to Abide by Decision of Missouri Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—The first open skirmish between the Wilson and Harmon forces for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency came to-day, when issue was joined between ex-Gov. Folk of Missouri and Speaker Champ Clark. Mr. Folk is admitted by his friends to be not a candidate for his own sake, but merely a stalking horse to obtain the Missouri delegation for Gov. Wilson. Mr. Clark insists that he wants the nomination for himself, but the Folk people have charged that he is using his candidacy merely to win votes for Gov. Harmon.

These charges and countercharges have torn the Democracy of Missouri. Recently Mr. Folk, in order to end dissensions—and, according to the Clark people, to give himself a graceful retreat—challenged Mr. Clark to rest his case on the verdict of a State Democratic Convention to be held at Joplin, Mo., on Feb. 20. The proposal was put squarely up to Mr. Clark to-day, and he accepted without hesitation.

The pledges of the two men are as follows:

Speaker Clark—"So far as I am concerned, the decision of the Missouri Democracy settles the Presidential matter. If, by any accident I lose Missouri, I will forbid the further use of my name in that connection and will support the nominee of the Joplin Convention. I am glad Gov. Folk promises not to bolt."

Former Gov. Folk—"It is essential for the party welfare in Missouri that there be some end to discord, and I am willing to do all that I can to bring about that internal peace so necessary to the party success. In accord with the idea I ask that Mr. Clark join with me in agreeing that the one who loses the instructions of the Missouri Democratic Convention to be held in Joplin, Feb. 20, shall refuse to allow the further use of his name, either in or out of Missouri, in connection with the Presidential nomination to be made in Baltimore, and that he will in good faith support the nominee of the Democracy of Missouri."

AWARDS WARSHIP CONTRACTS

Eight-Hour Law First to Apply to the Oklahoma and Nevada.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Secretary of the Navy will sign contracts to-morrow for the construction of the new battleships Oklahoma and Nevada. The award for the construction of the former is made to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Massachusetts and for the latter to the New York Shipbuilding Company of Camden, N. J. The amount bid in each case is within a few thousand dollars of $6,000,000 for hull and machinery. The Oklahoma is to be built for the installation of Curtiss turbines and the Nevada will be provided with reciprocating engines.

These are the first two vessels to be built under the restriction imposed by Congress that the contractor shall comply with the eight-hour law. Secretary Meyer found it necessary before finally making the awards to secure from the Attorney General an interpretation of the law. The language of the law is, "that no part of this appropriation for the construction and machinery of battleships shall be expended for construction of any battleships by any person, firm, or corporation, which has not at the time of the commencement and during the construction of said vessels established an eight-hour work day for all employes, laborers, and mechanics, engaged or to be engaged in the construction of the vessels named herein."

The Attorney General takes the ground that the contractor is required to observe the eight-hour day only in the work on the battleships for which he contracts and is not bound as to other work in his yard. Nor does the law extend to materials which he may buy from concerns who do not observe the eight-hour law.

STEEL BILL ABOUT READY.

Provides for an Average Cut in Tariff of 40 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A meeting of the fourteen Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee has been called for to-morrow morning to consider the tentative draft of the bill for the revision of the iron and steel schedule of the Payne law. Chairman Underwood had an all day conference to-day with the sub-committe which framed the bill.

If the sub-committee draft is indorsed to-morrow by the Democratic members of the full committee, the bill will be submitted to a Democratic caucus on Monday night. If approved by the caucus the bill will be introduced in the House on Tuesday, referred to the Ways and Means Committee, and reported by the majority on Wednesday.

Another sub-committee was in session all day adding finishing touches to the bill for the revision of the chemical schedule. They hope to have it ready for the same caucus that passes on the Steel bill.

The Steel bill will make material reductions. The average cut in rates for the whole schedule will be 40 per cent. The average equivalent ad valorem of the existing law is about 31 per cent. That of the proposed bill will be 19 or 20 per cent.

SEEKING MORE DYNAMITERS.

Five New Men Said to be Implicated by Evidence.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 19.—That at least five men other than those who have been indicted or convicted in the dynamite conspiracy participated in a plot to blow up iron works at Akron July 4, 1910, was part of the testimony presented to the Federal Grand Jury to-day through witnesses called from Ohio.

The names of three alleged participants were given by Ortie McManigal, who says he met them at Cleveland. Two days before the explosion, according to McManigal, he left Indianapolis with one of the men, who received instructions from J. J. McNamara, in the office of the Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and went to Rochester, Penn., where they obtained nitroglycerine. At Cleveland the next day they met two other men and discussed the Akron job, which was to be directed against an employer who maintained an "open shop."

"The man who had accompanied me from Indianapolis wanted me to do the job," said McManigal. "He said I was experienced and could be relied upon. But one of the Cleveland men said the job had been promised to a couple of other fellows and they wanted them to have it. They had no fuse, so I went to Chicago and sent them a fuse by special delivery."

The Indianapolis man, McManigal said, was the one who remained with him until he began to do dynamiting with J. B. McNamara.

P. J. Cooney, said to have been employed as an investigator in gathering evidence for the defense of the McNamara brothers at Los Angeles, and George Behm, who figured in the evidence taken by the prosecution, testified in the Grand Jury's investigation conspiracy to-day. The fact that Cooney was called was taken to indicate that the present inquiry will embrace the details of the Pacific Coast dynamiting cases, regardless of action already taken there.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 19.—The police here are searching to-day for a burglar who last night ransacked the residence of Oscar Lawler, special prosecutor in the dynamite cases. The police theory is that the burglar was seeking papers relating to indictments returned by the Grand Jury.

PUEBLO LAUNDRY BLOWN UP.

Dynamite Wrecks the Place and Damages Near-by Property.

PUEBLO, Col., Jan. 19.—A terrific dynamite explosion early to-day partly wrecked the Colorado Laundry, in the heart of the business district, and damaged the office of the Globe Express Company. City detectives found a dynamite fuse in the alley outside of the express offices.

The laundry, one of the largest in the West, is a non-union plant. It is believed the object was to destroy a large tank used as a water softener.

WIFE PUTS RELEASE INTO MORSE'S HANDS

She Hopes to Prolong Former Banker's Life by Trip to German Baths.

DOCTORS ARE NOT HOPEFUL

Cannot Promise Him More Than a Year of Life—Too Weak to be Taken from Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 19.—Bearing the official papers giving freedom to Charles W. Morse, the former New York banker, who has been serving a fifteen-year sentence in the Federal Prison for violation of the National banking laws, his wife arrived in Atlanta this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock.

She was met at the terminal station by Mrs. Fred Seely, the wife of the editor of The Georgian, and was taken in an automobile to the Post Hospital at Fort McPherson, where Morse has been an inmate on account of his health since last November.

When she reached the hospital, Miss Jennie Morse, the sister of the banker, was the only person in the room with the prisoner, and she was the only one to see the greeting of husband and wife. It was a wordless meeting, but a happy one. Silently Mrs. Morse handed the official papers to her husband. Clutching them in his weak grasp, which for the moment tightened, he murmured a word or two, not audible.

Mrs. Seely then took Miss Jennie Morse back to the Piedmont, and Mrs. Morse told her that if she wanted to return to the city she would let her know, so that she might send the machine back to the fort. But she had no intention of making an early return, and said that she might spend the night at the post, hoping that her presence would be of aid to the prisoner.

Morse was visibly better to-day. The pardon had had a marked effect upon him. Some of his friends are hoping against hope that the diagnosis of the physicians are wrong, and now the shadow of the prison is removed and guards no longer disturb the mind of the prisoner, that he will regain his health. This optimism is not shared by the physicians here, however. They are of the opinion that the one year of life given to Morse by Dr. Fowler, who has been his physician for two years, is a liberal one, and that he has little chance to live out even that limited period.

No definite plans for the future have yet been made for Morse. He is still too weak to be moved from the hospital, and he will stay there for some days to come. Dr. Fowler thinks he will be there for at least ten days. It may be that he will be moved sooner, however. The future plans depend largely upon a conference which will be held by the friends of the prisoner to-morrow. It would probably have been held to-day, but was delayed owing to the absence from the city of Fred Seely, who has been one of the hardest workers in the interest of the prisoner.

It is expected that Morse will be moved into a quiet sanitarium in Atlanta within a few days, and from that place will be moved again as soon as advisable to a sanitarium in Florida, where it is believed the climate will be of aid. From that place, provided Morse is ever well enough to get there, he will be taken to Bad Nauheim, Germany.

"This is the happiest day of my life," said Mrs. Morse to-day.

"I am deeply grateful to every one who has been of aid to me in obtaining my husband's liberty. I have blame for no one. I am convinced that everything that could be done consistent with the law has been done. I intend to devote my time now to my husband, in the hope that care and attention may lengthen his life."

No one has yet been allowed to see Mr. Morse except the members of his family.

THAYER JOB LIKE SHUSTER'S.

Sent to Nicaragua to Straighten Out Her Finances.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—A step far in advance of anything that this Government has yet undertaken in the way of financial sponsorship has been taken in the recommendation by the State Department and the appointment by the Nicaraguan Government of Edwin A. Thayer of Indianapolis, and for the last ten years connected with the Porto Rico Customs Service as Collector of Internal Revenue in Nicaragua. This has been done because the Nicaraguan Government has defaulted on the interest of the $1,500,000 temporary loan, which was made by New York bankers to tide over the interval until the principal loan of $15,000,000 could be arranged and carried out. The treaty authorizing these negotiations has not yet been ratified by the United States Senate.

The appointment of Mr. Thayer is similar to that of W. Morgan Shuster to take charge of the fiscal affairs of Persia, an arrangement which has resulted so disastrously to the prestige of the United States in near Eastern affairs, because of the dissent of Russia and Great Britain. It is not to be believed that the arrangement put in operation in Nicaragua will turn out so badly, as we have better means of commanding respect for our kindly offices in Central America than we have in the interior of Asia.

Mr. Thayer's appointment follows that of Col. Ham of Iowa last Summer to supervise the general Customs Service of Nicaragua.

Aid Is Asked for Widow.

The Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, 192 Bowery, needs aid for a widow, barely twenty-eight years old, who has recently lost her husband, and has five children to care for. The eldest is 7 years old, and the youngest 5 months old. The man had been in comfortable circumstances, but was a sufferer with severe rheumatism for over a year, and when he died his savings were exhausted. The woman is grief stricken and not very robust, and she feels her only salvation will be to remain with her children. Contributions will be acknowledged by Mrs. Martin Beck, 135 Central Park West.

CONNOLLY OF QUEENS BREAKS WITH GAYNOR

Borough President Incensed Over Appointments Made by Mayor Without His Consent.

FULL OF WRATH FOR TRAIN

Assistant District Attorney Said Openly in Court That Graft in Queens Was Astounding and Bad as Ever.

Hereafter when Mayor Gaynor leans for support in the none too friendly Board of Estimate upon the heretofore obliging Borough President of Queens he will find, according to the close political friends of President Maurice Connolly, that Mr. Connolly is somewhere else—playing politics, in fact, with Controller Prendergast and Borough President Mitchel, who have consistently made the Mayor's path hard for him since his coming into office.

President Connolly's new attitude in attaching himself to the Fusionist members of the Board of Estimate, if persisted in, will leave Mayor Gaynor without a single dependable supporter in the Board of Estimate. For that reason, the report of the rift in the friendship between Mr. Connolly and the Mayor caused an unusual stir when it was announced in City Hall and in the office of President Connolly in Long Island City.

Both in the City Hall and in Queens the report was widely credited, and Mr. Connolly himself admitted that it was based on good grounds when asked about it at his home in Corona last night. He was willing to talk at length upon certain things he regarded as "aspersions" on Queens in a plea made before Judge Foster in the Court of General Sessions by Former Deputy Attorney General Arthur Train. He intimated that the attitude taken by Mr. Train toward Queens was very similar to the attitude taken by the Mayor, and that he resented each equally.

Just what he thinks of Mr. Train President Connolly laid down in rather severe sentences. What he thinks of Mayor Gaynor his friends explained for him, and from what they said it was evident that there is considerable sentiment in Queens against recent appointments announced by Mayor Gaynor. The complaint in three cases is that the appointees all come from a "Southern society" of which Robert Adamson, the Mayor's secretary, is a member, while the persons appointed are not residents of Queens County, but hail from New York County. It is this latter fact that is resented.

Connolly Finally Rebels.

In the matter of two other appointments the Mayor acted personally. In one instance he put in office, friends of Mr. Connolly assert, a man who has been a prominent adherent of the deposed boss, Joseph Cassidy, and in the other case he named "a good man for Magistrate, but one whose residence is so situated that the entire Rockaway peninsula will be left without the services of a Magistrate for the first time in twenty years."

The Magistrate appointed by the Mayor is James J. Conway, a resident of Long Island City, against whom no complaint is made personally.

The announcement that Mayor Gaynor had appointed Magistrate Conway brought many residents of the Rockaways to Long Island City to file protests. President Connolly told them that he agreed with them that the appointment "was geographically unfortunate."

The upshot of it all was first indicated by a Fusion member of the Board of Estimate, who quoted President Connolly as saying that he "favored Section 3 of the Lexington Avenue Subway and in th efuture would be found favoring many things that the Mayor was against."

This action was followed by Mr. Connolly's presentation to the Board of Estimate of a resolution calling upon Mayor Gaynor to pass at once upon the Fifty-ninth Street route across the Queensboro Bridge "with branches to Woodside and Astoria."

Friends of President Connolly said yesterday that the resolution was really intended to "let his Honor feel the edge of the new era of unfriendliness," and that it would be followed by many more such acts until all Queens appointments are made by the consent and with the approval of the borough officials.

While Borough President Gresser was in office he voted with Mayor Gaynor on all important questions, and when Gov. Dix ousted Gresser the Mayor continued to have the support of his successor. Mr. Connolly, however, has made it plain to his associates in Queens that he did not expect that in yielding this support to the Mayor he was also yielding the power to have his subordinates named without his approval or consent, as had been done in President Gresser's case.

Train's Severe Condemnation.

Mayor Gaynor refused to discuss the break with President Connolly when asked about it at his office last night.

The statements made by former Deputy Attorney Gen. Train was taken as seriously in Queens as the trouble between the Borough President and the Mayor. Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, who had charge of the "cleaning of Queens," last Summer, joined President Connolly in characterizing statements of Mr. Train as "grossly exaggerated" and not in the least supported by the facts.

Mr. Train told what he thought about Queens to Judge Foster in the Court of General Sessions, where he appeared as a special assistant District Attorney at the trial of Peter M. Coco, a Queens architect, who was indicted for extortion following an investigation into the building of the Queens County Court House, of which he was in charge.

Mr. Train, appearing as a prosecutor, did not wish to have Judge Foster pass a severe sentence upon the defendant, Coco, while all the other of his hundred-odd indictments involving more than a score of officials had been dismissed.

"There is not now and there never was," said Mr. Train, "any standard of morals among the Queens County politicians so far as grafting is concerned. Conditions as I found them over there were astounding. Everybody was getting graft. This defendant is not to blame for his predicament; he was only following the moral standard set by those higher up. In all Queens there are not men enough that could be got together on a jury to convict a political grafter, regardless of the evidence.

"When I assumed charge of the investigation in Queens I was astonished that the conditions existing had not been uncovered long before. Political leaders in Queens have no standard of morals. They never had. Conditions are but little changed to-day."

Mr. Train asked that the court refrain from sentencing on the charge of extortion and change the charge to a misdemeanor. Judge Foster said that he agreed with Mr. Train, and would deal with the defendant in a lenient manner.

"Your business has been ruined and your character destroyed," said Judge Foster, addressing himself to Coco, "and I believe you have been punished enough. One year in the penitentiary."

It was the charge in Mr. Train's speech that conditions are as bad now as they used to be that stirred both President Connolly and Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick to make denials.

"The speech sounds to me," said Commissioner Fosdick, "like an intemperate appeal to a jury regardless of supporting facts. Progress certainly has been made in Queens. President Connolly is doing his best to make over the conditions there. Of course, he hasn't succeeded all in a heap. If grafting is going on there in some departments as much as it used to, it is in fact a reflection upon me more than upon Mr. Connolly for men from my bureau have been in charge ever since Mr. Connolly went into office and they are rebuilding the whole system.

Train's Visit Expensive.

"What have you done to clean up the grafting of your predecessors?" President Connolly was asked.

"Before I answer that," he replied, "I would like to say that prominent among the scandals of Queens is the scandal attached to the monstrous bills of expenses and the huge per diem fee charged by Mr. Train in his work here. Queens will be some time in forgetting Mr. Train's expensive visit.

"And more than that, he need not be so silly as to claim credit for 'unearthing' anything here. Before he ever came—long before he came—the columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES told of almost every single thing disclosed in his investigation. Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick canvassed all this data, and it was placed before Gov. Hughes in the form of sworn statements before ever Mr. Train appeared. He merely carried it to a Grand Jury, drew indictments, and drew them so badly that they fell to pieces in court. That was his contribution. He better think twice before making fast-and-loose statements about things as they are to-day.

"I found private citizens, relatives of city officials, living in rooms in public buildings. They have been ousted. When I took office the roads were almost impassable. Law suits crippled our work, and workmen hung about in gangs, making themselves a subject of merriment and scandal by their inactivity. There are no gangs now, and each man works too far from the others to engage in gossip. In getting out maps of the borough, so that new districts may be opened up, we have done as much in three months as was done in any fifteen preceding months.

"On Christmas Day I found two houses had fallen down while in course of construction. They were under the supervision of a former public official, who had been a subject of much scandal. That he could have gone ahead with them showed that he still had power with the Building Bureau from which he had been ousted.

WITHOUT A COUNTRY, PETITIONS CONGRESS

Eugene Prince Asks to be Made an American Citizen.

BORN IN ST. PETERSBURG

And Son of an American Citizen by Descent Who Had Never Lived Here —Special Act to Help Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—An appeal was made to Congress to-day to grant American citizenship by a special act to Eugene Prince of St. Petersburg, Russia, who is literally a "man without a country." He was born in St. Petersburg and lived there until recently, when he entered the Chicago offices of the International Harvester Company. His great-grandfather, Henry Prince, born at Salem, Mass., was an officer of the American Navy and married Ruth Hardy Ropes. Henry Prince had a son, George Henry Prince, who went to St. Petersburg to represent his relatives, the old firm of W. Ropes & Co., pioneer exporters.

George Henry Prince married an Englishwoman and had six children, one of whom, John Henry Prince, was born in St. Petersburg on Nov. 6, 1862. Being the son of an American citizen, John Henry was an American citizen by descent. He has always lived in St. Petersburg, representing American firms. He has retained his American citizenship and is registered by the Russian Government as such. But his son, Eugene Prince, under Section 1,993 of the Revised Statutes, cannot be recognized as an American citizen because his father has never resided here. On the other hand, under Russian law he cannot be recognized as a subject of the Czar. Accordingly he has no standing in the eyes of any Government in the world.

Mr. Prince will file next week his declaration of intention to become a naturalized American citizen, but if the special act passes it will not be necessary for him to be come naturalized. He is a relative of the late John E. Ropes and Prof. James Hardy Ropes, two noted historians.

The only precedent for granting American citizenship by special act, the case of Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, grew out of the fact that when she married in 1874 Algernon Charles Frederick Sartoris, a British subject, and emigrated to Great Britain, she became, under British laws, a naturalized British citizen, to be recognized as such by the United States according to the treaty of May 13, 1890. Upon her return she petitioned Congress to be readmitted to American citizenship, and her petition was granted.

DARING EAST RIVER RESCUE.

Boat Captain Braves Icy Waters After Boy—Wife Saves Both.

Eleven-year-old Anton Majer fell overboard from a scow fast to a pier in the East River at Sixtieth Street yesterday afternoon and the boy's father, John Majer, of 1,121 First Avenue, to whom the boy had been throwing pieces of wood from the debris of the scow's load of street sweepings, shouted loudly for help, since, unable to swim, he dared not jump into the water himself. Oscar Rosenkwift, captain of a Hudson Sand and Gravel Company's scow, at a pier a block away, threw a life preserver to the boy and then jumped overboard after him.

The tide swept the preserver from the youngster's reach, but Rosenkwift swam to him and got the life ring around him. Then he yelled to his wife, a bride of a few months, to haul the youngster in. Mrs. Rosenkwift pulled, but the rope snapped. Rosenkwift caught the end of the rope as it flashed past him and made it fast around his own waist. Then Mrs. Rosenkwift pulled once more and got rescued and rescuer on the scow.

The youngster was unconscious, but he was resuscitated and wrapped in blankets. Then he was carried to Flower Hospital, three blocks away. Rosenkwift changed his clothes and said that was all the attention he needed.

A Piano of Enduring Delight

The Exquisitely Voiced

VOSE

MALCOLM STRAUSS

VOSE PIANOS are ever enlarging their circle of devoted friends by the force of their own admirable qualities.

Their merits are positive—of the present—not founded on past glories.

VOSE PIANOS have been built for sixty-two years—the artistic ideals, and the expert practical knowledge of their originator, the senior VOSE, having been carried forward, broadened and developed by his son, now at the head of the VOSE business. Thus continuity of tradition has been maintained, and Vose Pianos are today the better by 62 years of uninterrupted effort—and have never been cheapened or commercialized.

The perfect triad of Vose superiority is VOSE Tone, VOSE Quality and VOSE Construction. The beauty and the reserve strength of the first, and the enduring nature of the second, are attributable to the engineering skill of the third.

A full assortment of Vose Pianos may be found in the Gimbel Piano Store, and we especially wish you to let us demonstrate them to you. In particular, the delightful which combines with its diminutive size—it is but 5 feet 2 inches long—a tone of surprising beauty, richness and depth. It is ideally the Piano for the home, especially for New York apartments, where volume of tone is desired without the usual sacrifice of space. You are also invited to see

BROADWAY NEW YORK THIRTY-THIRD STREET

EPISCOPALIAN ROW IN TOMPKINSVILLE

Formal Charges Are Filed with Bishop Greer Against Pastor of St. Paul's Church.

NEARLY 20 SPECIFICATIONS

Heirs-at-Law of Late Judge Albert Ward Seek to Have the Rev. Guy L. Wallis Removed from Pastorate.

Charges were filed yesterday with Bishop Greer of the Episcopal Diocese of New York against the Rev. Guy L. Wallis, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Tompkinsville. The charges consist in failure to maintain, it is asserted, the service of the Episcopal Church according to the Book of Common Prayer, and are signed by the heirs-at-law of the late Judge Albert Ward and Catherine U. Ward, his wife. The charges are followed and accompanied by a statement that within ten days a suit in the Supreme Court will be started to recover title to the property in St. Paul's Avenue, consisting of a brick and stone church, a parish building, and handsome rectory. Bishop Greer received the charges and took them under advisement.

The recital is covered in nearly twenty specifications. Nearly all of them affecting directly the question of doctrine and ritual. So plain are they that it was said yesterday that Bishop Greer may be compelled to enter a decision that will inflame the whole Episcopal Church. Here are some of the charges mentioned:

That the doctrine of transubstantiation is taught; that holy water is provided; that confession is compulsory; that stations of the cross are introduced; that the elements at communion are refused to certain persons without reasons being given therefor; that morning prayer is not used as required by rubric; that certain required parts of the communion office are habitually omitted; that incense is employed, and that the rector repeatedly declares that neither he nor his congregation are Episcopalians, but Catholics. The foregoing, so the recital states, affect the Book of Common Prayer service, as required in the deed of gift. There are also four charges affecting the Rev. Mr. Wallis as rector. These are:

That he has "ignored, abused, and belittled certain members of the vestry" of St. Paul's, and has stated to the people "that vestries as a rule are practically of no importance to the well-being of a parish;" that the rector has stated to the congregation that he did not care whether men came to church or not, "so long as the women came.' The women are the principal support of the church;" that the rector has stated publicly that during such time as the reserved sacrament is absent from the altar Jesus Christ is not in St. Paul's, and that repeatedly has he stated, within and without the church building, that St. Paul's is not an Episcopal Church.

The Supreme Court suit, notice of which was given yesterday, is to secure if possible possession of the property, and so to eject the rector from the use of it. Bishop Greer was yesterday furnished with a copy of the deed of gift, and to make sure to cover all of the case, the Bishop Suffragan was also furnished with both deed and charges. The deed recites that the property must always be used for public worship according to the rites and usages of the Episcopal Church, and it prohibits any use of it for Sunday or day school, or for entertainments. Some years ago a parish building was erected upon the property, and therein Sunday school and entertainments have been held. The framers of the charges will now, they say, insist upon strict legal compliance with the deed of gift.

The Rev. Guy L. Wallis was many years ago an assistant minister of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Manhattan. Later he became rector of a parish in Harlem, afterward absorbed by the Church of the Redeemer, itself once located in Park Avenue at Eighty-second Street, and having a Rev. Mr. Adams as rector, who went to the Roman Catholic Church. After the consolidation the Rev. Mr. Wallis went to Cleveland, and only returned to Staten Island a few months ago. For a long time, after the resignation of the Rev. Alonzo L. Wood, the preceding rector for fifteen years, the parish was without a head. The Rev. Mr. Wallis has given out of late that the parish is flourishing under him, and that only one vestryman, Edward Wanty of St. Paul's Avenue, is at enmity to him.

St. Paul's is the oldest Episcopal parish on Staten Island. It was said yesterday that it had had many disputes over the form of service. The present rector was offered no salary upon his coming, the parish being in such straitened circumstances that it could offer no money at all. The attorney who filed the charges yesterday stated that the Bishop said nothing beyond that he would consider the same. He also said that his clients had no desire to retain the property for their personal use. They wish simply that it be used for the purposes for which their parents gave it, and be attended by Episcopalians of Tompkinsville. Under administration such as at present obtains Episcopalians there will not attend.

Inquiry among some Episcopal clergy yesterday brought information that Bishop Greer has before him a difficult proposition. If he decides either way he may bring upon himself the enmity of high or low church, as the case may be, and if he does not decide, but lets the matter go to the courts, the latter will hear such matters of Episcopal ritual as may inflame the whole Church.

BELIEVED 'SPANISH PRISONER'

Police Prevent Oregonian from Being Duped by Old, Old Swindle.

Charles M. Olsen, 65 years old, who lives at 248 Pine Street, Portland, Ore., was persuaded yesterday by Detective Leason from Police Headquarters to give up a trip to Madrid yesterday to liberate an unfortunate Spanish prisoner held in cruel bondage.

Although the Spanish prisoner swindle has been exposed in every city in the United States for the last twenty-five years, Olsen believed that his letter was genuine. He was to take $15,000 to Madrid to liberate his old friend, Victor Depont, and in return he would receive a trunk with a false bottom in which $450,000 in pesos was hidden. There was also a lovely dark-eyed Spanish maiden, the fifteen-year-old daughter of the unfortunate Depont, whom Olsen was requested to take to America and bring up as his own child.

When his friends found that they could not prevent the old man from going to Spain on a fool's errand, they telegraphed his son, George Olsen, who is a student at Michigan University, and he in turn wired to Inspector Hughes at Police Headquarters asking to have his father detained until he arrived in New York. Later in the day the son arrived and started back to Portland with his father.

Queens Wants P. S. Commissioner.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Queens Borough Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday afternoon, resolutions were passed requesting Gov. Dix, in naming a Public Service Commissioner to succeed Commissioner McCarroll, to appoint a man from the Borough of Queens. The resolutions call attention to the fact that valuations of land have been increased to an extent where taxes are a burden and that these increases were made on the promise that Queens was to get rapid transit. Thus far it has received nothing, and a Commissioner from Queens could look after the welfare of the borough.

BURNS THREE WITH VITRIOL.

Girl Throws Fiery Fluid at Man Who Once Attacked Her.

A girl pushed open the side door of a saloon at 322 Monroe Street, Hoboken, N. J., about 8:30 o'clock last night and called to one of five men who were standing at the bar:

"Come here, Joe, I want to speak to you."

Joseph Hallock of 1,011 Park Avenue turned from the bar, but, recognizing the girl, drew back instead of approaching her. Instantly the girl darted inside the door, exclaiming: "I've got you now," and hurled toward Hallock the contents of a condensed milk can which she held. Hallock ducked, but yelled as several drops of vitriol splashed on his face and neck. There was a yell also from Marco Djeovich, proprietor of the place, who was behind the bar, and from Michael Mellage of 330 Madison Street. The vitriol struck both men on the right side of their faces, and entered Djeovich's right eye.

The girl fled from the place, followed by John Delaney of 120 Grand Street and Timothy Ryan of 116 Grand Street. Five blocks away she ran into the arms of Policeman McGervey, who grabbed her. Meantime Anthony Marcovich of 118 Monroe Street, the sixth man in the bar, had telephoned for Dr. Ryan from St. Mary's Hospital, and the injured men were taken there. Presently McGervey brought the girl there, too, for she was burned on the hands.

She said she was Margaret Gleason of 602 Newark Street, and that she would be 16 years old next month. She declared she had thrown the fiery fluid at Hallock because the Board of Pardons had paroled him three months ago after he had served only a year of a three-year sentence for an attack on her. Hallock, who was only slightly hurt, said the girl had followed him ever since he was liberated, and must have watched him enter the saloon, afterward buying the vitriol in a First Street drug store. The girl was locked up.

$184 Cigarette Bill Against a Singer.

Mrs. Maria Estelle Markham, a singer, of Nashville, Tenn., has brought suit in the Supreme Court to recover $1,520 which she says she loaned to William F. Mathues, a tobacco dealer of 619 Madison Avenue. Mathues filed his answer yesterday. He denies that he ever borrowed any money from Mrs. Markham and says she owes him $184 for cigarettes for which he puts in a counter claim. Mrs. Markham's lawyer said his client did not smoke the cigarettes.

HOLDS COURT IN FIFTH AVE. HOME

Justice Gerard Flees from Disease-Breeding Tweed Court House.

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA LOOKS ON

With Other Titled Foreigners She Stares Fixedly Throughout Beatty-Guggenheim Hearing.

If the blindfolded Goddess of Justice that presides over Part VI. of the Supreme Court of the County of New York could by any chance have gotten a peek yesterday into the court presided over by Justice James W. Gerard she certainly would have thrown up her hands in surprise. Instead of the dingy walls of the Tweed Court House, the Goddess would have seen a beautiful room of the period of Louis XVI. She would have gazed upon heavy crimson tapestries and rugs; she would have seen richly framed pictures and heavy gilt molding and the soft glow of the electrolier falling over it all.

If she had spoken and asked what all this meant she would have been told that Justice Gerard had, by virtue of Section 87 of the Code of Civil Procedure, moved his court to his home at 725 Fifth Avenue, fleeing with all his train from the disease-breeding atmosphere that haunts the gloomy caverns of the old Court House.

Justice and counsel gathered in the dining room about a Circassian walnut table. A witness stand was created out of a Louis XVI. chair. Justice Gerard's man in "knickers" and black-braided coat was on hand to bow lawyers and clients and witnesses in and out.

But the wheels of justice ground steadily and soberly on in spite of all these innovations. Beatty versus the Guggenheim Exploration Company was called. William B. Hornblower took up a position on one side of the walnut table and Louis Marshall on the other. At another place sat Murry Guggenheim, and across from him A. Chester Beatty, the plaintiff. Daniel Guggenheim and John N. Steel also occupied seats at the table.

Looking down upon this scene from one end of the room was a large portrait of the Empress Marie of Russia by Darbes. She was doubtless much bored, for when she was seen by a TIMES reporter after it was all over she wore a smile that was a little weary. On another wall was Henry Rich, Earl of Holland, created in 1667. He was decidedly interested in it all, as his expression plainly showed, and was very evidently pleased at the persistence of ancient customs of law. Then there was Mlle. de la Sablière by Mignard, who seemed to ignore the whole proceeding as a little beneath her.

But the Goddess of Justice, although she said she never gave out interviews, confessed that she had had a vastly more comfortable day at Justice Gerard's house than she had ever had at Mr. Tweed's old Court House.

The blind Justice of Fifth Avenue listened to further details in the suit for approximately $800,000 brought by A. Chester Beatty, former engineer for the Guggenheims, for stock and commissions as his share in the formation of the Yukon Gold Company, which is owned by the Guggenheim Exploration Company.

Murry Guggenheim, on the stand yesterday, denied among other things the testimony of Thomas W. Lawson that the campaign of 1908 by which he sold to the public large amounts of Yukon stock at prices ranging up to more than twice as much as it sells for now, was at the behest of the Guggenheim interests. He was able to throw very little light on Yukon, testifying that John Hays Hammond and Daniel Guggenheim were proper authorities on Yukon.

Beatty's lawyer gave the witness an uncomfortable time explaining the way Yukon meetings had been conducted. Minutes of meetings had been previously introduced showing that among others present at the meetings from 1906 to 1909 was A. Chester Beatty. He had only initialed the minutes of one meeting, and admitted that he had not attended many of these meetings. When it was brought out that Daniel Guggenheim, S. R. Guggenheim, and the complainant, then a Director of the company, were put down as having attended meetings on Aug. 13 and Sept. 1, 1906, when they were really in Alaska, Mr. Guggenheim was asked if the minutes were not false. He admitted that they were "incorrect."

Louis Marshall testified that when he had seen Thomas W. Lawson about Yukon matters it was in connection with a contract between W. B. Thompson and the Yukon Gold Company for options on several hundred thousand shares of the stock, and not about Lawson's campaign for marketing it. Asked if the Guggenheims had not paid the advertising bills for the campaign, he replied that he did not know, but if the examiner wanted his information he had been told that the Guggenheims had paid at least $100,000 for the Yukon advertising.

Justice Gerard took for consideration a brief from the plaintiff arguing for the admission of two letters from John N. Steele, one to Beatty and one to Daniel Guggenheim, which, it is contended, go far toward supporting the Beatty claims.

$7,639 FOR LOST OF SPLEEN.

Victim of Accident Can Only Live 3 Years and Horseowner Must Pay.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday refusing to reduce or set aside a verdict of $7,639 in favor of Arthur Gallo, a machinist of 107 Varick Street, against Thomas Sileo for the loss of his spleen. Dr. Joseph J. Higgins of St. Vincent's Hospital said he had to remove Gallo's spleen after an accident, and testified that the average length of life of a person after the removal of the spleen was five years. Gallo, at his reckoning, has only three years more to live, as his spleen was removed in August, 1909.

Gallo was injured by falling through a grating in the sidewalk to a cellar of the building on the northeast corner of Prince and Thompson Streets, which is owned by Sileo. The physician was pressed by Sileo's attorneys to explain the function of the spleen and said:

"It is a notorious fact that the spleen is an unknown quantity to us medical men. We do not know what its functions are. It is there, and the only reason we have for assuming that it has any utility is assuming that the Lord intended it should have some. It is supposed to make blood cells, but we do not know."

Calls Justice Seabury "Your Lordship"

F. K. Markey of Montreal, a Canadian barrister, appeared yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Seabury to argue a motion for an order to compel James McNaught, President of the Great Northern Construction Company, to answer certain questions under an order of the Canadian courts. He addressed Justice Seabury repeatedly as "Your Lordship," much to the amusement of the other lawyers in court. The Great Northern Construction Company is being liquidated in the Canadian courts, and Receiver John Hyde, the Canadian liquidator, got a commission to examine McNaught in this city.

Night Court for Naturalization.

County Clerk William F. Schneider proposed a plan yesterday at a conference of representatives of the Supreme Court New York County and representatives of the Federal courts of this district to hold night sessions of the courts for naturalizing foreigners who desire to become American citizens. No decision on the plan was announced. Last year, Mr. Schneider pointed out, 6,150 final papers were granted in the State Supreme Court, which considered 13,000 applications. This year there are 17,000 applications to consider.

Big values for women

WHAT do you want to know? What have you got to do? Is it help with your cooking, suggestions for entertaining your friends, ideas on bringing up your children, ways of beautifying your home, or is it fresh, amusing, inspiring reading you want? Here it all is in the February Woman's Home Companion—called "Valentine Number" because of the calendar, beautiful like a valentine with its splendid cover, and its full-page valentine—but more useful than beautiful; so it might well be called the "Housewife's Number." How to build your home, decorate it, furnish it and have a garden the first year; how to train, instruct and amuse your children; how to cook a hundred new dishes; nine pages of fashions (one for men); 86 pages of help for you, the best ideas of people who know how—all for 15c

Her House

Are you going to build? The Colonial type is one that seldom goes wrong. It always looks like a home. Our architect has designed a good Colonial house, with floor plans and perspectives. Are you puzzled about a color scheme for decoration? Ask questions of our Decorative Department. A garden the first year is possible if you follow the plan outlined in "A Short Order Garden." House planning help 15c

Her Kitchen

Why do you pay so much for vegetables and meats? The commission government of Des Moines found out, instituted "The Open Market" and cut prices in two. One of the commission tells how it was done.

The daily bill of fare is often a hard problem. Here are seasonable household menus for every day in the month, five special luncheons with twenty-six recipes, one a Valentine luncheon, fully illustrated, with measured recipes, for making each dish. All this for 15c

Her Spare Moments

The housewife who follows the household suggestions of The Woman's Home Companion has many moments for pleasure and light work, some results of which can be utilized in the Pin Money Club. The exchange to which housewives contribute successful experiments, helps us help each other. There are sixteen good letters from Woman's Home Companion readers; eighteen funny short stories; two pages of embroidery, complete instructions for crocheting a hooded sweater, a page devoted to amateur photography, and a page devoted to china painting—practical suggestions by those who have tried them, anyone of which is worth the price of this entire number— 15c

Her Children

The education, health and entertainment of children is a large part of a mother's life. This number is particularly rich in that it has the children's serial, "The Island Twins," the children's cut-out book toy, "The Adventures of Jack and Betty," Sam Lloyd's Puzzle Page, the Kewpies, a Dickens Party for Children, Home-Made Valentines that Children can make, and four pieces of furniture that boys can make.

Dr. Dennett is a specialist in the diseases of children. His department makes many babies' lives happier and healthier. Help for mothers 15c

Her Social Life

Two sympathetic departments—one, "The Tower Room Talks" for girls, and the other Margaret E. Sangster's "Sweethearts and Wives" for their mothers. Two pages of Valentine games and entertainments suggest to the busy hostess ways of entertaining her guests, and ten programs for women's clubs—all but a small part of the big Valentine Number of The Woman's Home Companion. 15c

ROOT DENOUNCES RECALL OF JUDGES

Senator Cheered by State Bar Members for His Defense of the Courts.

KNOX WOULD AID NEIGHBORS

Discusses Our Responsibilities Toward Central America Under the Monroe Doctrine—Taft Here To-day.

The thirty-fifth annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association opened yesterday in the Bar Association building, 42 West Forty-fourth Street. In the afternoon the members cheered an address by their President, United States Senator Elihu Root, attacking the principle of recall of Judges. In the evening, at Carnegie Hall, they listened to Secretary of State Philander C. Knox in an address on "The Monroe Doctrine and Some Incidental Obligations in the Zone of the Caribbean."

Losing Our Respect for Courts.

"There appears to be an increasing tendency among Americans toward impatience with the courts whenever judicial decisions do not agree with our wishes," said Senator Root. "The provisions for the recall of Judges already adopted in some States and widely advocated in others are an exhibition of this impatience and a demand for more unchecked opportunity to make the Judges feel its effects.

"A distinguished Judge is reported to be considered for promotion to the Supreme bench. Thereupon there arises, not a discussion regarding his ability or integrity or experience, but an outcry that he ought not to be promoted because he decided a two-cent fare case against the wishes of some people, or many people.

"The Court of Commerce decides that the Inter-State Commerce Commission has taken too broad a view of its powers under the law in a particular case, and the immediate reaction is, not an acceptance of the decision and a proposal to change the law so as to make the powers broader, or an appeal from the decision to show by argument that it is wrong, but the drafting and introduction of a lot of bills to abolish the court.

"There are many indications that, in varying degrees, in different parts of the United States, this method of treating the courts' decisions receives popular sympathy. A gradual decrease of respect for judicial decisions can be perceived.

The Court's Limited Field.

"This feeling rests on a misconception as to the true function of a court. It is not the duty of our courts to be leaders in reform or to espouse or to inforce economic or social theories, or, except within very narrow limits, to readjust laws to new social conditions.

"If this view is to be changed and the decisions of our courts are to be considered in the same way and upon the same presumptions and with no greater respect for authority than in the case of political opinions, the authority of the courts will inevitably decline, the independence of the judicial branch will cease, judicial decision will interpret the law always to suit the majority of the moment, and the recall will be the natural and logical expression of the relation to be assumed between the people and the courts.

"The Judge is confined within the narrow limits of reasonable interpretation. It is not his function or within his power to enlarge or improve or change the law. It is his duty to maintain it, to enforce it, whether it be good or bad, wise or foolish, accordant with sound or unsound economic policy. It is very important to have reformers and advocates of all good causes who are keenly alive to defects in our system of laws and solicitous to find means to cure them. But the courts are excluded, by virtue of the special duty imposed on them, from playing any of these parts. Their duty is to maintain and enforce the law as it is at the moment, to interpret it in sincerity and truth, to accept loyally every change made in it by the lawmaking power, but to stand firmly against any attempt to ignore it or nullify it except by the legitimate action of the popular sovereign in its making of Constitutions, or the legislative branch of the Government in its making of statutes in conformity to the Constitution. If the community is not satisfied with a law as it is declared by the court to be, the thing really desirable is, not to coerce or reconstruct a court to say that the law is what it is not, but to make the law what the community wishes it to be."

What Recall Would Mean.

Senator Root declared that proposals to subordinate the decision of the courts to the decision of a popular majority, whether it be by punishing the Judges for an unsatisfactory decision through removing them from office or through reviewing their decisions at the polls, as distinct from reviewing and revising the law on which they are to decide, would involve an abandonment of the most essential feature of our system of constitutional government.

"We may grant that inconvenience frequently arises from decisions of courts finding that constitutional provisions are contravened by legislative action designed to express the popular will in particular cases," he said.

"We may assume that some of these decisions are erroneous, among fallible men in any system of government, although there are probably by no means as many errors as the ardent advocates of particular views suppose. But it is a mistake to consider the particular incident by itself and lose sight of the enormous and overwhelming importance of the system to which these inconveniences are incidents, and to forget that by destroying the independence and authority of the courts and the popular habit of submission to their decisions we would lose infinitely more than we would gain."

After discussing the constitutional limits of power placed upon all officers of the Nation or State, restraining them even from many best-intentioned acts, "not because it might not be a very good step in that particular case, but because the prevention of unlimited power is of vaster importance to liberty than any particular case, Senator Root declared.

"We must choose between having prescribed rules of right conduct, binding in every case so long as they exist, even though there may be occasional inconvenience through their restraint upon our freedom of action, and having no rules at all to prevent us from doing in every case whatever we wish to do at the time. We cannot maintain one system in part and the other system in part. The gulf between the two systems is not narrowed, but greatly widened by the proposal to dispense with the action of a representative Legislature and to substitute direct popular action at the polls.

"A sovereign people which declares that all men have certain inalienable rights and imposes upon itself the great impersonal rules of conduct deemed necessary for the preservation of those rights, and at the same time declares that it will disregard those rules whenever, in any particular case, it is the wish of a majority of its voters to do so, establishes as complete a contradiction to the fundamental principles of our Government as it is possible to conceive. It abandons absolutely the conception of a justice which is above majorities, of a right in the weak which the strong are bound to respect. It denies the vital truth taught by religion and realized in the hard experience of mankind, and which has inspired every Constitution America has produced and every great declaration for human freedom since Magna Charta—the truth that human nature needs to distrust its own impulses and passions and to establish for its own control the restraining and guiding influence of declared principles of action.

"If the people of our country yield to the impatience which would destroy the system that alone makes effective these great impersonal rules and preserves our constitutional Government, rather than endure the temporary inconvenience of pursuing regulated methods of changing the law, we shall not be reforming, we shall not be making progress, but we shall be exhibiting the weakness which thoughtful friends of free Government the world over have always feared the most—the lack of that self-control which enables great bodies of men to abide the slow processes of orderly government rather than to break down the barriers of order when they obstruct the impulse of the moment."

Advice to the Courts.

By way of remedy for the conditions that have called forth the popular impatience with the courts, Senator Root suggested first that the courts themselves might do something by taking a little more pains, when they have to decide against the constitutionality of a law, to make the grounds of their decision intelligible to the average layman, and by bearing in mind, too, that the question of unconstitutionality, always requiring the greatest delicacy, should seldom if ever be decided affirmatively in a doubtful case.

Judges, too, he said, should not be withdrawn by their duties too far from intimate knowledge of and participation in current affairs and social and economic changes. The bar especially, he concluded, could do much in instigating and carrying on a proper educational campaign to show the people the importance of "preserving the constitutional system in our country and maintaining undiminished the power of a really independent judiciary."

Secretary Knox's Speech.

At the night session in Carnegie Hall there were on the platform, besides Senator Root, the Chairman, and Secretary of State Knox, some fifty leading members of the New York State and city bar, including: William B. Hornblower, Francis Lynde Stetson, Edmund Wetmore, C. O. Swain, Frederick E. Wadhams, Silas B. Brownell, United States Court Justices Ray, Hough, Holt, and Ward; Supreme Court Justices Ford, Platzek, Stapleton, and Page; William G. Choate, Robert Grier Monroe, and J. Newton Fiero.

Secretary Knox spoke in favor of the ratification of the conventions between this country and Honduras and Nicaragua, now pending before the United States Senate, whereby this country undertakes to help set the weaker neighbors on their feet financially and enable them to meet their just obligations to other countries, by taking charge of the collection and husbanding of their customs receipts and the payment of their creditors out of such collections. By so helping them to maintain peace and independence, Secretary Knox declared, this country will best facilitate the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine, inasmuch as its own burdens and responsibility for the turbulent weaker American republics thrust upon it by that doctrine will be lessened in direct proportion as it helps them grow prosperous and orderly and honest in their business relations with the world.

Secretary Knox recounted the earlier experiment with Santo Domingo, which, long torn with internal strife and its revenues sapped by usurious debts to other nations, had appealed to the United States for assistance The Custom House receipts there were finally placed in the hands of American officials, and a portion thereof held on deposit in New York for the benefit of all creditors alike. As a result of proper management of its customs, protected by American prestige as well as the Santo Domingan guarantee, its debt was refunded; its revenues, despite a reduction of import duties by nearly one-half, increased from $1,800,000 in 1904 to $3,300,000 in 1911, and its foreign trade grew from about $6,000,000 to over $17,000,000. The same problem, said Secretary Knox, is presented by Honduras and Nicaragua, who have likewise sought the interposition of the United States, and the same successful results are to be expected.

Our Duty to Give Relief.

"Alone, these countries find it impossible to extricate themselves from the thraldom of civil strife," said Secretary Knox, "and they quite naturally look to their more prosperous and powerful neighbor for aid and guidance. Shall we refuse it any more than we refused to heed the cry of Cuba or that of Santo Domingo? The adoption of the present conventions is counseled not only by the humanitarian motive of preventing useless bloodshed, and by the ever-increasing important political reason of avoiding the danger of European entanglements in the affairs of the countries surrounding the Caribbean, but it is also more than justified from a purely material standpoint.

"These republics, indeed, are, consciously or unconsciously, fellow sponsors with the United States of the Monroe Doctrine as a Pan-American idea as well as an American policy. The growth of such nations lightens our responsibility. The logic of political geography and of strategy and now our tremendous national interest created by the Panama Canal make the safety, the peace and the prosperity of Central America and the zone of the Caribbean of paramount interest to the Government of the United States. Thus, the malady of revolutions and financial collapse is most acute precisely in the region where it is most dangerous to us. It is here that we seek to apply a remedy.

"It would not be sane to uphold a great policy like the Monroe Doctrine and to repudiate its necessary corollaries and neglect the sensible measures which reason dictates as its safeguards."

At the conclusion of an address Secretary Knox was made an honorary member of the association.

The sessions of the association will continue at the Bar Association Building this morning and afternoon, with reports and discussions on various phases of court procedure. This evening there will be a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, at which President Taft will speak. Other speakers at the dinner will be M. Jean J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador; Joseph H. Choate, former United States Ambassador to England; Robert C. Smith, K. C., of the Montreal Bar, and Supreme Court Justice Almet F. Jenks of Brooklyn.

LAWYERS DISCUSS REFORMS.

More Pay for Federal Judges Again Urged—Contingent Fee Control.

Many reports were submitted by various committees of the State Bar Association at the morning and afternoon sessions in the Bar Association Building, at both of which Senator Root presided. About 150 members attended the morning session and nearly twice that many the afternoon. The association, it was announced, now has a membership of 2,009 throughout the State.

John Brooks Leavitt, Chairman of the Committee on the Abuses of the Contingent Fee, submitted a report, concurred in by four of the eight committeemen, with three dissenting and one not voting. The report urged the remedying of admitted abuses by repealing the legislative act of 1848, which gave unrestricted permission to lawyers to bargain with their clients in respect of services. It provided, however, that clients be permitted to hire their attorneys by the year if they desired to do so; or that, where unable, the client might pay his lawyer out of the proceeds of the litigation such sum as they might agree on after its collection, the court awarding the amount in case of failure to agree. It was finally voted that "all agreements on contingent fees between attorney and client should by appropriate amendment of the existing law be made subject to the scrutiny and review of the court as to their reasonableness when made."

The Committee on Salary of Federal Judges reasserted its recommendation of last year in favor of increasing the pay of such judges. The committee characterized the present pay as grossly inadequate, and several members pointed out that Congress itself had twice in recent years to be called upon to provide financially for the widows and children of dead Supreme Court Justices.

The Committee on Selection of Candidates for Judicial Offices reported, through its Chairman, Judge Richard L. Hand, asking instructions as to whether its investigation and indorsement of judicial candidates was to be made only in the brief time between nomination and election, as heretofore, or before the nominations had been made. It was decided that the association should pass upon the character and qualification of judicial candidates before they were nominated. One member of the committee, Ainsley Wilcox, went so far as to suggest that the bar as a whole be permitted to pass upon the candidates "by a sort of legal primary, with free secret vote to show the united sentiment of the bar concerning the condidates."

At the afternoon session, Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin of Connecticut presented a paper describing "How Civil Procedure Was Simplified in Connecticut." Thereafter he was, by rising vote, made an honorary member of the association.

The proposal of changing the verdict in cases of the criminally insane from the present phrasing of "not guilty because insane" to the verdict of "guilty, but insane," as in the English law, was urged by John Brooks Leavitt, Chairman of the Committee on Proposed Legislation Relative to the Commitment and Discharge of the Criminal Insane.

"The trouble is that it has always been assumed that an insane man cannot have any intent to commit crime," said Mr. Leavitt, "whereas the reverse is proved by experience. The question is not whether an insane man intended to commit a crime. The question is—did he intend the result which came about?"

He urged the change of the existing law to provide for the incarceration of persons "guilty, but insane" in prison or some asylum, with the use of the pardon power, not as a right, but as an act of mercy, upon proof of recovered sanity. No action was taken on the report other than to authorize the committee to confer with committees of other associations as to whether the existing law needs change.

Other reports presented yesterday were: The Committee on the Amendments of the Law in Respect to the Registration of Titles, the Committee on the Corporation Law, the Committee on the Amendment of the Election Law with Regard to Judicial Candidates, which reaffirmed its recommendation in favor of placing the names of judicial candidates on separate ballots or in a column apart from those of the political parties and unlabeled as to party. Papers dealing with proposed reforms in procedure in the courts of this State were read as follows: C. Andrade, "Commencement of Action"; George Gordon Battle and Joseph M. Proskaur, "Preparation for Trial and Practice" and Neal Dow Becker on "Judgments."

TEMPERS JUSTICE BY CHECK.

Judge Rosalsky Sends Man to Jail, but Gives His Wife $25.

Judge Rosalsky, in General Sessions yesterday, sentenced Wyman Oakley to six months in the Penitentiary for assault and then wrote out a check for $25 for the man's wife and four children, who are reported to be destitute.

Oakley was convicted of slashing William Tzernokoski across the face in a poolroom at 172 Amsterdam Avenue on Sept. 16 last. Tzernokoski was disfigured for life, and Judge Rosalsky could not suspend sentence, although Oakley is thoroughly repentant. Daniel Kimball, a probation officer, reported that the prisoner formerly made his living by gambling at the race track and that after that he went to work in a shop and had to leave because of his defective sight. He said the man's family was very much in need of help.

Judge Rosalsky then asked Mrs. Oakley if her husband had treated her well, and she said:

"He certainly has, your Honor. He was well liked at the shop where he worked, and the people there have been very kind to me."

Judge Rosalsky consulted Assistant District Attorney Weller, and then said:

"I cannot suspend sentence upon your husband because of the character of the crime he has been convicted of, so I will sentence him to the Penitentiary and give you $25 to help you out until he gets back and can help you again."

A lawyer in the courtroom stepped up and, after getting Mrs. Oakley's address, said he would send her $25.

LAWRENCE STRIKE GROWS.

English Operatives Vote to Go Out, Making Total Over 16,000.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 19.—Considerable additions were made to-day to the ranks of the striking textile workers. At a meeting of 600 English-speaking operatives it was voted to join the strike, and as many more of the same class of operatives, it is said, will refuse to go to work to-morrow. The strikers say that the action of the English-speaking operatives may result in several mills being closed.

About 700 foreign operatives, mostly employed at the Arlington mills, also quit to-day, making the number of persons who are remaining away from work approximately 16,000. The strike now embraces every mill in the city.

The day was one of quiet. A heavy rain dampened the spirits of the strikers and there were no parades. It proved a day of rest for the militiamen, and nightfall found but one arrest made.

Infliction of heavy sentences upon strikers found with concealed weapons continued in the Police Court to-day. Judge Mahoney fined Etter Guianna, a member of the strikers' Executive Committee, $100 and sentenced him to one year in jail. The charges against him were rioting and carrying a concealed weapon.

COLLEGE HEAD RAPS GRADUATE SCHOOLS

Too Many Work Harder for Students Than for Results, Says Dr. Hutchins.

SYSTEM MUST BE REFORMED

University of Michigan Alumni at Their Annual Dinner Hear of $1,000,000 Fund Plan.

Dr. Harry Burns Hutchins, successor to the venerable Dr. James B. Angell as President of the University of Michigan, was the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the University of Michigan Alumni Club of New York at the Hotel Knickerbocker last night, and when he took the floor to give the toast to the University, he said that he had been reading the newspapers somewhat carefully of late and was not at all certain that it was safe for him to talk very much.

"From what I read in the last few days," President Hutchins said, "I am led to believe that when an humble professor makes a mistake his mistake is not that of a statesman, but that of a pedogogue."

All the speakers at the dinner, which was a large one, were Michigan men, and each sung the praise of the great school at Ann Arbor. Beside President Hutchins the speakers were Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University, L. I.; Barbour, en ex-regent of the University of Michigan; Congressman William Walter Wedemeyer of Michigan, and Dr. Eugene H. Porter, Commissioner of Health of the State of New York. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Director of Flower Hospital, was the toastmaster.

Tribute from Dr. Angell.

President Hutchins, who was the first speaker, began with a tribute to Dr. Angell, from whom he delivered a personal greeting to the alumni in New York, and then made his humorous reference to the Wilson-Harvey-Watterson incident. He soon became serious, however, and told of some of the big things that the University of Michigan is doing. First, he spoke of an arrangement for astronomical research that has been made with the University of Buenos Aires.

"Plans have been completed," he said, "for co-operation between the University of Buenos Aires and the University of Michigan in astronomical work, and the result is that the university will now share in the work of a great observatory in South America. One of the finest telescopes in the world is now being made for our observatory, the director of which is Dr. Hussey Professor of Astronomy at Ann Arbor."

President Hutchins next criticised the graduate school system as it now exists at some of the universities of the country.

Work Too Hard to Get Students.

"Many of these graduate schools," he said, "work too hard to get students and too little for results. Some of theme are not a credit to the country, and Michigan is not without fault of her own in this respect, but we are working at Ann Arbor to remedy this condition, and we expect soon to have a graduate school in the true sense of the word. There are men in many schools who ought to be pushed out into the world to do a man's work instead of hanging around universities. A reorganization of the system is needed, and at Michigan we are trying to accomplish a renascence. I do not care if we have only thirty students in the school if we only have a real one."

It was stated at the dinner that the alumni and the Regents of the university have planned to raise $1,000,000 for the erection and endowment of a club for the students at Ann Arbor.

Among those at the dinner were the Right Rev. Charles Sumner Burch, Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New York; Charles A. Towne, O. H. Cheney, L. C. Hull, who was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, and who captained the track team at the British university; Silas W. Dunning, Dr. John E. Weeks, Howard E. Chickering, Dr. William A. Ewing, Byron H. Waite, William McAndrew, James E. Howell, Alfred Noble, and Earl D. Babst.

Crushed to Death by Elevator.

J. Seigel, a painter, was crushed to death yesterday afternoon, when he was caught between the car and the counterbalance weights in the elevator shaft of the Cecelia Court Apartments, 49 S. Nicholas Terrace. Seigel, whose address is given as 567 East Fifteenth Street, but who, according to fellow-workmen, resides in the Bronx, was painting the shaft and was standing on the roof of the car between the third and fourth floors. Cyril Brown, a negro, in charge of the car, says he believes he got a signal to go up. As the car started Seigel slipped and fell between the steel side of the car and the weights and was crushed.

Coal for Detroit Tied Up in Toledo.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Two thousand carloads of coal billed for Detroit are tied up in the yards here, notwithstanding that Detroit has sent representatives here for the purpose of trying to get the supply to help out their shortage in that city. Toledo railroad men say that the inability of the Michigan roads to take off their hands the shipments billed to Detroit is the cause of the trouble.

Seize Furs for Unpaid Duties.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.—Twenty-five pieces of valuable furs consigned from Desjardin & Co. of Montreal to persons in this city were seized to-day by the customs authorities for non-payment of duties. The consignees said they purchased the furs with the understanding that Desjardin & Co. were to pay the duties. The case will probably go to Washington for adjustment.

110,000 Words on Persia

NOWHERE, owing to the cosmopolitan character of its composition, are the fundamental facts in the sphere of world politics discussed more accurately or more impartially than in the new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. It generally happens that in the chess game of diplomacy the ostensible occasion of an overt clash of interests is in itself of merely secondary importance. To understand the underlying causes of such a crisis as occurred over Morocco and seems likely to develop over Persia, it is necessary to penetrate below the surface and to picture the recent course of events in each of these countries as the inevitable outcome of its history, religion, geographical position, resources, aspirations, and environment.

The present interest in events in Persia has brought to light the fact that reliable, up-to-date information about that country is not easily accessible, and to meet the difficulty the new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica offers an exhaustive article running to 66 pages (some 110,000 words). Regarded by specialists as the most comprehensive, the most authoritative and the most modern account of everything connected with that country, this contribution at the same time illustrates the intrinsic interest and literary charm of the contents of the new Edition as well as its utility as an interpreter of current events.

The article is the joint production of the following authorities:

SIR A. HOUTUM-SCHINDLER, C.I.E., General in the Persian Army. Author of Eastern Persian Irak.
EDUARD MEYER, Ph.D., D.Litt., LL.D., Professor of Ancient History in the University of Berlin. Author of Geschichte des Alterthums, etc.
Major-General SIR FREDERIC JOHN GOLDSMID, (d. 1908), Late Director-General of the Indo-European Telegraph.

A Practical Work of Universal Usefulness

The new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is offered by the Press of the University of Cambridge as a fresh survey of the practical and useful, no less than of the learned and recondite things of life. Nothing is alien to it that interests or concerns the members of a civilized community, and it contains the largest body of information to be found in one work. At once exhaustive and comprehensive in the fullest sense of these terms, the work comprises 40,000 articles, 44,000,000 words, 7,000 text illustrations, 450 full-page plates and 569 maps. It is of even date, 1910, throughout, the entire text having remained under editorial control until the whole was finally released to the printer. Among the 1,500 scholars, specialist authorities, and practical experts of 21 countries who wrote its articles were included the Chancellors, Presidents, Professors and Lecturers of 81 Universities or Foundations of Learning. 202 of the contributors were Americans. The overhead editorial cost of production was $1,500,000, which was disbursed before a single volume was printed for sale.

A BOOK FOR EVERYBODY, the new 11th Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is offered at a price and on terms which bring it WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERYBODY. For Prospectus, particulars of the present special offer, etc., write (or if convenient call on)

HOE SALE TO DATE TOTALS $1,468,982

Part II. of the Great Library Dispersal Yields $471,618—Geo. D. Smith Largest Bidder.

EAST AND WEST CONTEST

Four Rare Editions of Americus Vespucius Captured by Chicagoan for $16,300 at Last Day's Session.

The final session of Part II. of the Hoe library sale was opened last evening at the Anderson Company's rooms with a first edition of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler; or, the Contemplative Man's Recreation," London, 1653, which George D. Smith obtained for $2,000. The total for the day was $40,650; the total for Part II., twenty sessions, $471,618, and the grand total for Part. I. and II., thirty-nine sessions, $1,468,982.

These are the figures given out last evening. The official figures will be slightly but not materially different. Part II. falls shorter of the half million mark than Part I. did of the million mark. Part I. brought $997,363.

George D. Smith is the largest buyer in Part II., as he was in Part I., his purchases now totaling about [illegible], as compared with $523,000 last Spring. Bernard Quaritch, again the second largest buyer, has a total now of about $123,000, as compared with $80,000 in Part I. Walter Hill, with about $30,000, is third in the contests for the business in Part II.

The absence of Henry E. Huntington and Miss Belle de Costa Greene, J. Pierpont Morgan's librarian, was one of the most conspicuous features of the present sale. Both were prominent in the Part I. disposal. Mr. Smith bought nearly everything of importance last evening. The chief items in addition to the Walton first edition, sold as follows:

"Compleat Angler," second edition, London, 1655, $450, (Smith.)

Third edition, London, 1661, $225, (Smith.)

Fourth edition, London, 1688, $230, (Drake.)

Hawkins's first edition of the "Compleat Angler," London, 1760-1811, $260, (Smith.)

William Pickering's edition of the "Compleat Angler," London, 1836, extra illustrated, $365, (Harper.)

The "Hekatompathia, or Passionate Centurie of Love," by Thomas Watson, London, 1582, one of six copies known, $2,000, (Smith:) the record price.

"A Discourse and Discovery of New-found-land," by Capt. Richard Whitbourne, London, 1620, $150, (Morris.)

"A Choice of Emblems and Other Devises," by Geffrey Whitney, Leyden, 1586, the first English book of emblems, $175 (Smith.)

"Astraea, or True Love's Myrrour," by Leonard Willan, with the rare portrait by Cross, London, 1651, $225 (Smith.)

"Life and Correspondence of Sir Thomas Lawrence," extra illustrated, London, 1831, $310.

"The Lord Marques Idleness," by William Powlet, Marquis of Winchester, London, 1587, apparently the only copy known with this date, $285 (Smith.)

"Love in a Wood, or St. James's Park," by William Wycherly, first edition, London, 1672, a tall copy of the dramatist's first book, $365 (Smith.)

An extremely rare work, "Sermo pro Episcopo puerorum," a quarto of twelve unnumbered leaves, printed at Westminster, about 1496, by Wynkyn de Worde, William Caxton's successor in the printing business, went to Mr. Smith for $1,225. The Hoe copy is the one that was in the J. F. Russell collection. It was sold in London in 1887 for $140. The price paid last evening is said to be the record. The copy in the British Museum differs from the Hoe example. The latter is in blue levant morocco, binding by C. Lewis.

Auctioneer Daniel R. Kennedy conducted both sessions. The cataloguing of Part II. by Arthur Swann and Dr. Giuseppe Martini was heartily commended. Both men also were of great assistance in giving comparisons between the Hoe and other auction prices of the different rarities as they came under the auctioneer's hammer.

East and West Clash.

The most spirited competition at the afternoon session was for possession of four rare editions of the voyages of Americus Vespuccius. The contest was really between the West and East, Chicago and New York. Chicago's representative was Walter M. Hill and Frank Dodd, of Dodd & Livingston, tried hard to gain the prizes for New York. Bernard Quaritch was the third competitor, but was outbid. Every one of the Vespuccius books was won by Mr. Hill at a total cost of $16,300. It is believed that they are for Newberry College.

Mr. Hill had to bid $8,000 to obtain the first of the four editions on the catalogue. It is the record price. It consists of two small quarto volumes, one of sixteen leaves and the other of six leaves. The two volumes are in binding by Zortie. The first volume is entitled, "Lettera di Amerigo Vespucci," and is undated, but was probably printed in Florence about 1505. The other volume is entitled, "Lettera di Andrea Corsali," and was printed in Florence in 1516.

The earlier dated volume is the first edition of the complete account of the four voyages of Vespuccius. Only four other copies are known, all of which are in European public libraries. The Hoe example is the Court-Kalbfleisch copy, which Mr. Hoe bought from Bernard Quaritch for $3,250, as shown by the original bill, laid in the book. Mr. Quaritch's representative yesterday bid $7,000 in an unsuccessful effort to regain possession of it.

Waldseemuller in his account of the voyages of Vespuccius, printed about April, 1507, either copied from this edition or from the manuscript on which it was founded. The Florence edition is by far the rarest of the known editions. There is a copy in the British Museum in the library presented to it in 1847 by Sir Thomas Grenville. So far the Hoe copy is the only one that has ever been in the possession of an American collector.

Vespuccius's "New World."

The "Mondus Novus," or Vespuccius's narrative of his third voyage, Rome, Eucharius Silber, 1504, cost Mr. Hill $2,500. This is also the record price. It is a fine tall copy. Only four other copies are known. It is probably the Barlow-Ives copy, which sold in 1891 for $800. An undated German edition of the third narrative went to Mr. Hill for $2,300, which is another record price. Seven other copies of this rarity are all that can be traced. It is probably the Barlow-Ives copy, which sold in 1891 for $1,075. The last of the Vespuccius editions, undated, but probably printed in 1515, was knocked down to the same bidder for $3,500, which is still another new record. It is in French, and contains, in addition to the voyages of Vespuccius, those of Columbus, Vasco da Gama, and other early navigators. It is probably the Ives copy, which sold in 1891 for $420.

Among the other rarities dispersed at the afternoon session were:

"Tristan Chevalier de la table ronde," Paris, Antoine Verard, Circa, 1506, $950, (Quaritch.)

First dated edition of "Factorum dictorumque," of Maximus Valerius, Mentz, Peter Schoeffer, 1471, $235. (Cameron.)

Adriaen Van der Dorick's "Vertoogh van Nieu-Neder-Land," small quarto, vellum, Graven-Haze, Michiel Stael, 1650, the most important work on the history of Old New York, or New Netherlands, printed up to that time, $445. (Dodd & Livingston.)

First edition of Van der Dorick's "Beschryvinge," Amsterdam, 1655, with the second engraved view of New York, $815. (Dodd & Livingston.)

An Amsterdam, 1656, edition of the same work, with folding maps of New Netherlands, $750. (Smith.)

"Silex Scintillans," by Henry Vaughan, the Silurist, first edition, London, 1650, $[illegible]. (Smith.) A record price.

"Les Oeuvres Maistre Francoys Villon," Paris, 1533, in binding by Mercier, $470. (Smith.)

"Opera" of Virgil, first Aldine edition, Venice, 1501, $850. (Morris.) A record price.

"Les Oeuvres de Virgile," Paris, 1540, $[illegible]. (Quaritch.) A record price.

"Romans et Contes" of Voltaire, three volumes, Bouillon, 1778, in binding by Marius Michael, $[illegible]. (Sloog.)

Voltaire's "La Henriade," Kehl, 1785, the only copy prited on vellum, presentation copy from the actress, Sarah Felix, with her autograph on half title, $250. (Drake.)

"Oeuvres de Voltaire," printed on large vellum paper, Paris, 1829-1840, $630.

Jacobus de Voragine's "Legenda Aurea," Lugduni, 1504, $[illegible] (Smith.)

First and rarest issue of the spurious first edition of "The Workes of Edmund Waller," London, 1645, $175. (Smith.)

"A Description of the Villa of Walpole," third edition, Strawberry Hill, 1784, extra-illustrated, $225. (Smith.)

The sale of Part III. of the library, which was announced to take place in March, may be postponed until April.

CRITCHFIELD WILL SETTLED.

Young Swinnerton Gets Share of New Jersey Adventurer's Estate.

Surrogate Cohalan approved yesterday a compromise by which Mrs. Caroline E. Swinnerton, as guardian of her son, Howard Norval Swinnerton, will get $7,278 under the will of George W. Critchfield, which left certain realty in Mexico, since sold for $15,000, and $5,260 to the boy.

W. J. T. Critchfield, brother of the dead man, has brought proceedings in Hudson County, N. J., to be appointed administrator of his brother's estate. The question had been raised that the will providing the legacy for young Swinnerton, while valid in New York, was not valid in New Jersey, and the brother of the dead man hoped to prove that New Jersey was his legal residence.

Critchfield was a well-known promoter of American enterprises in Latin-American countries. He was born in Missouri in May, 1862, and taught school and ran a weekly newspaper in Kansas. Later he went to Chicago and became a reporter first on the staff of the Inter-Ocean and then on that of the Tribune.

He became interested in South American commercial possibilities, learned the Spanish language and developed concessions in several of the Latin-American republics. He obtained large holdings in the asphalt fields of Trinidad, and during a controversy with the Venezuelan Government his claims were seized. He appealed to the State Department at Washington and received a large indemnity. He turned his attention next to Mexico, where he found favor with the Diaz government and received large tracts of land.

Critchfield returned to the United States, embarked in New Jersey politics and ran for Congress in the Ninth New Jersey District in 1908 against Eugene Kinkead, who defeated him. He had a large ranch at Tuxpan, near Tampico. He was shot by natives there on March 31, after he had testified in the trial of a Mexican laborer who had killed one of his co-workers in a knife duel. He died on April 7.

His death was the cause of diplomatic representations asking for the punishment of his assassins.

MRS. HUNT WON'T GIVE UP.

Again Tries to Have Dead ex-Husband's Divorce Decree Set Aside.

Counsel for Mrs. Bessie W. Hunt, the divorced wife of the late John W. Hunt, wealthy turpentine man of Los Angeles, made another attempt yesterday to reopen the divorce proceedings, for the purpose of having the court set aside the decree, thereby making her the legal widow of Hunt. This would place her in a position to claim her dower right in the $3,000,000 estate left by Hunt.

As Mrs. Hunt was divorced from her husband she is not legally his widow, and therefore may not claim a part of his estate. Proceedings to reopen the divorce suit was heard before Justice Stapleton in Brooklyn, and on Jan. 3 he rendered a decision denying the application of Mrs. Hunt.

Hunt died on Dec. 15, 1910, and Mrs. Hunt brought her action against the executors of his estate. Justice Stapleton decided that the executors could not be made parties in the action, as they were involved in the suit for divorce.

Mrs. Hunt's lawyers made their motion yesterday before Justice Stapleton on the ground that they had discovered a stipulation, agreed to by the lawyers for Hunt while the divorce proceedings were in progress, that the rights of Mrs. Hunt were not to be impaired by the adjournments which occurred frequently. This stipulation was overlooked when Mrs. Hunt brought her first action to reopen the case. Justice Stapleton took briefs and reserved decision.

Merrill President of Grain Exchanges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—J. C. F. Merrill, former President of the Chicago Board of Trade, was elected President of the Council of Grain Exchanges at the annual election of officers of the organization to-day. A plea for scientific farming was made by E. Pfarrius of New York, who declared that experiments have shown that 800,000,000 bushels of wheat can be grown on the land that under antiquated methods yielded only 300,000,000 bushels.

Fewer Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 361 business failures in the United States for the week, against 421 for the previous week and 302, 275, 307, and 408 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 112, New England 32, Southern 101, Western 55, Northwestern 25, and Far Western 36. Canada had 40, against 39 for the preceding week. About 88 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

POET WATSON COMING WITH DICKENS POEM

To Read It Himself, Maybe, at the Centenary Celebration in Carnegie Hall Next Month.

SETH LOW AS TOASTMASTER

He Will Preside at the Memorial Banquet to be Given at Delmonico's on Feb. 6.

William Watson, the English poet, it was announced yesterday, has accepted an invitation to write a commemorative poem to be read in Carnegie Hall on the night of Feb. 7, on the occasion of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens. Mr. Watson, who will long be remembered for another celebrated poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," may even come to New York to read his poem on the night of the celebration. He has written to say that he hopes to bring the poem over in person.

The plans for the celebration next month of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens are about completed. The celebration will last two days, beginning on Feb. 6, the eve of the anniversary. On that night the Dickens Centenary banquet will be held in Delmonico's. The last dinner function Dickens attended during his visit to the United States, nearly forty-four years ago, was in the Delmonico's of that day. That dinner was held a few days before he sailed from New York for his home in England.

On the anniversary day there will be a great meeting in memory of the novelist in Carnegie Hall. The Carnegie Hall celebration will be held under the auspices of the Dickens Centenary Committee in association with various other organizations, among them the Manhattan branch of the Dickens Fellowship, the Civic Forum, and the League for Political Education.

At the Dickens dinner ex-Mayor Seth Low will be toastmaster, and the speakers will be F. Hopkinson Smith, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, Charles Rann Kennedy, Miss Agnes Repplier, and William Bayard Hale. Edwin Markham will read a poem written for the occasion, and Sidney Valentine will recite selections from the works of Dickens.

The dinner will be preceded by an informal reception, at which the bronze Dickens Centenary medal will be exhibited. The medal will be the same size as the Lincoln medal, one side bearing a bas relief of Dickens and the reverse this inscription:

"To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens. Issued by the Dickens Centenary Committee of New York, Feb. 7, 1912."

The Dinner Committee is Edwin W. Coggeshall, Henry Clews, R. E. Ely, Elgin R. L. Gould, Norman Hapgood, A. Barton Hepburn, Robert Underwood Johnson, Marion Mills Miller, Alton B. Parker, Francis M. Scott, Isaac N. Seligman, Ernest Thompson Seton, and J. Woolsey Shepard. Mr. Shepard is Chairman of the committee.

Hamilton Wright Mabie will preside at the meeting in Carnegie Hall. Among the speakers on that occasion will be Dr. Henry van Dyke of Princeton University, President John H. Finley of the College of the City of New York, Augustus Thomas, and Elgin R. L. Gould.

Among the members of the Dickens Centenary Committee are ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, Andrew Carnegie, J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, and Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett.

Persons wishing to obtain information concerning the dinner or the Carnegie Hall celebration can get it by writing to the Civic Forum, 23 West Forty-fourth Street, New York.

MORE U. S. DEPOSITARIES.

Even State Banks and Trust Companies if Holding Postal Funds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The way has been opened, it developed to-day, for State banks and trust companies to be known as United States depositaries. According to the views of the Treasury Department, any financial institution in America—National, State bank, or trust company—holding postal savings deposits or other Government funds may assume that title without legal impediment, even though the designation is not officially conferred by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The privilege of becoming known as a depositary of the Nation's funds is much sought by every bank in the country, because it is presumed to convey an advantageous impression of character and stability. Of the 7,300 National banks, only about 1,400 are officially designated as United States depositaries. There are 14,000 State banks and trust companies, none of which are known as depositaries of the Federal Government.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, it is said, is constantly being besieged by Senators and Representatives in Congress to make National banks in their State or districts United States depositaries. In many cases one or two banks in a town are now so designated, while others in the same community are not. This, it is declared, works virtually as a discrimination by the Government, and the Treasury Department's decision is expected to solve the problem in large measure.

TAKING UP TELEPHONE STOCK

Nearly $10,000,000 Pledged as Collateral by Western Union to be Redeemed.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which in 1909 bought from the Western Union Telegraph Company some $16,000,000 of the stock of the New York Telephone Company, a Bell subsidiary, will come into the possession of the final $9,733,100 of its purchase after May 1. At the time of the purchase it was explained that $9,733,100 of the stock had been pledged in 1906 as collateral for $10,000,000 convertible 4 per cent. collateral bonds of the telegraph company, of which $8,000,000 are outstanding.

These bonds, which are due in 1936, are redeemable May 1 at 105. The Western Union has sent out notice to the holders that it will exercise its privilege of redeeming the bonds on May 1, and thereafter the released collateral will be turned over to the telephone company. The bonds will be paid off through the Equitable Trust Company, Trustee of the mortgage.

MARIANNA MINES TO REOPEN.

Pittsburgh-Buffalo Co. Also to Increase Work at Annabelle Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 19.—The Pittsburg-Buffalo Company announced to-day that it will resume operation of its Marianna, Penn., mines in full in the near future. It also will fire its 200 coke ovens and will require an additional 1,100 men. The same company is increasing its work at its Annabelle mine, Marion County, West Va., and its Dorothy mine, Raleigh County, West Va., and will need 200 additional men at each place.

Contracts have been closed for the entire ouput of the company during 1912. With the additional men at work the product at the Marianna mines will reach 10,000 tons a day.

DRUG TRADE GOING UPTOWN.

Movement Starts with One Into a Big Building in Greenwich Village.

What appears to the wholesale drug trade of this city to be uptown looks decidedly downtown to many others. But A. Klipstein & Co., which, ever since 1871, has carried on the business of importing chemicals, gums, and aniline dyes at 82 Beaver Street, has decided to join the northward movement, to a limited extent at least, and has rented a new eight-story building at Greenwich and Barrow Streets. It will use the entire building, which is more conveniently situated for the steamship lines than the old one. It is reported that other big drug firms will follow, and it begins to look as if old Greenwich Village were to be "drugged into new life."

Invite Canadian Pacific to Boston.

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—An order inviting the Canadian Pacific Railroad to extend its lines to Boston and worded in the same language as the order adopted last year asking the Grand Trunk system to come to this system was introduced in the House of Representatives to-day by Representative P. P. Sullivan of Boston. Action on the order was laid over until Monday.

POSTAL'S APPEAL DISMISSED

Appellate Court Affirms Judgment for $39,410 in Favor of Weld & Co.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court dismissed yesterday the appeal of the Postal Telegraph Company from a $39,410 verdict in favor of the Cotton Exchange house of Stephen M. Weld & Co. The amount was claimed for the transposition of two figures in a message to the firm's New Orleans correspondent in December, 1905. The defense of the telegraph company was that the message had not been ordered repeated at an extra charge and that by not paying the extra fee and having the message repeated the firm had waived all claim to any damages above $50.

Two juries gave the cotton firm verdicts, the first for $10,000, which was affirmed in the Appellate Division, but reversed by the Court of Appeals on the ground that the trial judge had refused to instruct the jury that they might consider the defendant's collateral contention that the message concerned a gambling transaction. This question was also raised by the telegraph company on the second trial, on which the larger verdict was given.

The message as sent by the firm was: "Sell 20,000 March, 12.70." In the message as received the figures were reproduced as 12.07. For this the firm claimed $37,565, which they said was the amount they had lost by the transposition. In respect to the main contention of the company that it was not liable for errors in an unrepeated message, the court held that it was liable for the negligence of its employes in all messages.

VOTE TO LEASE RAILROAD.

Boston & Maine to Run Suncook Line for at Least Two Years.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 19.—The Suncook Valley Railroad is to remain a part of the Boston & Maine system for at least two years. The stockholders at a meeting here to-day voted to lease the road for two years to the Concord & Montreal Railroad, of which the Boston & Maine is lessee, on a 3 per cent. yearly rental basis.

The refusal of the Suncook stockholders to renew their long-standing lease to the Boston & Maine, when President Mellen notified them that the rental price would have to be radically reduced, attracted much attention last month. The stockholders on Dec. 13 voted to operate their road independently after Jan. 1. A compromise was effected, however, whereby the rental price was raised slightly over President Mellen's first offer, with the stipulation that the lease should run for only two years. The line runs from Suncook to Pittsfield and Center Barnstead, a distance of about seventeen miles.

EVILS AT FARM COLONY.

Grand Jury Finds That City Institution Needs Many Reforms.

The Richmond County Grand Jury made a presentment to Supreme Court Justice Clarke yesterday concerning the New York City Farm Colony at New Springville, Staten Island. The investigation was prompted by the scalding to death of Harry Williams, an inmate, for which two fellow-inmates who acted as orderlies have been indicted for murder.

The Grand Jury reported that 236 of the 1,100 inmates are suffering from idiocy, imbecility, senility, epilepsy, and chronic diseases, and that the insane inmates roam about among the others. The special committee which made the investigation found that ex-convicts were employed as orderlies, one of them a man who had served twelve terms in prison. There was no adequate medical attention, the committee reported.

Among the Grand Jury's recommendations are an appropriation from the Board of Estimate sufficient to provide enough orderlies to supervise the inmates, to provide decent medical attention, and separation of the insane and sick from the healthy inmates. The Grand Jury also recommends that no ex-convicts be sent to the colony to mingle with the unfortunates who were forced to go there by poverty.

Confederate Veterans Celebrate.

The Confederate Veteran Camp of New York held its annual camp fire last night at the Hotel Astor. During the evening speeches were made by Archibald Gracie on the "Battle of Chickamauga," and Dudley Field Malone on "Robert E. Lee." Mrs. Upton Slingluff sang a number of Southern songs. Congressman Richard E. Connell of Dutchess County, who arrived late in the evening, made an impromptu speech to the guests of the camp. The arrangements were carried out by Commander Robert W. Gwathmey and an executive committee consisting of Powhatan Weisiger, Fred S. Hipkins, Walter L. McCorkle, and Dr. J. Herbert Claiborne.

NOTICE

Further examination has fully confirmed the statement contained in the notice heretofore published to the effect that the vaults of this Company are intact, and that no damage has resulted to the contents thereof.

Arrangements are now being made for the continuance of the Company's business, and as soon as completed, notice will at once be given. In the meantime, the Company is having the premises carefully guarded by its own watchmen. In addition to this, adequate protection is being afforded by the Police Department of the City of New York.

As soon as the Building Department pronounces the walls safe and the debris is removed, the safeholders will be able to have access to their safes.

VON BERNSTORFF TELLS OF MOROCCO

Feels Free to Write of the German-French Incident Because It Is History Now.

CESSION OF TERRITORY MADE

Germany Could Not Have Restored Order in the First Instance, Except by Going to War with the Powers.

Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to the United States, discusses the Moroccan question in the current number of The Outlook, so far as it affects Germany and France. He says the question has passed out of its controversial stage and has become history, so that it may be viewed impartially. Until 1904 England and France had been contending for supremacy in Morocco. In April of that year came the Anglo-French agreement, and in the Fall a French banking syndicate contracted a new large loan with Morocco.

Count von Bernstorff says that the banks composing this syndicate obtained privileges of large importance which seemed to decide the eventual fate of the Sultan's empire. The German Emperor visited Tangier, and in a few months came the conference of Algeciras, which proclaimed the independence of Morocco, the sovereignty of the Sultan, and the "open door." Police powers were given to France and Spain in eight open Moroccan ports, and the loan of the banking syndicate was amended and then ratified. But owing to the long Algero-Moroccan border line the conference could not prevent French influence in Morocco from increasing.

Conditions in Morocco were wholly unsettled and untenable, and so there were opportunities for the exertion of French influence. The only way Germany could have prevented this in the first instance was by restoring order, and this could only be done by going to war with the powers hostile to such action. The only way the German Government could protect German commercial interests in Morocco was by getting French protection for them. This was done by the Moroccan agreement of Feb. 9, 1909. Then M. Pichon retired from the French Foreign Office and M. Cruppi took his place. Advantage was taken of this change by colonial fanatics to obtain consent for the expedition to Fez on the pretence that it was needed to protect the military mission and the European colony from the rebellious tribes. Repeated assurances were given that the military forces would be withdrawn to the coast, but it became evident that the larger part of the country would soon be controlled by French agents and military authorities. Then Count von Bernstorff says:

"During all this time semi-official German newspapers had constantly reiterated that, according to communications received in Germany, the Europeans in Fez were not at all in danger. When these hints proved to be of no effect the North German Gazette, on April 30, 1911, addressed a new warning to France, which could not be misunderstood, declaring that a Sultan governing with the aid of France no longer represented the sovereign Sultan as defined by the Algeciras act, and that Germany, therefore, would be entitled to resume her former freedom of action. This warning was not heeded. Events took their course, and it was soon clear that the south of Morocco would also be drawn into the growing unrest. In this case the security of the Europeans living there—among them many Germans—might indeed have been in danger, since there were no French troops in the south and no forces of the Sultan which could be counted on."

Count von Bernstorff says that Germans did ask for protection, and in June the German cruiser Panther was sent to Agadir. French public opinion understood the meaning of this step, for Germany could not occupy some part of Morocco without a long and continual display of military force out of proportion to the possible gain. A large force would have been necessary, for otherwise the sturdy tribes of South Morocco could not have been subjected to German rule. Knowledge that the expedition to Fez was a mistake was soon understood in Paris, and the only way out was to pay, and there was no doubt in France as to the price Germany would ask. What she asked for were increased and precise guarantees for the maintenance of the open door in Morocco. Then Count von Bernstorff says:

"On the other hand, a compensation in the form of colonial territory which had already often enough been mentioned during the earlier phases of the Morocco affair. Frequently the desire had been expressed in Germany that such a step should be taken. The Government, however, had hesitated, hoping that the independence of Morocco might be maintained. This hope was now destroyed by the force of events, and Germany might be considered lucky for having been able to return to the idea of compensation. It is well known that from the beginning this compensation was desired in the French Congo, in order to unite as much as possible the adjoining German colonies on the western coast of Africa. This goal was reached by the recent Morocco agreement between France and Germany, which gave to the latter power access to the Congo and the Ubanghi."

In conclusion Count von Bernstorff says that, while opinions may differ as to the value of the territory ceded to Germany, the Germans have received valuable guarantees for their interests in Morocco. Also it furnishes the German Government a powerful instrument to enable it to permanently protect German interests. The text of the agreement protects the interests of all nations.

CHARLTON MUST STAY IN JAIL.

No Chance of His Release on Bail, New Jersey Officials Say.

Porter Charlton, the young bank clerk, who murdered his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, at Lake Como, in Italy, in June, 1910, is perfectly sane, according to the District Attorney and the jail officers of Hudson County, N. J. He is still occupying the same cell in the Hudson County jail that was assigned to him when he was taken there in the Summer of 1910. Charlton is in splendid health.

At the office of the District Attorney it was said there was absolutely no chance of the young man being released on bail, and that he will remain in jail pending the outcome of the proceedings which are to determine whether he is to be returned to Italy for trial. The case is now before the Supreme Court of the United States and a decision is not expected before some time early in 1913.

SUES FOR $50,000.

Inez Morton Mundy Wants That Sum from Cunliffe Owen for False Arrest.

Inez Morton Mundy filed suit for $50,000 damages yesterday in the Supreme Court against Fritz Cunliffe Owen, a Director of the St. George's Society. Her complaint recites that on Jan. 24, 1910, Mr. Owen caused her arrest on a charge that she was an undesirable alien of an excluded class, and asked her deportation. She was taken into custody by the immigration authorities and lodged on Ellis Island, where, she avers, she was thrown into dirty quarters with women of vile character, many of whom were suffering from loathsome diseases, and detained until March 10, when she was declared innocent of the charge against her and released by order of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

"Mrs. Mundy and her husband applied to the St. George Society, in which I am interested, for aid," Mr. Owen said last night. "In our investigations of the case we learned of things which we thought desirable to communicate to the Department of Commerce and Labor. The communication was one we had a right to make, and it was made confidentially."

BELLCOURT INN DRIES UP.

Court Sustains Restrictions of Old Quaker Deed Against Sale of Liquors.

Bellcourt, a section of Bayside, L. I., which includes the residences of New York business and professional men, is to be free from the sale of malt or spirituous liquors. A deed given by one of the old-time Long Island Quakers to a large farm that had been in the possession of his family for a century and a half contained a provision that as a condition of sale the use of any part of the land for the sale of liquors should be forever prohibited. This title deed and the restrictive clause were upheld by Justice Garretson yesterday in the Special Term of the Queens County Supreme Court.

The decision was given on an application for a permanent injunction restraining Alfred W. Binns and Thomas C. Henry, Jr., from selling liquor in the Bellstone Inn on Bell Avenue in Bayside. Louis Santo Massimo, who has a villa adjoining the Bellstone property, applied for the injunction. He was supported by his neighbors in Bellcourt, who did not want to see their district invaded by liquor sellers. Bellcourt Inn is the most pretentious and costly house in the district.

The Bellcourt property was formerly a part of the Bell estate in Bayside. The last owner was Abram Bell, one of the principal speakers in the quarterly meetings of the Friends in the old Quaker meeting house in Flushing, which his ancestors helped to build in 1675. When Bell was persuaded to sell his farm about six years ago to real estate developers he was careful to insert a clause, drawn in the most careful manner, to the effect that no owner should ever be permitted to sell liquor. This was so drawn that the restriction would go with every parcel of the land, no matter how small or how large.

Justice Garretson yesterday decided that this restriction had been so carefully drawn that it was binding to all time.

GUY TRIAL REPORT LOST.

Wife-Slayer Seeks Clemency, but Stenographer's Record Has Vanished.

Dr. Samuel S. Guy, ex-Coroner of Queens, who is serving a fifteen-year term in Sing Sing for killing his wife, has appealed to Gov. Dix for clemency, and last night the announcement was made by ex-District Attorney Ira G. Darrin, who prosecuted Dr. Guy, that the stenographer's report of the trial is missing. The volume was on file in his office when he was succeeded as District Attorney by Frederick G. De Witt three years ago. Mr. De Witt was one of the attorneys who defended Dr. Guy.

Without this record of the trial, Mr. Darrin said last night, he will be unable to make the report to the Governor customary in cases where an appeal is made for executive clemency. He also declared that following the conviction of Guy he had discovered evidence which, had it been produced before the jury, would have sent Guy to the electric chair. In answer to a communication to this effect to the Governor, Mr. Darrin said that he had been referred to Owen L. Potter, Gov. Dix's executive legal assistant.

Just who is back of the movement to obtain a pardon for Dr. Guy does not appear. His wife was Lillian Mott, daughter of Benjamin Mott, one of the old pioneers of Far Rockaway. Guy was a dentist. The shooting occurred on April 8, 1907, at Far Rockaway, where the Guys lived. Guy had been drinking, and coming home had words with his wife. He made a remark that caused her to slap him in the face. A few minutes later Annie Hansen, a servant in the house, heard three pistol shots, and found Mrs. Guy lying on the floor dead. Guy was apprehended on his way toward the railroad station. The jury found him guilty of manslaughter.

It was pointed out last night that since Mrs. Guy died intestate, if Guy obtains a pardon he will be entitled to the use of her real estate and one-half of her personal estate for life.

YACHT CLUB MEN DINE.

Thousand Islanders Bar Speeches and Look at Pictures.

About half of the 160 members of the Thousand Islands Yacht Club gathered in the Sun Parlor of the Waldorf-Astoria last night for the annual dinner. There were no speeches because the members thought their guests would rather see pictures of the Thousand Islands from the day it was first discovered by the white men to the birthday of the club. And especially they wanted to see the pictures of the Equitable Building fire that were loaned by Frank Dyer of the Edison Company. Mr. Dyer wanted to see them himself, but he was kept away by illness.

Among the members and guests present were T. A. Gillespie, Commodore; E. R. Nichols, Vice Commodore; N. Oliphant, Rear Commodore; C. L. Hayden, Treasurer; George C. Boldt and his son, and H. E. Miles, Mr. Boldt's son-in-law; J. S. Blackton, H. P. Davidson, A. H. Wiggin, C. H. Sabin, W. H. Porter of J. P. Morgan & Co.; D. E. Pomeroy, O. H. Cutter, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, J. D. White, A. R. Peacock, Charles Bouchet, Howard Maxwell, S. Millett, E. P. Rowe, J. D. Hammond, President of the Superior Steel Company; P. S. Dyer of the American Horseshoe Company; T. J. Williams of the Standard Oil Company, George C. Sherman, and Alexander Robb.

The home of the club is on Alexandria Bay. The club has been very successful in the yacht races on the St. Lawrence. The last winner was Mitt II., that captured the gold cup offered last year by the American Power Boat Company.

CONFESSES BANCROFT THEFT

Charles Ross Tells How Aged Broker Was Robbed in Street.

Charles Ross, who was arrested in Winnipeg, Canada, a few weeks ago, for implication in the robbery of $68,000 worth of securities from Aaron J. Bancroft, the head of George Bancroft & Co., brokers, at 16 Beaver Street, was arraigned before Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions yesterday. He was remanded to the Tombs for pleading, and later in the afternoon was taken before Assistant District Attorney Emory R. Buckner, to whom he made a complete confession.

Ross said that he and Si Yates, who has not been arrested, met Mr. Bancroft on March 2 last, jostled him, and knocked from his hand a package containing the securities. Then they substituted another package similar in appearance to that carried by Mr. Bancroft.

Ross was arrested while attempting to sell $30,000 worth of American Smelters stock. This was the stock not accounted for by Daniel O'Reilly, the lawyer, who was convicted of receiving stolen property last Spring, it being proved that he had returned to Mr. Bancroft $38,000 worth of the stolen stocks which he received from Frank J. Plass, a jeweler, who was in the plot and turned State's evidence. He testified that the stock had been given him by Ross and Si Yates.

COURT WARNS TAXI DRIVERS.

Sentencing Taylor, Justice Steinert Threatens All Drunken Chauffeurs.

John F. Taylor, a taxicab chauffeur who was arrested on Wednesday for driving his taxicab alongside of the procession of the homecoming of his Eminence John Cardinal Farley and was found to be intoxicated, was sentenced yesterday in Special Sessions to three months in the Penitentiary by Justices Steinert, Mayo, and Salmon. In sentencing the man Justice Steinert said:

"This is a most serious charge. Think of a man while in a state of beastly intoxication driving a car through such a thoroughfare as Fifth Avenue while a procession is in progress. You are a menace to life. I want all the chauffeurs in the city to understand that this court will have no mercy upon them when they are found guilty of driving an automobile while intoxicated."

HIBBEN'S PLANS FOR PRINCETON

New President Tells Orange Alumni He Will Conserve the University's Traditions.

HAS NO READY-MADE POLICY

Pledges Himself Unreservedly and Enthusiastically to Support Preceptorial System and Graduate College.

John Grier Hibben, the new President of Princeton, outlined his plans for the university at a dinner given in his honor at the Essex County Country Club last evening, by about 150 Princeton alumni living in the Oranges. It was the first public address President Hibben has made since he was elected.

Prof. Hibben announced at the beginning of his speech that he had no ready-made policy for Princeton, and no set of politics. Said he: "As to the policies of my administration I am confident that they will evolve naturally out of the situations and conditions which will inevitably confront me in the development of our university life." Prof. Hibben spoke at length upon those subjects of especial concern to Princeton—the new Graduate College, democracy on the campus, the club life of Princeton, and the preceptorial system.

President Hibben said:

"I do not expect to begin my administration by any shock of radical change, in fact, I contemplate no changes whatsoever for the present and for the immediate future, as regards the officers of the university and its general machinery of departmental and committee work. Instead, at the first meeting of the Faculty after my election to the office of President I announced that the organization of the university would continue as at present, until the end of this academic year.

"As I interpret the messages which have come to me from Princeton men, I am deeply impressed with the fact that they expect me above and before everything else to conserve the old Princeton traditions. This responsibility I gladly accept, and to it I pledge my constant and loyal effort. In this connection I wish it very distinctly understood how I use this word 'conserve.' I use the phrase 'conservation of Princeton traditions' in its philosophical sense. Conservation in this sense signifies progress without loss of essential values. It does not mean standing still, but it means going forward. It means, too, that the old values, where those values have a permanent and universal significance, may disappear indeed in the old forms, but they are to be constantly transmuted into the new and living forms of present need and present opportunity. If we are to develop healthfully and vigorously in Princeton it must be, I am fully persuaded, according to the methods of evolution rather than those of revolution.

"I feel, also, that it is incumbent upon me, as far as it within me lies, to conserve the democratic spirit of Princeton, and by that I mean the spirit which judges a man among his fellow-men always upon his own merit and never upon the consideration of any adventitious circumstances of birth or of wealth. I believe that this spirit is here in Princeton to-day, and it has been here from the beginning.

"It is a solemn obligation laid upon me, and upon every Princeton man, to see that we preserve the simplicity of our campus life, and that, too, against all the forces which set in a strong drift toward materialistic standards, and materialistic values. I believe we have far less of this drift in Princeton than in the outside world.

"In this connection I wish to say a word in reference to the organization of undergraduate social life in Princeton. The upper class clubs have their obvious faults and defects, but these faults and defects have not as yet grown into serious evils. I believe they are remediable, and it behooves us at the present time to look for symptoms of health, rather than symptoms of disease.

"There is only one perfect system in Princeton, concerning which I believe it is impossible for any one to suggest a betterment. I refer to our honor system, and the history of that system is to us, who have the responsibility of the undergraduate life upon us, most significant. It is a system inaugurated and conducted by the undergraduates themselves. It rose out of undergraduate sentiment, and is maintained by the spirit of the place. Therefore, it seems to me, that, taking a hint from this suggestive fact, we must bring the undergraduates into our confidence and request them to co-operate with us in the task of effecting a solution of the problem of undergraduate life. Therefore, I would go down to the very roots of this system, not to destroy, but to nourish and invigorate them. And to this end we must endeavor, as far as possible, to elevate the conception of human life itself and to increase throughout our whole student body the compelling sense of human sympathy and responsibility.

"I have been teaching philosophy in Princeton for over twenty years. The time has now come for me to apply that philosophy to life, and if it has any value whatever, it should admit of application to the most serious problems which can confront us. And in this connection, particularly, the true philosophy of life seems to me to ground the significance of essential values upon the great central idea of responsibility.

"Moreover, there should be established from the very beginning of my administration a thoroughly democratic relation between the President of the university and the whole undergraduate body. It is my earnest wish to be accessible at all times to any undergraduate who may need my advice, or help, and this not merely in reference to some important problem or situation of general interest in our academic life, but in reference to any individual trouble or perplexity which may burden him individually and which possibly my sympathy may be able to ease. In my office as President, I regard myself not merely the servant of the Board of Trustees and of the Faculty, but of every man among the undergraduates and the great body of our alumni.

"I pledge myself unreservedly and enthusiastically to the support of our general course of study and to our preceptorial system, and I shall give myself untiringly to advance the interests of that great educational project, the Graduate College of Princeton University. We wish to make it the home of learning, and the centre of scholarly influence, which will have most far-reaching results. To lay the foundation so deep and broad that it will develop man in his full powers, then let him be trained for the special work that he is to do in the world.

"Finally, a word in relation to the Princeton traditions of religion. It will be my duty and my privilege, both in season and out of season, to maintain and set forward all of the influences in our academic life which make for the true spirit of religion. Princeton has always stood, and I trust always will stand, for the Christian religion interpreted in a broad and tolerant sense. We welcome men of all denominations to Princeton, and we wish it distinctly understood that Princeton, as an institution, is pledged to a simple but firm belief in the God of our fathers, who founded this place in faith and in love.

"I would close the confession of my faith in what I believe to be the Princeton idea, to which the Princeton spirit renders its loyal allegiance and devotion: No pedantry in scholarship, no affectation in manners, no hypocrisy in morals, no dissimulation in friendship, and no cant religion."

The dinner was an enthusiastic affair, and before Prof. Hibben arose to make his address he listened to various happy speeches from prominent Princeton graduates, their text being mainly congratulations and good wishes. Job E. Hedges spoke for the New York Alumni, William D. Moffat, for Princeton men living in New Jersey; Parker D. Handy, for the Trustees; Prof. Howard McClenahan, for the Faculty, and J. N. Ewing, for the undergraduates of Princeton. Others of prominence who were present, were the Rev. Edward S. Lines, Bishop of New Jersey; Chief Justice William S. Gummere, and Chancellor Mahlon Pitney.

DR. FISHER MUST PAY UP.

Court Refuses to Stop Alimony Allowance of Mrs. Roland Hinton Perry.

Supreme Court Justice Cohalan refused yesterday to grant the application of Dr. James T. Fisher to be relieved of paying $50 a week alimony to his former wife, who is now the wife of Roland Hinton Perry, the sculptor. Dr. Fisher is married again and living with his new wife in Los Angeles. He owes Mrs. Perry, she says, $5,050 on account.

Mrs. Perry told Justice Cohalan that the alimony was awarded to her, not for herself, but for the support of her son, William Carlyle Fisher. The boy is now 21 years old, according to Dr. Fisher, and ought to support himself. Mrs. Perry told the court that she neded the alimony badly, because her second husband's earning capacity had been impaired by a term of six months in Ludlow Street Jail, to which he was sent for not paying alimony to the wife who preceded her as Mrs. Perry.

Perry was one of the most distinguished members of the Allimony Club during his stay there.

JAPANESE DOCTOR HELD.

After He Prescribed for a Medical Society Investigator.

Shoichi Makamura, a Japanese doctor, was arraigned before Magistrate Appleton in the Harlem Court this morning, charged by the County Medical Society with practicing medicine in this city without a license, and was held in $500 bail for trial. Mrs. Francis Benzcry, an agent for the society, testified that he did not display a doctor's sign, but that he prescribed for her. Through an interpreter, Makamura said he was wealthy and a graduate of a large medical college in Japan. He said that when Mrs. Benzcry applied to him to prescribe for her he did so, and that she forced a payment of $2 on him.

Woman Hit by F. J. Gould's Auto Sues

Catherine E. Devenny, a milliner, started suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Frank J. Gould for $5,000 damages for personal injuries. She says she was run down and injured May 5 last at the corner of Broadway and Houston Street by one of Gould's motor cars. Since that time, she declares, she has suffered from insomnia, nervousness, and pains in her back. Gould's answer was not filed yesterday.

Dr. Jefferson to Preach at Columbia.

Announcement was made at Columbia University yesterday that the Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, had accepted the invitation of the Trustees to deliver the sermon to the graduating class at the Baccalaureate services, which will be held in the university gymnasium on Sunday, June 2.

Riders of the Purple Sage
By Zane Grey

Here is an American romance of a time and place and life which seem as strange, picturesque, and dramatic as the days of Lorna Doone. The scene is the vast plains of purple sage-brush and the canon fastnesses of southern Utah, when "rustlers," "gun-men," and avenging Mormons made their own laws. It is the story of men who dared greatly and women who could both ride and love.

A Personal Record
By Joseph Conrad

As author and seaman Conrad tells in this book the beginnings and interweavings of his two passions. There are picturesque recollections of his childhood in exile with his patriot Polish father, his romantic feeling at his first physical touch of an English ship, his voyages into out-of-the-way parts of the world—the Congo and other romantic places.

Music and Morals
By H. R. Haweis

Just published in a new and enlarged edition, with forty pages of illustrations. The term is comprehensive and here covers the author's elaborate analysis of the connection of music with emotion. The biographies of great musicians and the chapters describing the development of the piano and violin from humble beginnings are particularly valuable.

PERMANENT FICTION

The Iron Woman
By Margaret Deland

The January number of The Bookman officially reports "The Iron Woman" the best selling novel in America. The December number of The Bookman also reported "The Iron Woman" the best selling novel for the month before—showing it to be the favorite novel of the Holiday Season.

The Ne'er-Do-Well
By Rex Beach

A novel of breathless movement of tropical feeling, of delightful humor.

"Particularly attractive on account of its intensely dramatic situations." — Brooklyn Eagle.

"Beach has scored a ten-strike . . . . Plenty of action and good-humor." — Detroit News.

"Extremely exciting—there is no putting it aside."—Denver Times.

"The most breathlessly interesting novel of the last half-dozen years." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PETER RUFF
and the Double-Four
BY
E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Mr. Oppenheim is at his best when dealing with the plot and counterplot of the underground politics of Europe. Peter Ruff, who first establishes himself as a crime investigator and private detective, and later becomes the chief of one of the most powerful secret societies of Europe—the "Double-Four"—is one of Mr. Oppenheim's masterly character creations. Peter's adventures form one of the most engrossing novels that the fertile pen of Mr. Oppenheim has ever written.

As President of several Public Utility Corporations, the author is a considerable employer of labor, but he knows both sides of the question thoroughly and gives a sympathetic treatment from the laborer's point of view as well as the capitalist's. The book is "safe and sane." Now is the time to get clear views on the momentous question of relations between capital and labor.

"If Huck Finn ever had a brother, this is he."

By DON MARQUIS

Danny's Own Story

¶ Danny enters upon the scene nameless, a baby in a basket, abandoned before the door of Hank Walters, the blacksmith. From that very minute, the fun begins—real, delicious, irresistible fun.

¶ Autobiographically, Danny says: "There wasn't nothin' perdicted of me, and I done like it was perdicted. If they was devilment anywhere about that town they all says 'Danny he done it.' And like as not I has. So I gets to be what you might call an outcast."

¶ The boy runs away presently with a peripatetic "Doctor" whose mission is to make known the wonderful powers of "Siwash Indian Sagrahi" and he plunges into the kaleidoscopic life of the patent-medicine fakir, small circus shows and so on, with a zest in life and a human philosophy in his side-splitting humor that are quite amazing.

The Way of an Eagle

By E. M. Dell

With Frontispiece in Color by John Cassel. $1.35 net. By mail, $1.50

A love story that moves with unhesitating sureness through a swift succession of events to an impressive climax. Clear-sighted and steadfast of purpose, unbending in the pursuit of his aim as an eagle making its swoop, the hero is an absorbing figure. How the heroine responds to the appeal that the strong and the great and the lovable in man make to the impressionable woman is told in a story rich in incident and adventure.

The Joyous Wayfarer

By Humfrey Jordan

$1.30 net. By mail, $1.45

The author depicts entertainingly what is commonly treated in a manner of ridiculous extravagance—the artistic temperament. The hero at first tries to serve two masters, art and the law, but the story tells how he followed the call of his genius. Much romance and comedy attend The Joyous Wayfarer on his journey through life. It is by a clear thinker, a masterly writer.

ATTELL'S BEATING CAUSES DISCUSSION

Little Boxing Master Tried All He Knew in the Brown Bout.

The Brown-Attell bout at the National Sporting Club Thursday night was the sole topic of discussion among sporting men yesterday, and while many were of the opinion that Attell was not doing his best there were many more who held an opinion directly opposite. And the impression seems to be growing among men who follow boxing closely that Attell has passed the day when he can go out of his class and expect to overcome the handicaps of extra weight and strength by his once marvelous cleverness.

In other words sporting men figure that Attell has seen his best days and is fast slipping from the high pedestal which he occupied for so many years. No boxer can go on forever, no matter how clever he may be, and Abe has gone on much longer than the average. His day as the greatest boxer of his time is a thing of the past, as was decisively proved at Madison Square Garden last September when he essayed to outpoint Matt Wells, the English lightweight champion, and was made to look almost like a novice at the scientific side of the game, in which he had ruled for years as king. So badly outclassed was the featherweight champion on that occasion that he announced the following day that he would devote all his future efforts to boxers of his own class and let the lightweights have it out for themselves. He clung steadfastly to this resolution until he fought Knockout Brown, and Brown showed him that a lightweight who lacks cleverness is his master.

Whether or not Attell did his best against Brown will probably always remain a subject for debate, but there certainly were features of that contest which can never be satisfactorily explained to men who have followed the game for years, and one is this: "What reason would a man have to allow himself to be pounded so hard as Attell was pounded Thursday night by Brown?" Certainly no sane man would subject himself to such treatment if he could prevent it, and Attell is still given credit for being sensible. It is true that the blows never put Attell in any serious distress, but there can be no denying that they carried a sting, and while no one blow might have carried enough steam for a knockout, a series of wallops such as Brown let fly at Attell when the latter was against the ropes in the fourth round could not have continued much longer without flooring Attell or any one else against whom they might land with such ceaseless regularity as they landed on little Abe. It was the bell at the end of the round, rather than any work by Attell that ended this shower of wallops. If Abe was stalling at this particular time he was carrying the little game so far as to be dangerously close to a knockout, and few will believe that Attell or any other boxer is willing to be pounded like a dub and finally knocked into insensibility.

What is this stalling? Is it intended to mean that one fighter will allow himself to be pounded at will? What for? The answers are many to this question, but bring no one to any logical station.

Attell always gave a lot of people the impression that he was holding something back—just as men in other lines of business have given false impressions, but these were studied more carefully and by smart people so that their bluffs were called sometimes before they got too far on the road.

It hasn't been Attell's fault that a lot of Indians, who sit around a boxing ring and yell their heads off about nothing in particular give him more credit than is his due. Every bout in which he does not show up so strongly as to make his opponent appear ridiculous leads to the charge that he stalled and much of the credit which might belong to an opponent is denied to him, simply because of Abe's cunning habits. The fact that the road which every pugilist travels must lead to Reno if the champion continues to fight is lost sight of in the knowledge that Attell was once a wonder. Abe will have his colors lowered, as have all the stars of the past and his old tricks are serving him in good stead. They form a grand excuse for any poor showing which he may make.

Howard and Mantell Draw.

Willie Howard and Battling Mantell boxed ten rounds to a draw last night at the American A. A., in Brooklyn, before a good-sized crowd. Howard used hard rights to the ribs throughout and showed himself in possession of a good jab. Mantell used short rights to the body effectively. In the eighth round Mantell was floored with a hard right to the jaw. Up to the seventh round the battle was evenly contested. Howard gained the honors in the next and Mantell led in the ninth, while the final round was all square.

In the semi-final Eddie Lennox made Frankie Lewis quit after two minutes of the first round. Lenox closed both of his opponent's eyes, and when he found it impossible to see Lewis stopped.

Jones Easy for Joe Jeannette.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 19.—What was scheduled to be a ten-round bout between Joe Jeannette and "Griff" Jones was stopped here to-night. Jeannette landed a stiff right in a mixup in the first round, which took much of the fight out of Jones. Jones was knocked down three times in the second round, and after going to the mat the same number of times in the third, the referee stopped the bout.

Joe Maroney and Eddie Smith of New York had eight fast rounds, with Smith shading his opponent in the last three.

Warner, American Boxer, Whipped.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—In a ten-round fight here to-night between the English ex-champion pugilist, Arthur Warner, and an American named Richard Cooper, the referee stopped the bout in the fourth round, as Cooper manifestly was unable to continue. Both eyes of the American were closed when the referee put an end to the contest.

Tommy Ryan to Train Flynn.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Jack Curley, manager of Jim Flynn, announces that Tommy Ryan has signed an agreement to train Flynn for three months prior to the match with Jack Johnson. Curley next week goes to Salt Lake City to complete details for the posting of forfeits on Feb. 15.

YACHT CLUB ELECTION.

August Heckscher Commodore of Seawanhaka-Corinthian Organization.

At the annual meeting of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, held last night at the City Club, 55 West Forty-fourth Street, Commodore Frank S. Hastings presiding, the following were elected to serve as officers for 1912:

Commodore, August Heckscher, steam yacht Anama; Vice Commodore, Harold S. Vanderbilt, schooner Grant; Rear Commodore, Daniel Bacon, sloop Avenger; Secretary, George Nichols; Treasurer, Colgate Hoyt; Alexander M. Orr, Measurer; Trustees, Class of 1915, Frank S. Hastings, Edward F. Whitney, and Franklin A. Plummer.

Regatta Committee—George E. Roosevelt, Harold M. Mestre, Everett Dominick, Elliott Tuckerman, and Nelson Doubleday.

Committee on Lines and Models—John Hyslop, Robert L. Cuthbert, and Alexander M. Orr.

Law Committee — Elliott Tuckerman, William A. W. Stewart, and Alfred Ely, Jr.

Committee on Seamanship and Navigation—George M. Bodman, Arthur Curtiss James, William J. Matheson, and Willis D. Wood.

It was decided that the Yale-Harvard undergraduates yacht races from New London to Oyster Bay in June, which were held last year, will become a permanent fixture, provided they do not conflict with the Eastern Yacht Club ocean race. John Hyslop read his report on the racing and measurement rules. Those present included Johnston De Forest, August Heckscher, George E. Roosevelt, James A. Blair, Jr., Walter Jennings, Robert L. Cuthbert, Harold S. Vanderbilt, C. Sherman Hoyt, Franklin A. Plummer, and Howard C. Smith.

Syracuse Beats St. Lawrence.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 19.—St. Lawrence University basket ball team lost to Syracuse in a closely contested game here to-night by a score of 21 to 17. When the whistle blew for time at the end of the second half, the score stood a tie, at 17 to 17. In the extra five minutes played, Syracuse won out with two baskets.

GIANTS' SPRING GAMES.

Twenty Contests for Champions Before National Season Opens.

Secretary Joe O'Brien of the Giants announced the schedule of exhibition games which the New York Club will play in the South this Spring. The first game will be played at Dallas on Saturday, March 2. On the following day the team will play at Fort Worth. Then the Giants will go back to the training camp at Marlin Springs for a week and return to Dallas on March 9.

Games will also be played with the Houston and Galveston teams, also at Mobile, Birmingham, Asheville, Washington, and Baltimore, on the way home. The first game at the Polo Grounds will be on April 6, with the Jersey City Club of the International League. On Sunday, April 7, the Giants will play Andy Coakley's Paterson team at Paterson, and Monday and Tuesday Newark will play, the Monday game being at the Polo Grounds and the Tuesday game in Newark. On Wednesday, April 10, Yale will play at the Polo Grounds. On Thursday, April 11, the championship season will open.

The schedule of exhibition games is as follows: March 2, Dallas; March 3, Fort Worth; March 9, Dallas; March 10, Fort Worth; March 16, Houston; March 17, Galveston; March 23, Dallas; March 28-29, Mobile; March 30, Birmingham; April 1, Asheville; April 2-3, Washington; April 4-5, Baltimore; April 6, Jersey City; April 7, Paterson; April 8, Newark at Polo Grounds; April 9, Newark at Newark; April 10, Yale at Polo Grounds.

WHAT BOSTON CLUB NEEDS.

Two Good Pitchers and an Infielder All Kling Needs for a Winner.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.—Manager Johnny Kling of the Boston Nationals to-day started out to show the fans he means business. In company with President Ward, Treasurer James E. Gaffney, and Charles Meyer, a New York engineer, he bustled out to the Walpole Street grounds and spent a couple of hours deciding what changes to make for the coming season.

Despite the fact that the Nationals will have to get new grounds for the 1913 season, Kling feels that a good outlay of money in improving the present grounds will be appreciated by the Boston fans. He made tentative plans to-day for changes of the playing field so as to obtain more space and accommodate a larger crowd in the grand stand.

"Believe me," said Kling, "the more I see of this city and its prospects the better it looks to me for having a good team this year. A couple of good pitchers and a good infielder would bolster up the team in great shape, and if they are obtainable we will get them.

"This week Mr. Ward will send out the contracts. There may be a player or two more we do not want next season, and I will try to place them with other teams. At present we have no man for third base, but before the season starts we are likely to have a good man. Kirke, who is an all-round player, says he likes to play first base, and I may use him in that position."

ALEXANDER GETS BIG RAISE.

Phillies' Crack Pitcher to Receive Record Salary as a Second-Year Man.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 19.—It was announced by the Philadelphia National League Club this afternoon that Grover Alexander, the pitcher; Fred Luderus, first baseman; Dode Paskert and Tom Downey, waivers having been asked upon the latter, have all agreed on terms and will be seen with the Phillies this season.

Alexander will get the largest salary ever paid to a player for a second season's service in a big league. He was a star in the National League last season, but this year the Nebraska athlete demanded a big increase.

Paskert, who came from Cincinnati in a trade, was playing his first year in Philadelphia, and was a little high in his demands, too. His terms were agreed to, and Fred Luderus sent word to Manager Dooin that he was awaiting the arrival of a contract so that he could sign it.

Downey, according to President Fogel, was not obtained from the Reds for the waiver price, but cost the Phillies a larger sum. He took umbrage at the salary offered, but when he was threatened with banishment to the minors he hastily signed.

BASEBALL DATES FOR YALE.

Twenty-five Games, Exclusive of Southern Trip, on the Schedule.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 19.—The schedule for the Yale baseball team for the coming season, made public to-day, contains a total of twenty-five games exclusive of these to be played during the Southern trip. The schedule follows:

March 27, Trinity, at New Haven; April 4-10, Southern trip.

April 13, Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; 17, Wesleyan, at New Haven; 19, Vermont, at New Haven; 20, Columbia, at New Haven; 24, Holy Cross, at New Haven; 27, Georgetown, at New Haven; May 1, Fordham, at New Haven; 3, Andover, at Andover; 4, Holy Cross at Worcester; 8, New York University, at New Haven; 11, Pennsylvania, at New Haven; 15, Brown, at New Haven; 18, Amherst, at New Haven; 21, Williams, at New Haven; 25, Cornell, at Ithaca; 30, Brown, at Providence.

June 1, Princeton, at New Haven; 5, Dartmouth, at New Haven; 8, Princeton, at Princeton; 13, Princeton, at New York (in case of tie;) 15, Cornell, at New Haven; 18, Harvard, at New Haven; 19, Harvard, at Cambridge; 22, Harvard, at New York (in case of a tie.)

NEW SUNDAY BASEBALL BILL.

Assemblyman Bush Would Prohibit Ticket Speculating.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 19.—Under the leadership of Assemblyman Robert P. Bush of Chemung, a former Speaker of the lower House, the agitation for professional baseball on Sunday was renewed to-day by the introduction of the local option bill of last year. It provides that Sunday games may be played in a city if a majority of the electors of that city so vote. This bill was passed by the Assembly last year, but it was killed in the Senate.

Assemblyman Bush also introduced a bill to put an end to ticket speculating. It requires that the price of the ticket shall be printed on its face and the selling of the ticket at a higher price is made a misdemeanor.

TO FIGHT BASEBALL TRUST.

Columbian League President Would Quote Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 19.—Organized baseball will be fought under the Sherman anti-trust law if it attacks the new Columbian Baseball League, according to John T. Powers, President of the new organization, who was here to-day.

"We are not fighting capital with capital, and do not seek a fight with any person or combination," said Powers. "But we have the statutory right to exist and compete with the 'baseball trust.'"

White Sox to Train at Waco.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—President Comiskey of the Chicago American League Club announced to-day that Waco, Texas had been selected as training headquarters for his team. Manager Callahan expects to depart for the South early in February with a squad of pitchers and the other players will join them about March 1.

The squad will remain in training for about three weeks and then start north to play exhibition games.

Jack Dunn President of Orioles.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—Jack Dunn was reelected President and manager of the Baltimore Baseball Club of the International League at the annual meeting of the club's Directors here to-day.

New Shortstop for Yankees.

The Yankees signed a new player yesterday. He is W. Stump, and he comes from Baltimore. He was wanted by the Cubs, but the Yankees drafted him first. He is over 6 feet tall and weighs 175 pounds, but is very fast.

Sachem's Head Yacht Club Dinner.

The annual midwinter mess dinner of the Sachem's Head Yacht Club will be held at the Hotel Astor this evening and a large attendance is expected. Officers for the year 1912 have been elected as follows: Commodore, John J. Phelps; Vice Commodore, Richard H. Deming; Fleet Captain, Elton S. Wayland; Treasurer, William F. Oakley; Secretary, William E. Peck; Measurer, S. Pierce Rogers.

POWER WAGON SHOW CLOSES TO-NIGHT

Exhibitors Pleased with Volume of Business Transacted During Week.

New York will have its last opportunity to see the commercial vehicle show in Madison Square Garden—the final automobile exhibition of the season—to-day. Surpassing all former truck shows in attendance, interest, and actual sales, the great display will become history at 11 P. M.

Heads of big industrial organizations have pronounced the exhibit a remarkable display. The manufacturers say it is an unqualified success, and purchasers are pleased with it because of the wide range of models offered.

Charles A. Stewart, general manager of the Automobile Dealers' Association, which counts the leading New York dealers and agents in its membership, visited the show yesterday, and was in a position to speak authoritatively on the views of the dealers.

"I have talked to a large number of our members during the two weeks of the Garden show," said Mr. Stewart, "and without exception they told me the truth regarding conditions. They are unanimous in declaring the present show the greatest ever held as far as doing real business is concerned. This applies not only to the pleasure car week, but to the truck section as well. The information I received along the line was reliable. Facts were not exaggerated, for there are several reasons why members should not wish to make misstatements to me.

"I saw actual cash sales made this week, just as numerous other visitors did. There has been a demand for all sizes of vehicles, but the demand for low-priced trucks and delivery wagons selling at $1,200 or less is altogether unprecedented. One has only to observe the average visitor's actions to realize that they are really there for the purpose of purchasing immediately or else seriously considering the products offered with a view to buying in the near future. At such a show the public never feigns interest. The difference between mere idle curiosity and real business intentions is obvious."

The idea of many exhibitors showing cars with the names of customers painted on the bodies is considered an excellent one, inasmuch as it calls the attention of visitors to the various lines of industry for which trucks can be used. Thus a butcher or brewer visiting the Garden may look around and see numerous styles of vehicles which have been built for his competitors and can observe wherein his own business might profit by his having such equipment, too.

Not only the trucks themselves, but the large line of varied accessories especially suited to commercial vehicle use have proved attractive to many users of business wagons. New types of tire treads are most noticeable on all sides, likewise remountable rims for the same, and various devices to prevent skidding and increase traction. In many cases accessories for business vehicles have to be constructed quite different and much stronger than those used on pleasure vehicles. Weight and strength are great factors to be considered.

A feature more noticeable this season than ever before is that makers in nearly all cases have abandoned the touring car design and are building out-and-out commercial wagons, for it has been learned in the hard school of experience that the motor truck and the pleasure automobile are two entirely different propositions. Whereas some of the makers used to try to use the same axles, transmissions, &c., in their trucks as in pleasure models, they learned by degrees the fallacy of this and altered their design to meet demands.

Unusual designs of commercial motor vehicles continue to attract a great deal of attention. Fire Chiefs and Fire Commissioners from more than half a hundred Eastern cities have examined critically the many makes of self-propelled fire apparatus displayed. Fire Department people note with interest the difference in the American and Swiss types of engines. Whereas the latter has seats for the crew arranged longitudinally back to back and the hose compartment under them accessible through doors on the sides of the body, the American apparatus has the seats placed face to face, and the hose is laid in the boxes under them from the entrance at the rear of the vehicle.

Contractors and builders who have attended the exhibition in unexpectedly large numbers during the week have been most agreeably surprised by the special vehicles adapted particularly for their needs. The dump trucks shown by several leading makers possess a special interest for them.

PENNSY TO ROW NAVY.

'Varsity and Freshmen to Pull Sweeps on Severn River May 4.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 19.—The University of Pennsylvania and the Naval Academy will row a double header on the Severn on May 4. Pennsylvania will send its 'Varsity and freshmen crews to compete with the first crew and fourth-class crew of the Naval Academy.

Syracuse will probably bring its 'Varsity and junior crew here in May 18, and Columbia is also likely to row here. This will complete the local rowing schedule for the first navy crew, but it is likely that at least two academy crews will be entered in the Schuylkill regatta.

Millrose A. C. Games To-night.

Thirteen relay races will feature the meet of the Millrose Athletic Association to-night in the Forty-seventh Regiment Armory, Brooklyn. In the interclub relay McEntee will be the mainstay of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association team, and the Irish-American and the New York Athletic Club will send in two teams each, composed of some of the fastest quarter-milers in the metropolitan district. Gissing, Rosenberger, Sheppard, Pepis, McNally, Moran, De Grutchey, Walther and many others are among those who will positively appear in this relay. The two-mile M. A. L. relay will probably result in a dual event between the best half-milers now in training, which include Kiviat, Riley, Hirschon, Gardner, Buckley, Egan, and McHugh. These two relays are merely samples of the other eleven relay events to be run off, which will bring together 125 different organizations, and which will probably be the greatest relay carnival ever witnessed in New York.

Despite the severe weather outdoors of late, about seventy-five entries have been received for the Millrose road race, over a ten-mile course, which starts at the Millrose clubhouse at Bath Beach and ends on the armory floor of the Forty-seventh Regiment, where the last mile will be run indoors. In this event every long-distance runner of note in the metropolitan district will start. In addition to the above there will be sprints, a one-mile walk, in which the best walkers of the country are entered; an obstacle race, a two-mile run, and a five-mile bicycle race. The Brooklyn Letter Carriers' Band of sixty pieces will furnish the music.

Al Shrubb Defeats Queal.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Al Shrubb, the English runner, lowered the colors of Billy Queal of Alexandria Bay in a ten-mile foot race here to-night, covering the distance in 49:09 3-5, although the track is said to have been at least five laps short of the distance. Shrubb gained a lead of a lap in the latter part of the second mile, then allowed Queal to set the pace, sticking close behind his heels mile after mile. Queal's efforts to spurt availed nothing. Queal ascribed his defeat to his fall in a recent relay race in New York.

Sea Cliff Y. C. Election.

At the annual meeting of the Sea Cliff Yacht Club, held in the Clarendon Hotel, Brooklyn, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Commodore—T. W. Sheridan; Vice Commodore—David G. Evans; Secretary—Edward J. Hogan; Treasurer—C. E. Robinson; Trustees—T. W. Sheridan, David G. Evans, Arthur Joel, Henry A. Van Dyne, Roy Parsons, Edward J. Hogan, John Robinson, Frank W. Ruhlman, Harry Stevenson, and C. E. Robinson; House Committee—F. J. Ruhlman, Henry A. Van Dyne, John Robinson, Roy Parsons, Arthur Joel, and Frank Doman; Entertainment Committee—Frank J. Ruhlman, Roy Parsons, Herbert Robinson, and William Vanderbeck.

Alco Truck Nears End of Run.

With five hours to run, the non-stop Alco truck was reported last night to have totaled 331 hours without stopping of its motor. It was 163 hours ahead of the previous world's record, established by an Alco last year. Since the former record was passed a week ago, the truck has covered close to 500 miles of territory, making ninety-nine trips between Jersey City and Hoboken, and stopping 593 times to load and take off goods. The number of pounds hauled was 117,148. In traveling over the last lap of its fourteenth-day journey the truck was forced to negotiate a 15 per cent. grade near West Hoboken. The hill is three-fourths of a mile long, and the truck, loaded to capacity, climbed it with ease several times during the day.

CARTMELL AND RAMSDELL.

Pennsylvania Athletes Invited to Run in Professional Races in Australia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 19.—Australia promises to be the mecca for the professional sprinters, and Nate Cartmell and Fred Ramsdell, both former University of Pennsylvania stars, have been invited to visit the Land of the Kangaroo and race the stars of the earth there in the biggest professional championship and match races ever held.

Cartmell is now the world's champion, by reason of his victory over A. L. Postle, the English runner, who previously held the title, and Ramsdell, in addition to being the champion of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. The English champion is now a professional, by reason of his coaching the Carnegie football eleven last season. He has stated that he never will compete in a professional contest, though it is possible he may change his mind and go abroad.

It was the intention of Cartmell to quit the cinder path at the end of last year. In fact, he tossed his running shoes overboard on the trip across the ocean, but the call of the large purses and the possibility of adventure is almost sure to capture the Southerner, who is now coaching at the University of North Carolina.

COMMERCE' SWIMMERS WIN.

Defeat Erasmus Hall in Dual Competition at Sixtieth Street Baths.

The High School of Commerce aquatic team defeated the Erasmus Hall High School yesterday in a swimming competition at the Sixtieth Street baths by the score of 45 to 16.

The feature of the programme was the easy victory of Commerce in the 200-yard relay. The Commerce representatives led the way in each relay, and came up to the finish with a comfortable margin.

W. Kallman of the High School of Commerce also made a creditable showing in the plunge for distance, with a plunge of 59 feet 10 inches. The summary:

200-Yard Relay.—Won by High School of Commerce, team composed of Fulton, Agramonte, Flower, and Lemcke; Erasmus Hall High School, team composed of Long, Cramp, Clark, and Clyburn, second. Time—1:31 3-5.

NEW SWIMMING RECORD.

Chicago Athletes Cover 160 Yards Relay Race Distance in 1:17 4-5.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—A new world's record was established last night for the 160-yard relay race at the aquatic exhibition in the Illinois Athletic Club pool.

The record was made by an interclub team composed of Harry Hebner and Thomas Winans of the Illinois Athletic Club and Kenneth S. Huszagh and R. Mallen of the Chicago Athletic Association. The distance was covered in 1 minute 17 4-5 seconds, three-fifths of a second faster than the time made by Daniels, Huszagh, Perry, McGillivary, and Hebner in the same pool two years ago.

The meet was sanctioned by the Central Amateur Athletic Union, and the new record undoubtedly will be accepted.

COLUMBIA SWIMMERS LOSE.

Willis of Pennsylvania Establishes New Record for Plunge.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 19.—The University of Pennsylvania swimming team easily defeated the Columbia team to-night in Weightman swimming pool by a score of 42 to 11. The feature of the meet was the plunge for distance. F. B. Willis, the Quaker plunger, made 75 feet, and hung up a new intercollegiate record. The former record for distance was 73 feet. Good time was made in all the events. The summaries:

Relay Race, 800 Feet.—Won by Pennsylvania team, composed of Maull, Douglass, Sanville, and Owerbacker; Columbia team, composed of Daffa, Osgood, Pulleyn, and Denkelspiel, second. Time—2:39.

Fancy Diving.—Won by Sanville, Pennsylvania, 139¼ points; Jamieson, Pennsylvania, 132½ points, second; Patterson, Columbia, 131 points, third.

50-Yard Swim.—Won by Owerbacker, Pennsylvania; tie for second place between Dunkelspiel of Columbia and Maull of Pennsylvania. Time—0:28.

220-Yard Swim.—Won by Culman of Columbia; Shoemaker, Pennsylvania, second; Campbell, Columbia, third. Time—2:58 1-5.

Plunge for Distance.—Won by Willis, Pennsylvania; Angeny, Columbia, second; Cohn, Columbia, third. Distance, 75 feet, (new intercollegiate record.)

NEW YORKERS PLAY BEST.

Four Survivors In Ad Men's Golf Tourney Empire State Residents.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 19.—First and second rounds in the Advertising Golf Tourney cut the field in half to-day, I. S. Robeson of Rochester, Z. T. Miller, L. W. Maxwell, and R. M. Purves, all of New York, the survivors who will compete in to-morrow morning's semi-final for premier honors.

In the consolation, C. A. Speakman and C. W. Brocker, both of New York, George C. Dutton of Boston, and G. T. Hodges of Chicago play in the order given.

Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher won his morning round from C. F. Bacon of Boston, four up and three, but he lost this afternoon to W. T. Crocker of Boston by the same score. In addition to the tournament proper numerous special events are under way, among them a match handicap for women. The day was perfect, balmy air and bright sunshine suggestive of Spring, greeting the contestants. Summary of play in the first of the six divisions:

First Round.—Z. T. Miller, New York, beat G. S. Pierce, Chicago, 3 and 1; E. J. Ridgeway, Montclair, beat G. T. Hodges, Chicago, 5 and 3; J. L. Given, New York, beat W. C. Freeman, New York, 5 and 3; I. S. Robeson, Rochester, beat George C. Dutton, Boston, 6 and 4; R. M. Purves, New York, beat G. H. Barnes, New York, 3 and 1; J. P. Gardner, Chicago, beat C. A. Speakman, New York, 6 and 4; L. W. Maxwell, New York, beat J. J. Hazen, Oakland, N. Y., 4 and 3; A. H. Johnson, New York, beat C. W. Brocker, New York, 3 and 2.

Second Round.—Miller beat Ridgeway, 3 and 2; Robeson beat Given, 3 and 2; Purves beat Gardner, 2 and 1; Maxwell beat Johnson, 6 and 5.

FINE BILLIARDS IN CLASS C TOURNEY

W. W. Harris Defeats G. T. Moon, Jr., in Clever Match at Morningside Academy.

Play in the Class C National amateur 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, was featured by the afternoon game, in which W. W. Harris defeated G. T. Moon, Jr., by the score of 200 to 126 in forty-eight innings.

The exhibition of the victor was the best balk-line billiards seen since the commencement of the tournament, and in addition to his brilliant cuework he incidentally established a new high average, which was 4 18-48. This was by far the best average recorded, as on Thursday night the best high average was established when W. Heid made his average of 3.

Harris, after getting started, which was in the sixth inning, played a remarkable balk-line game, having fine control of the ivories. He had several long sessions of play, in which he made double-figure high runs, brought about by working out well-planned shots. He evidenced little open-table shots by keeping the spheres in balk line, and played within the margin, while his opponent's work was largely of the open-table character.

Harris did not record a tally until his sixth time at the table, when he ran a string of 16, and from then until the twenty-sixth inning made consistent tallies in every inning without showing a bank. When the half-way point of the game was reached, at 100 points, Harris had average better than 5, and this was attracting unusual attention.

He suddenly struck a slump in the twenty-second period, and was unable to overcome it until the thirtieth session. In the thirty-second inning he recovered his stride, and finished with the same good stroke that marked the opening of the game. Moon played a fairly good game, but could not cope with the situation presented by Harris, and had to yield to defeat.

The play in the evening game was off-color, and M. J. Doyle and E. R. Hollander played through a long-drawn-out contest, the former being victorious by the score of 200 to 160. Neither competitor displayed very good billiards, the majority of their play being on the open-table style.

One game will be played to-day, when J. T. Jaeger will oppose W. Terry in the afternoon. The score of the afternoon and evening games and standing of players follows:

SCHEIDIG WINS LONG GAME.

C. G. Baxter Defeated by Only a Few Points in Knickerbocker Tourney.

The closest finish in the tournament to date marked the match between C. Scheidig, (200,) and C. G. Baxter, (180,) in the 18.2 Knickerbocker amateur billiard tournament at Keeney's Academy, Brooklyn, last night, Scheidig winning in his fifty-first inning, 200 to 174. At the end of the fiftieth inning the score stood 196 to 174 in favor of Scheidig, leaving him with only four to go against six for Baxter, the latter having fallen down on a comparatively easy shot after gathering 6 in that inning. Scheidig promptly ran off the necessary four and won his third of four games played. The victory broke the tie between these players for second place and put Baxter back on even terms with Mayer for third place.

Besides being the closest game yet played, last night's game proved to be the longest, requiring close to three hours before the decision was reached. Both men indulged in considerable open and safety playing and runs into double figures were few. Baxter got the best run, twenty-three in his thirtieth inning, while Scheidig's best was eighteen, a figure which he reached twice.

In the first half of the game Scheidig played much better billiards than his opponent and at the end of the twenty-fifth inning he was leading, 104 to 54. During the remainder of the match the tide turned and Baxter gradually pulled down Scheidig's big lead and in the fiftieth inning he threatened to run out. But after getting six of his necessary twelve points he missed, and Scheidig ran out with four. At the beginning of the fiftieth inning Scheidig needed seventeen to win and Baxter only twelve, but Scheidig's run of thirteen in this inning pushed him into the lead again. The score by innings:

C. Scheidig—1 10 2 1 18 0 0 13 1 1 2 13 0 3 0 0 2 2 2 7 2 2 12 0 10 3 0 0 4 1 4 2 9 0 0 4 0 1 12 16 18 3 0 0 10 0 1 0 13 4. Total—200. Average, 3 47-51.

M. D. Brown, who succeeded J. Ferdinand Poggenburg in the tournament, is in the lead with two victories and no defeats. J. M. Millette has already finished his series, having played one game with each of the other six contestants. The two games in which Poggenburg took part have been thrown out, adding two games to the original twenty-one necessary to complete the round robin series. Nine games remain to be played. The standing to date:

	Won.	Lost.	High Run.	High Ave.	Pc.
M. D. Brown	2	0	36	7 27-39	1,000
C. Scheidig	3	1	26	6 14-31	.750

Kerr Wins in Three-Cushion League.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—In the second game of the National Amateur Three-Cushion Billiard League tournament to-night Kerr of Kansas City defeated Campbell of Philadelphia by the score of 50 to 44 in ninety-nine innings. Kerr made a high run of 4 and Campbell gathered 3.

GEORGETOWN FIVE BEATEN.

New York University Leads Throughout in Basket Ball Game.

The New York University basket ball team defeated the Georgetown University quintet last night in a fast and hard fought game on the New York University court, by the score of 15 to 6. The local five had the edge on their opponents and after the first five minutes of play, it was evident that the New York University's representatives would be returned the winners.

The local team opened the game with a rush and before five minutes had elapsed, they had tallied three field goals. The Georgetown five put up a strong defense, and did all in their power to stop the fast New York team, but the local quintet were out to win the game in the first half if possible, and in this they succeeded, for the end of the first twenty minutes of play found them leading by the score of 9 to 2.

In the first five minutes of play, in the second half, the visiting team displayed a short burst of speed and before the over-confident N. Y. U. team had recovered themselves, the Georgetown players had squirmed themselves through the guards and scored two goals from the floor. The local players settled down to their task of keeping the lead and increasing it if possible and that was the end of Georgetown's scoring. N. Y. U. added six more points to their score before the whistle sounded at the end of the game. The two McLoughlins did most of the scoring for the winners. J. G., at right forward tallied four goals from the floor, and C. W., at centre, made three. The line-up:

N. Y. U.	Position.	Georgetown.
J.G.McLoughlin	Right forward	Foley
Comfort, Rothstein	Left forward	Fury
C.W.McLoughlin	Centre	Schlisser
Moore	Right guard	Calliflower

Goals from the field—J. G. McLoughlin, (4,) C. W. McLoughlin, (3,) Schlisser, (2,) Calliflower, (1.) Foul goals—Moore, (1.) Referee—Frank J. Quigg, New York Athletic Club. Umpire—Sandy Shields, Young Men's Christian Association. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

CORNELL WINS CLOSE GAME.

Ithacans Down Yale in Nip and Tuck Basket Ball Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 19.—Yale lost to the fast Cornell basket ball team to-night 23 to 17, giving the Ithacans a fine chance for the championship. It was Cornell's first victory on the Yale floor. Until the last five minutes of play the score was practically tied. Cornell led 9 to 8 when the first half closed. Ridell and G. Halstead starred. Both Reilly and Kauffman were weak at goal tossing from fouls, although Kauffman threw nine out of fourteen. The line-up:

Yale.	Position.	Cornell.
Reilly	Right forward	Ward, Kauffman
Ridell	Left forward	Elton
Swihart	Centre	Paines
Bomeisler	Right guard	G. Halstead

Goals from floor—Ridell, 3; Swihart, 2; Bomeisler, G. Halstead, 2; Elton, 3; Kauffman, Cross. Goals from fouls—Reilly, 5; Kauffman, 9. Goals missed—Reilly, 6; Kauffman, 5. Referee—Mr. Thorpe of Columbia. Umpire—Mr. Read of Worcester. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Barnard Defeats Cutler.

Barnard School's basket ball team continued its winning career yesterday in the Eighth Regiment Armory when the quintet from Cutler School went down to defeat by a score of 10 to 5. The winners began scoring early in the game, mainly through the capital work of Hahn and Frank, with the result that the tally at the end of the first half was 6 to 0. Talley and Crane went in for Barnard in the second half, and Talley made two baskets by clever throws from near midfield, bringing the score up to ten. Cutler had twenty opportunities to make baskets from the foul line, but failures resulted in most of the tries. The line-up and summary:

Barnard.	Position.	Cutler.
Winslow, Morningstar, Talley	Right forward	Brunner
Hahn	Left forward	McMullin
Harjes	Centre	Twyeforth
Frank, Crane	Right guard	Keck

Field goals—By Hahn, (2,) Talley, (2,) Frank, McMullin, (2.) Foul goal—By Twyeforth, 1. Referee—Mr. Jardine, Barnard. Umpire—C. W. Collins, Cutler. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Collegiate Wins Her Big Game.

The Collegiate School basket ball team defeated the team of Horace Mann School yesterday in the Collegiate gymnasium by the score of 22 to 11. The two Horace Mann games are Collegiate's most important ones, and the fact that they won the first yesterday, although greatly handicapped by the absence of their star guard, Snedeker, makes the prospects for the return game seem very bright. Between the halves the Collegiate second team defeated the second team of Irving School by the score of 28 to 4. The line-up:

Collegiate.	Position.	Horace Mann.
Pope	Left forward	Cook
Platten, Victor	Right forward	Wright, Van Alstyne
Jackson, (Capt.)	Centre	Wegener, (Capt.)
Oakley	Right guard	Blount
Brewer	Left guard	Molthan, Wright

Field goals—Pope, (5,) Jackson, (3,) Platten, (1,) Wright, (1,) Molthan, (1,) Blount, (2.) Foul goals—Jackson, (3,) Pope, (1,) Blount, (3.) Referee—Mr. Johnson. Umpire—Mr. Williams. Score at end of first half—Collegiate, 13; Horace Mann, 7. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Sachs Shuts Out Hamilton.

Sachs defeated Hamilton Institute in a close game of basket ball at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory yesterday by the score of 3 to 0. The winners played a good defensive game. The line-up:

Sachs.	Position.	Hamilton.
Rubenstein	Right forward	Taylor
De Muth	Left forward	Minrath
Swaat	Centre	Hammerstein
Kahn	Right guard	Bach

Goal from field—Goldman. Goal from foul—Rubenstein. Referee—Mr. Meltzer. Timekeeper—Mr. Marcus Sachs.

Morris A. A. Road Run and Walk.

Many road runners are expected to take part in the regular weekly event of the Morris Athletic Association, which is to be held to-morrow afternoon, starting from the clubhouse, Jerome Avenue and 162d Street, at 3:30 o'clock. The course is three and a half miles in length, and finishes with a long straightaway on Jerome Avenue. Among the prominent athletes who use the course for their training stunts are Harry Smith, Harry Hallawell, Frank Joyce, Frank Ruggiero, Billy Quel, the professional runner, and men of that calibre. In the morning the Morris members will engage in a walking event which is expected to attract the best of the heel-and-toe performers of the metropolitan district.

College Hockey To-night at Rink.

An important game in the intercollegiate championship series between Yale and Cornell will be the attraction to-night in the St. Nicholas Rink, and a large gathering of college alumni will be on hand to cheer the young puck chasers in their first battle for the 'Varsity title, which the Cornellians now hold, having won it last season from Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, and Columbia without sustaining a defeat.

SQUADRON A WINS BIG HOCKEY MATCH

Seventh Regiment Plays Hard to Win Close Game—Karl Behr Hurt.

Squadron A and the Seventh Regiment had St. Nicholas Rink all to themselves and their friends last night, the principal event of the evening's programme being the hockey game, which was won by the cavalrymen by a score of 2 to 0. Karl Behr, the troopers' Captain, was badly injured in the game and had to retire to have a long gash in the back of his head stitched.

Behr was playing a fine game at rover for his troop when, near the Seventh's goal, he was upset and fell over backward on the ice, striking his head on the ice very hard. In addition to sustaining the severe cut in his head his upper teeth penetrated his lips. Behr was carried off the rink by his team mates and taken to a physician for treatment.

Besides the hockey match there was an exciting half mile handicap skating race, which brought out the fastest skaters in this vicinity. There was also an exhibition of fancy skating by Miss C. Duncan and Frank Sammis, which was cleverly executed and brought forth much applause. The rink was well filled with the members of military organizations, and their friends.

The hockey match was delayed for some time just after the start on account of the accident to Behr. The first half ended without either team having scored a goal. There was much rough playing and skaters on both teams were ruled off for tripping. W. Washburn was the worst offender and was sent off the ice four minutes for upsetting Peabody roughly.

On the Seventh Regiment team were Peabody and F. Washburn, well-known amateur Hockey League players, and on Squadron A was Bob Leake of the St. Nicholas Skating Club. Washburn, the St. Nicks goal tender, was kept very busy at the net because the Squadron A forwards bombarded it continuously. The first half was closely contested. The defensive work of each team was much better than the attack. Leake, Chapman, and Wagstaff did excellent work for the victors.

It was in the second half, after 9 minutes and 20 seconds of play, that Wagstaff got the puck in a scrimmage in front of the Seventh Regiment cage and shot it past Washburn. It was 17 minutes and 15 seconds when Chapman took a shot at the side of the rink from a pass behind the net from Wagstaff and smashed the disk into the net on a difficult shot from the side. The checking was rough and the players were spilled on the ice often. The line-up:

Squadron A.	Position.	Seventh Reg't.
Kerr	Goal	F. Washburn
Johnson	Point	W. Washburn
Leake	Cover point	Cattus
Behr, Hunt	Rover	Peabody
Chapman	Centre	Kelly
Howard	Right wing	Milligan

Goals—First goal for Squadron A by Wagstaff in 9:20; second goal for Squadron A by Chapman in 17:15.

Penalties—W. Washburn, 4 minutes for tripping; Milligan, 2 minutes for tripping; Johnson, 1 minute for tripping; Wagstaff, 1 minute for tripping; Leake, 2 minutes for tripping; Chapman, 2 minutes for tripping.

Referee—Gus Hornfeck; Assistant referee—Harold Stanley; Goal umpires—Q. Feitner and W. A. Belden, Jr. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

The half mile handicap brought out a good field of skaters. Little Stanley Gerschel, the 55-pound midget, was on the limit mark of 30 yards, while in the race were Phil Kearney, Larry Barnett, and many others. The race was won by W. Burkholder of the Wanderers, who started from scratch with Kearney. The latter took fourth place. The winner's time was 1:32 4-5.

Young Gerschel, with his big handicap, led the skaters for the first two laps and then Anthony Merlo went to the front. Kenneth Dayton of the New York A. C. then set the pace with the other skaters bunched closely behind him. Burkholder came from behind with a burst of speed in the next to the last lap and just nosed out Dayton at the tape. Merlo was third.

After the hockey game and race, the soldiers spent the evening skating.

FIVE GAMES FOR DARTMOUTH.

Athletic Council Restricts Hockey Team—No Home Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 19.—The Athletic Council announced to-day that the 'Varsity hockey team would not play any games this year excepting those necessary to complete the Intercollegiate League schedule and a contest with Harvard. The only two remaining league games will be with Cornell and Yale. This means that the hockey team will have played only five games during the season. As yet the team has not practiced on Hanover ice, the entire season's training consisting of not more than ten hours in all, eight of which came during the Christmas holidays.

The Council also passed upon the following dates as the freshmen basket ball schedule for the coming season: Feb. 8, Cushing, at Ashburn Hall; 9, Dean Academy, at Franklin; 10, Andover, at Andover; 15, Stearns School, at Hanover; 19, Tilton, at Hanover; 24, M. I. T., seconds, at Hanover; 27, Cushing, at Hanover.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JAN. 20, 1912.

THE COURTS AND THE PEOPLE.

There would be less shallow thinking and senseless prating about the courts and the Judges if every citizen of this Republic who is able to read would study Senator ELIHU ROOT's address to the New York Bar Association yesterday on "Judicial Decisions and Public Feeling." Senator ROOT is a great lawyer, and lawyers sometimes talk over the heads of the laity, but this address is singularly lucid, insomuch that the most ordinary mind could not miss its meaning, and even men more than usually well informed could not read it without getting a better and clearer idea of the nature of law, of the function of courts and of Judges. Most men probably feel that they know about these things already, but the very occasion of Senator ROOT's address shows that they are mistaken. He points out an increasing tendency among Americans to show impatience with the courts whenever judicial decisions do not agree with their wishes or with the wishes of some of them. It is because of this that the whole un-American and subversive plan of the recall of Judges has been adopted in some States, and is much talked about in others. It is because of this tendency that there is in some parts of the country outspoken opposition to the nomination of Judge HOOK to the Supreme bench because he decided a two-cent fare law to be unconstitutional. It is because of this that when the New York employers' liability law was declared to be in contravention of the Constitution some self-appointed leaders of thought, instead of calling for the enactment of another and constitutional statute, began to condemn the court "for not entertaining a different opinion." It is because of this tendency, and, we may say, because of this ignorance of the nature of judicial duty, that Mr. ROOSEVELT proposed a referendum vote by means of which an unpopular decision might be reversed by the people.

This sentiment, or tendency, has become widespread, because, chiefly, or largely, it springs from good impulses, from a humane and praiseworthy desire to do something that the laws have not yet done for the people or for the poor. Nobody condemns the aim and purpose of the sentimental critics of the courts, it is only their method that is bad. The sentimental critics are numerous, and their criticisms of the courts multiply because of marked changes and new conditions in industrial and social life, to which the people have not yet had time to adjust their laws. Said Senator ROOT:

> It is because in the course of this process of readjustment occasionally a court finds that some new experiment in legislation or in administration contravenes some long-established limitation upon legislative or executive power, or finds that some crudely drawn statute is inadequate to produce the effect that was expected of it, or enforces some law which has unexpected results, that the present irritation and impatience toward the courts have been created.

Many well-meaning persons think always of a Constitution as a grant of power, it is with difficulty they can get into their heads the fact that it is, also, a limitation of power. The Constitution of the United States, for instance, is a limitation not only of the power of the officers of the Government but of the people themselves. It is a limitation wisely imposed, as a protection against the destructive consequences of popular action upon the impulse of the moment. We should make a sorry mess of it if we should undertake to get along under a Government of laws freely made and as freely changed without regard to any consideration save that of the popular desire of any given time. Yet that is precisely what would result from the recall of Judges and from a vote of the people upon the decisions of Judges. We quote again from Senator ROOT's address:

> I must believe also that proposals, in whatever form, to subordinate the decisions of the courts to the decision of a popular majority, whether it be by punishing the Judges for an unsatisfactory decision through removing them from office or by reviewing their decisions at the polls, as distinct from reviewing and revising the law upon which they are to decide, proceed upon a failure to realize that this involves an abandonment of the most essential feature of our system of constitutional government. * * *
> A sovereign people which declares that all men have certain inalienable rights and imposes upon itself the great impersonal rules of conduct deemed necessary for the preservation of those rights, and at the same time declares that it will disregard those rules whenever, in any particular case, it is the wish of a majority of its voters to do so, establishes as complete a contradiction to the fundamental principles of our Government as it is possible to conceive. It abandons absolutely the conception of a justice which is above majorities, of a right in the weak which the strong are bound to respect.

Yet Senator ROOT would impose not merely a limitation upon the people's desire to overrule the courts when the courts decide cases in a way not pleasing to some of them, he would lay upon the bar the duty to insist among their clients and their fellow-citizens in public and in private upon "the importance of preserving the Constitutional system of their country and of maintaining the undiminished power of a really independent judiciary." He enjoins upon the Judges, particularly upon those who have been long withdrawn from active participation in current affairs, the study of "those changes of social condition which make necessary new applications of the police power of the States, that vast and adaptable power preserved in all Constitutions, the basis of which rests in common sense and the relations of which to the specific guarantees of the Constitution must always be subject to adjustment according to the varying needs of the time." The written letter of a Constitution may not be changed save by the will of the people, but the principles which Constitutions declare are broad, they are adapted to every stage of our social and political progress. The critics of the courts who reason from sentiment alone forget that it is not property alone that is sheltered by the guarantees of the Constitution, the rights and the liberties of the citizen are also safeguarded. When we once begin to destroy these guarantees, whether by making Judges subservient to popular whim by the recall, or through reversing them by a vote of the people, there is visible and perhaps greater danger that before long the guarantees of life and liberty may go the way of property rights.

THE ESOPUS WATERSHED.

If another dry season comes, we are assured by the Board of Water Supply, the Esopus Creek, which is the main tributary to the new Catskill water system, may be pumped this year into the city's mains. But it will have to be filtered. The new watershed of 900 square miles is not owned by the city, and only a small part of it is owned by the State. The building of a beautiful, artificial lake and of new State boulevards near the Ashokan Dam will encourage the Summer resort business in that locality. It is already populated, it will become more populous, and the problem of sewage contamination will be serious.

When the plan of the Catskill Aqueduct was first broached one of its recommendations was that it would drain an uninhabited watershed, and the city would be supplied with pure unfiltered spring water. The city's Water Board, with powers merely to condemn property for the acquirement of reservoirs, has now had to include in its plans filtration beds and devices for purifying the water by aeration. Will they suffice? Or will it be necessary, ultimately, to create a joint State and city park about the Ashokan Reservoir? Commissioner CHADWICK of the Water Board is also Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Conservation Committee. What he will have to say in his forthcoming report touching these matters will be of weight.

IRON AND STEEL EXPORTS.

Nothing in the year's remarkable total exports is more remarkable than the iron and steel items. They contributed more than a quarter of a billion of dollars, which is also more than a quarter of the record-breaking total of manufactured exports. In 1901 we exported only a trifle over one hundred millions of dollars' worth of steel and iron manufactures, and in a single decade we have almost tripled this and raised ourselves from a negligible factor in the world's markets to third rank. That we shall long remain content with this honorable position is doubtful, for the rate of our growth surpasses that of our competitors. Between 1900 and 1910 England enlarged her exports of the precious metal of civilized industry by $91,000,000, to $361,000,000, and Germany by $169,000,000, to $339,000,000. Thus England remains the leader. Germany is the runner-up, with the largest gain in tons, but with ourselves as the leaders in percentage of gain. There are no other nations in the race, a single producer of this country surpassing alone the product of several nations whose combined population is larger than ours.

It is a marvelous record of progress, and the manner in which it was realized is worth noting. The following figures are official:

	Number of Establishments.	Wages.	Value of Products.
1890	719	$89,273,956	$478,687,519
1905	606	141,439,906	905,854,152

The number of establishments fell by 113, but the wages increased more than half. The value of the product doubled, although the prices rule much lower. The details are more remarkable than the totals, some of the units having increased tenfold, or more than the capitalization which is the subject of so much adverse comment. The period of this remarkable development covers several periods of strain which, according to precedent within easy memory, ought to have been marked by soup kitchens for the needy, by Coxey marches by the unemployed, and by bankruptcies due to cutthroat competition. The reaction in trade has not been without inconvenience, but it never was less in proportion to the severity of the experience.

In 1890 the country's total consumption of steel was five million tons. Since then the steel-car industry alone, an entirely new product, has consumed three million tons. In 1887 Mr. SCHWAB, according to the story he tells himself, proposed to Mr. CARNEGIE the erection of a mill for the production of one thousand tons of steel rails per day. Mr. CARNEGIE replied, assenting to the investment necessary, but exacting a promise that Mr. SCHWAB "will never tell anybody that we were foolish enough to suppose that this country would ever require a mill to make 1,000 tons of rails a day." Since then this country has produced 15,000 tons a day, and will enlarge that when we get straightened out once more. Mr. SCHWAB's estimate is that within his business life this country will consume 40,000,000 tons of steel a year, the record now being 26,000,000.

These being the facts of record, what shall be said of the gentleman who selected the time of the publication of the year's figures to denounce the backwardness of the steel industry and to attribute it to the methods of organization which have accompanied its unparalleled development. He selected the leading combination to denounce it for its manifold sins, one of them being that it overworked and underpaid its employés. The fact is that, according to the figures prepared by Mr. FARRELL for Mr. SCHWAB, the Steel Trust in 1911 paid its employés $31,000,000 more than would be coming to them at the old rate of wages. The amiable gentleman declared that "the wastes of competition are relatively negligible, while the economies of monopoly are superficial and delusive." Authorities not inferior to him on either benevolence or public spirit, or especially the steel trade, declare that the miracle of selling cheaper and paying higher wages was due solely to hugeness of production, which enabled prolonged runs on single articles without expensive alterations of machinery, facilitated distribution of product with least freight costs, and so on in other technical methods. The 90,000 "slaves" of this industry have much to be thankful for in present conditions, and can look forward to such betterment of employment as may be feasible. But neither they nor the general public owes thanks to professional philanthropists or to salaried troublemakers, whose methods are injurious, even if their motives are defensible from their point of view.

THE HIGHER COST OF FOOD.

Until all prices fall the cost of meat, vegetables, cereals, butter, eggs, and cheese will continue to fluctuate at higher figures than have been experienced before in a generation. When a general adjustment takes place upon a lower plane, the cost of foodstuffs will still be proportionately higher.

The census reports of population show this. The cities cannot keep growing out of all proportion to the increase in the rural districts without a reduction in the per capita food supply. Labor-saving machinery on the farms has done much. But Mr. JAMES J. HILL has shown that though the average yield of farm lands has increased and their value has been enhanced, they are still insufficiently manned, and production has not begun to keep pace with the increasing millions who must be fed. When the problem becomes acute enough, the farmers who manifest a reluctance to thrive by the plow, and the toilers in the city, who would not be laborers in the vineyard, will experience a change of heart.

A "ZAPOOSKA" FOR FUR-SEALS.

Chairman SULZER's bill to make effective the fur-seal treaty between the United States, Great Britain, Japan, and Russia should not be reported, in his opinion and that of his associates of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, until it is radically amended.

Prof. HENRY W. ELLIOTT, who drew the Hay-Elliott treaty, after which the present treaty is patterned, exposed last year the wholesale marketing in London by agents of the United States of "extra small pup" fur-seal skins, contrary to law, and in violation of the expressed agreement by Secretary NAGEL that a closed season for seals would be kept during the Summer of 1910. A Congressional investigation last Summer followed this exposure, during which Prof. ELLIOTT and Dr. WILLIAM T. HORNADAY, Director of the Bronx Zoological Garden, delivered some pretty effective testimony concerning the departmental officialism that was responsible for the butchery of the already depleted herds of seals in the Pribilof Islands.

Prof. ELLIOTT, who is one of the best qualified experts on fur-seals in the world, has continued his testimony not less effectively before Chairman SULZER's committee. When all the department officials concerned had completed their defense, and the question of favorably reporting the bill was put, the motion was defeated by a vote of 18 to 3. Mr. SULZER is convinced that something by way of amendment must be done in order to change the temper of his committee.

The way to change the temper of the committee is plain. To be safe from extermination the fur-seal herd must have a rest, a long rest. Prof. ELLIOTT testifies that this policy would be in accordance with the Russian custom before the valuable herds were handed over to this Nation. The commercial butchers had reduced them in 1834 to "some 60,000 seals alive on the islands." Prof. ELLIOTT says:

> A rest, or "zapooska," for ten years from all commercial slaughter on the Pribilof Islands was then ordered in 1834, and carried out not exactly, but practically. I have the details of this restoration so ordered and carried out, given to me by the son of KAZAEN SHAISHNIKOV, who was in charge of St. Paul's Island and who kept a daily journal during the whole period. The first evidence of recuperation was not well seen on the rookeries until 1840. By 1844 a killing of 20,000 young males, surplus males, was easily and safely made. This killing was slightly increased annually thereafter, so that by 1857 a killing of 60,000 to 72,000 was easily and safely made, and then held at those figures and continued annually up to 1867, when this herd of some 4,700,000 (or 5,000,000 at the most) seals passed into our hands.

The herd is again reduced to its condition of 1834, or worse. There remains to-day a nucleus of not more than 50,000 breeding female seals on the rookeries. Prof. ELLIOTT advocates, with perfect reason, a closed season of fifteen years. Then the killings may be resumed with the assurance that the herd, unless the ruthless raids shall again be permitted, will prove a permanent resource of wealth to the Nation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Morse Was Set at Liberty.

There are doubtless some people, and perhaps not a few, who, in spite of the explicit and detailed reports by competent and reputable doctors upon the state of CHARLES W. MORSE's health, will still assert or hint that the explanation of the clemency at last accorded to the convict banker is to be found in the size of his financial operations. Nothing, perhaps, will convince these inveterate believers in the power of money to affect the course of justice that they are wrong except the almost immediate death of MORSE.

They forget, however, that in similar circumstances like action on the part of Presidents and Governors has released scores and scores of men whose one claim for mercy was natural and reasonable reluctance on the part of executive officials to carry out a sentence to imprisonment when they had been persuaded that to do so would be in effect to inflict capital punishment for offenses to which no such penalty is allotted by law. That many a criminal not a murderer dies in prison, and as a result of confinement there, is true, but if these cases were investigated it would probably be found that in every instance the man lacked, not money, but relatives or friends sufficiently interested in his fate, sufficiently devoted, sufficiently intelligent, and sufficiently energetic to create, where it would be effective, a realizing sense of the harshness, if not the injustice, of confinement that meant death.

And this leads straight to the true reason why MORSE is to-day a free man. It is not that he is or was rich; it is certainly not wholly because he is a desperately sick man; it is because he had a wife who was sufficiently devoted, who was sufficiently intelligent, who was sufficiently energetic to undertake in her husband's behalf and to carry to a successful conclusion a campaign of argument and appeal that at first seemed perfectly hopeless. Rebuffed a hundred times and in a hundred places, Mrs. MORSE has worked tirelessly on, and, however cold one may be to the result she has achieved, to withhold from her highest admiration and warmest sympathy would be impossible.

The President's hand signed the certificate of commutation, but it is to MORSE's wife that MORSE owes his liberty. That he could have inspired—the mere fact that he received—such devotion from such a woman is more than an excuse for crediting him with virtues unsuspected by those who knew him only as a reckless speculator with the money of others.

A Criminal of a New Kind.

One's first thought on reading about the scene created when the man FERRONE was dragged screaming and fighting into court to receive his death sentence is that such behavior on the part of criminals, no matter how desperate, is so rare that only the best-informed students of judicial history can recall a like demonstration. Resistance to arrest is, indeed, too common to excite more than passing attention, and so natural is it that though ranking as an offense penalized by the law it counts against a man rather as a thing made evil by prohibition than as a thing evil in itself. Once subdued, criminals of every stamp almost invariably recognize the hopelessness and the futility of further resistance, and any except the quietest protests against the course of justice are almost unknown. Not only in court is this submission shown by men of violent lives, but it is carried into the execution chamber. The headsman, the hangman, the mover of the electric switch—practically never does one of these have to exert strength or courage except for the conquering of such sensibilities and weaknesses of his own as the performance of his task may bring out. Not often does the selected victim of the law's vengeance show many signs even of fear, and usually he is or seems less disturbed than the majority of the bystanders.

FERRONE is evidently an exception to the rule, and so wide is his departure from normality that there well may be another explanation of his conduct than that given by his jailers and the court attendants, who call him a "devil" and think him then accounted for. While not an imbecile or a maniac, in the ordinary sense of those words, it would probably not be impossible for the alienists to make him out technically irresponsible under their definitions of insanity and imbecility. That he is "acting like a fool" is obvious, but so many men do that in one way or another that his particular form of folly would not in itself justify sending him to an asylum instead of to the chair.

Presumably, FERRONE will calm down under the mysterious ministrations of the death watch, and there will be no struggle with his Wardens at the end, but there is at least the chance of a fight not less unusual than horrible before he is strapped down. And, after all, the wonder is that such fights, instead of being next to unknown, are not common, for no pain or fear is felt in the excitement of battle.

Hopefulness Hard to Share.

Dr. BRANNAN, accepting in behalf of Dr. DOTY the medal awarded to the guardian of our port by the Directors of the American Museum of Safety, expressed something between a hope and a belief that Gov. DIX might still change his mind and re-appoint as Health Officer the man whose qualifications for the place have been so well and so long demonstrated.

Such action hardly seems possible, after what the Governor, accepting the opinions and statements of Messrs. BULGER and DUSHKIND, wrote in demanding Dr. DOTY's resignation. Yet as it obviously is the one right thing to do, who shall say that Dr. BRANNAN is wrong in refusing to despair?

It may be, too, that the Governor is finding difficulty in getting a doctor of the rank and repute which the Health Officer of this port must have unless his selection is to be an open scandal. For the man who does take the place thereby sets himself beside Mr. BULGER and Mr. DUSHKIND, and against the practically unanimous voice of the medical profession as it has been expressed since that wonderful "investigation."

Not every doctor would care to do this, and it would be surprising indeed if the Governor had not been told so more than once since he has been looking for Dr. DOTY's successor.

CONSUMERS' LEAGUE PROTESTS.

Raps Civil Service Exemption of Supervising Factory Inspectors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

According to an announcement in to-day's paper, the State Civil Service Commission has at last, after considering the matter for three months, made a final disposition of the classification of the eight Supervising Factory Inspectors in the State Labor Department, which were authorized by a law passed last year. The Civil Service Commission has placed four of these positions in the exempt schedule and the other four in the competitive class. All eight positions had been previously placed in the exempt schedule, but the Consumers' League made a public protest and succeeded in securing a public hearing and having the question reopened.

At this hearing it was clearly shown that the attempt to throw these positions open to political patronage was prejudicial to the best interests of the working people. The fact was also established that exemption from examination of these Supervising Inspectors would be positively illegal. The positions are not confidential, and the testimony at the hearing brought out the fact that examinations for such positions are entirely practicable. On these two grounds only, the law explicitly states, can public servants be exempt from competitive examination. Moreover, the Wainwright Commission, which, after study of these questions as authorized by the Governor, recommended the reorganization of the Labor Department, and urged the passage of the bill which created these positions, expressly states that the positions in question should be subject to civil service examinations.

In answer to letters sent to the Governor, he wrote as follows, (dated Nov. 4, 1911):

"Acknowledging your esteemed favor of the 3d inst. I beg to advise you that it will not be necessary to have a hearing in the matter of the classification of Supervising Factory Inspectors in the Labor Department. These positions are to be competitive rather than exempt."

Despite all the evidence thus amassed, the Civil Service Commission has only now announced its decision. These positions have been available since Oct. 1, and, as pointed out, should have been placed at once in the competitive list. The reason for the present compromise is palpable, but not justifiable.

This failure of the Civil Service Commission to do its duty should not pass unnoticed.

THE FIREMEN'S BENEFIT FUND.

If Given to the General City Fund It Will Not Help Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I write you on the subject of the fund that is now being collected for the benefit of our firemen. During my services as one of the Board of Fire Commissioners under Mayor Strong, and as the single Commissioner under Mayor Low, I became entirely familiar with the nature of the present pension fund, the sources from which it is derived, and the laws defining its use. These present a condition which is not generally understood by our citizens, and which should be clearly borne in mind if it is intended by the new fund to confer benefits upon firemen in addition to those which they now enjoy.

The provisions under which money is drawn from this fund are all statutory, are obligatory upon the city, and must of course be paid. Under these circumstances, I suggested to Mayor Low's administration that the city should regularly appropriate each year an amount which, if added to the interest and income received from the above various sources, should be sufficient to meet the annual requirements of each year. This has been done, I understand, and the amount thus appropriated comes from the general tax collections of the city. Any additional funds donated or subscribed by citizens to the pension fund would become a part of the principal, and the income thereof would simply go to diminish the amount which the city otherwise would appropriate to meet the annual outgo, but such gifts or donations would not add in the slightest degree to the benefits now accruing to the members of the Fire Department, because, as above stated, the disbursements from this fund are regulated by law.

In order to afford the additional benefits which I believe the subscribers to this new fund contemplate, it should therefore not be contributed to the pension fund of the department, but should be made a separate endowment, directed by trustees, and authorized to make such disbursements as the donors may deem wise in creating the trust.

Colonels and Misters Mixed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will THE TIMES be kind enough to put a reader wise to the use of military titles, at least to one in particular, having that one myself, to which I am not fully accustomed? For example, in newspaper headlines I frequently observe that Col. W. J. Bryan or Col. Roosevelt or Col. George Harvey or Col. Somebodyorother has done something or other worthy of such exaltation in the printed column, and immediately thereafter when I read down into the text I find that it is Mr. Bryan or Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Harvey who has been doing something.

Now, which is to be accepted as the real kibosh, the headlines or the text? I am aware that Grant or Sherman or Sheridan or Lee or Jackson or Johnston are not referred to as "Mr." when any mention is made of them in either headlines or text, but then they were not Colonels. Is a Colonel entitled to any special titular privileges that do not inhere to the rank of General? Anyway, how the dickens is it about these Colonels, who are more or less a Mister-y, as it were? The Renomination of Taft.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial remarks on President Taft to-day should carry weight. He is certainly entitled to a renomination by the Republican Party, and is by all odds the strongest candidate they can name—the election is another matter.

President Taft has committed blunders and many of them, but they are trivial. He attempted to follow too closely in the footsteps of his predecessors, was too much of an imitator, and his perambulating journeys through the country served greatly to weaken the confidence of the people in his judgment.

And he has failed also to sustain the dignity of his office. It had been thought that his bitter experience had taught him a lesson, but it is announced to-day that he is starting another banqueting tour, and it is announced gleefully from the White House that he is to eat three dinners in one day.

President Taft seems destined to continually stand in his own light. E. T. W.

AFTER WORKROOM SMOKERS.

Fire Department Issues 35,000 "No Smoking" Placards in 3 Languages.

The Fire Department has just printed 35,000 placards which prohibit smoking "in these premises under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both." Of this number 5,000 are printed in Italian, 10,000 in English, and 20,000 in Yiddish. They will be displayed in conspicuous places in the workrooms of factories, lofts, and department stores. Fire Commissioner Johnson states that employes who speak and read Yiddish, but who understand little or no English, are in the majority in such places as constitute the gravest life menace in the event of fire.

Acting Corporation Counsel Sterling has given, as his opinion to Commissioner Johnson, that the Fire Department can proceed against violators of the "No smoking" order. Mr. Sterling says:

"Clearly, the smoking of a pipe, cigar, or cigarette, under such circumstances as renders the act 'dangerous to human life,' or 'endangers the safety of any considerable number of persons' or 'renders a considerable number of persons insecure in life or in the use of property' is a crime within the meaning of Section 1530 of the Penal Law."

Commissioner Johnson says that those who violate the prohibition will be pursued rigorously. The proportion of fires in this city caused by smokers, either in the careless handling of cigars and cigarettes or matches, is alarmingly great. In 1910 in this city there were 14,405 fires, of which 3,240 were caused by carelessness in this respect. In 1911 the total number of fires was not so large as in 1910, but there were 3,332 blazes caused by such carelessness.

MRS. STETSON EXPLAINS.

Mrs. Eddy Appealed to Law of God, Shown in Material Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly permit me to explain a statement in my pamphlet, which you recently reviewed, to which you took exception? If you will reread the paragraph quoted, you will find that you arrived at a conclusion before you had finished the sentence, which reads thus:

> During Mrs. Eddy's personal work in building up the cause of Christian Science she never appealed to Caesar (so-called material law) to protect her in her work of proving the healing efficacy of divine metaphysics.

I referred to the work of demonstrating the power of spiritual thought-force over the false mentality which produces sin and disease. She never appealed to materia medica or to so-called material law to aid her in healing the sick, knowing spiritual law to be omnipotent and demonstrable when man is governed by his Maker—God. She never advised her students to appeal to materia medica to aid them in proving the healing influence of Christian Science, but required of her students absolute reliance upon divine mind—God, the Principle of being, to demonstrate the metaphysical system of the Christ-Mind—power over all manner of sin and disease.

Your reference to Mrs. Eddy's defense of her rights, which involved her in legal experiences, is well known to all—and to no one more than to me, who have stood for twenty-five years in the front of the battle contending for emancipation from bondage to materialism in religion.

She never demanded protection for herself. But when her book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and her system of spiritual healing and teaching were assailed she hesitated not to protect Christ's method of destroying sin and sickness. Mrs. Eddy protested against any invasion of her divine right to follow Christ in his demonstration of spiritual therapeutics, and always appealed to the law of God, which is manifested through what is called material law. There is but one God; therefore there is but one law and one law giver, which humanity interprets according to the good or evil which obtains in the human interpreter.

Flags in Cardinal Farley's Honor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder if the example set by the Catholics of New York in displaying the American flag on the occasion of the return of Cardinal Farley to this city has produced the same impression upon others that it has upon me?

All who love their fellow-men and believe that "war is hell" will agree with me that in commemorating Cardinal Farley's return to his native shores his friends, by decorating their homes with our National emblem, symbolized higher instincts, purer sentiments, and more enlightened views that they possibly could do in celebrating victories at the expense of inexpressible suffering and misery.

Not This Lenox Amusement Co.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Wednesday, Jan. 17, asserts that the Lenox Amusement Company conducted a moving-picture show which was raided at the Lenox Casino. We beg to state that we are incorporated under the State laws of New York under the name of the Lenox Amusement Company, with offices at 1,334 Third Avenue, New York. We wish to state further that we did not run the picture show raided by the police.

Downtown Sidewalk Vendors.

Although before, his kindness went
As far as kindness could go.
Never again
The Weekly pen
Inscribes on Harper's pages
Those words which said
That Woodrow's head
Sized up with those of sages.
Gee whiz!

Never again will Colonel George
Sing Woodrow Wilson's praises;
Gone, gone, are them kind words of his,
To rest beneath the daisies.
Never, no more,
Will George adore
The Woodrow Wilson graces,
For Woodrow sniffed
At his uplift
And kicked out of the traces.
Oh, say!

Never again will Colonel George
Exploit the Jersey wonder,
For Woodrow plainly intimates
That George may go to thunder.
Never again
Will these two men,
Political and pious,
Stand side by side,
Their party's pride,
As Damon and Pythias.
What?

Never again will Colonel George
Do anything injurious
To Woodrow Wilson's future hopes,
If genuine, or spurious.
Never no more—
Apart they're tore,
A case of vivisection!
How sad; how sad;
And Woodrow had
Been Harveyized for protection.
Wow!

SOME REMARKABLE PAINTINGS ON VIEW

Corot's "Lake Nemi" Is the Treasure of Collection at American Art Galleries.

NINE DELIGHTFUL BOUDINS

Examples of the Barbizon Painters, and the Americans, Tryon, Inness, Davis, and Wyant.

The collection of paintings at the American Art Galleries, combining those belonging to the estates of the late George Crocker, Alice Newcomb, Emily H. Moir, and Frederic Bonner, contains a small number of remarkable examples together with a large number of works of excellent quality that will give pleasure to their owners without evoking extreme emotion.

In the upper galleries are several portraits of the eighteenth century English school, for the most part of only moderate importance. A portrait of David Garrick, which is given to Gainsborough, is out of that master's ordinary vein, but is a full-blooded, interesting performance. The characteristic mobile mouth of the actor is admirably painted, but there is a certain harshness in the treatment of the eyes. The blue coat with its silver cord is fine in color, and the face is ruddy. The features are unlike those in Sir Joshua's "David Garrick Between Comedy and Tragedy," but bear the indefinable stamp of a good likeness.

The "Empress Josephine," given to Hoppner, is weak in characterization. "The Ladies Arundell," by Thomas Lawrence, is soft and vague for even that painter of vacuous prettiness, but the eyes are characteristically large and the hands characteristically long. A seventeenth century portrait of "Le Duc de Bassompierre," by Jakob Van Loo, is a brilliant and striking picture of a man with ample temperament to express, one of the lively positive portraits of an age in which saliency of character was valued. Sir Joshua Reynolds is represented by a sketchy handsome little portrait of Lord Melbourne as a child, the white of the broad collar turned to amber, and the dark red of the jacket beautiful in quality.

A group of nine paintings by Boudin constitute the feature of the upper gallery; delightful pictures filled with the records of just observation, rich and quiet in color, distinguished in design; powerful and delicate in sentiment. No such number of pictures by this artist have been sold at auction before in America.

In the upper gallery, also, are two strongly contrasted pictures by Claude Monet, one the early "Jardins de l'Infante" with its formal paths and carefully drawn buildings, the other the subtle and dainty "Near Vernon" with its rainbow color and faint indefinable forms.

Corot's "Lake Nemi" in the lower gallery is the treasure of the exhibition. It came from the Mary J. Morgan collection in 1886, and is one of the famous pictures in the long list of the master's works. The composition is simple and dignified but full of vitality. At the left a mass of tree foliage, dark in tone, and dense, yet filled with air, occupies at least a third of the space. Beneath, a little patch of water that gleams silvery under the light sky, stretches toward the horizon. The joyous movement of the clouds across the sky gives the note of blitheness, and the dark stretch of an Italian hillside emphasizes it by contrast. The figure of a bather clambering on the bank at the right is modeled with the rich solidity of Corot's best figure work. The whole picture is a union of sound workmanship and fascinating quality, a veritable pearl of price, and a wonderful Corot for the ownership of which we safely may predict, competition will be keen.

On the opposite wall is a lovely Cazin, much warmer and fuller in coloring than we expected from this painter's wan palette; intimate in feeling and very fresh and genuine in treatment, a portrait of the artist's home at Ecouen. At the right of the large Corot hangs a little Corot that demonstrates the vast distance between the painter at his noble best and in that mood when ordinary conscientious craftsmanship was all that he asked of his great powers. Speaking of craftsmanship, however, how well these toilers of Barbizon knew their material. The "Lake Nemi" was shown in the Salon of 1865, and there is not a crack or blotch or patch of deadness to betray its age. On the same wall are two handsome Daubignys, a painter's pictures, wrought lovingly and with a swift and certain touch, despite the careful notation of all the elements in the scene.

On the adjoining wall is a donkey by Vollon with which one could keep house for long with inextinguishable enjoyment, and a Van Marcke, too, full of cows, but with a beautiful tree in blossom against a soft enchanting sky, and with a dog lapping thirstily from a stream, making his laps heard in the stillness of the charming landscape.

A "Sunset After Storm" by Diaz, full of dramatic interest is on the opposite wall, and also a pretty Venus with Loves by the same painter. Pictures by the Americans, Tryon, Inness, C. H. Davis, and Wyant fit with quiet dignity in this company of Barbizon painters, the Tryon in particular sharing the grave feeling for nature of the older Frenchmen. In the upper gallery, also, are several pictures by American painters, Twachtman, Ballard Williams, J. Alden Weir, Louis Loeb, and William Keith, all good examples.

We leave for future notice the collection of imperial jades and other objects which are on view in the side galleries, and merit close examination.

CRIMINAL COURTS TO JURY.

Stones of Outside Walls May Fall Any Moment, City Official Admits.

Wishing to know something further about the condition of the decrepit Criminal Courts Building and also how it can be kept from falling the Grand Jury, on its own volition, yesterday began to investigate the why and wherefore of the cracks in the building.

After the jurors had gone all over the building and looked at the numerous cracks in the walls and the floor they called before them Supt. Robert B. Insley of the Bureau of Public Buildings, E. V. Frothingham, Commissioner of Public Works; Supt. Rudolph P. Miller of the Bureau of Buildings, and Engineers James P. Whiskeman and Ernest P. Goodwich.

Supt. Miller admitted yesterday that he was mistaken when he declared that there were no new cracks in the building. He said that the southeast end of the structure has moved five inches. There is no immediate danger of its collapsing, he stated, although the stones on the outside of the walls may come crashing to the ground at any time.

A CORRECTION.

Erroneous Statements Regarding the School Trouble at Georgetown, Conn.

THE TIMES learns from Mr. C. W. Murphy of Georgetown, Conn., that statements in a dispatch from that city regarding the disorder in the public school there, printed on Jan. 16, were incorrect. The statement that "Mrs. Harry Brownlow, a widow of Danbury," was slated to replace the Principal, Mr. Hodgdon, and that it was said that Supervisor Parker of Ridgefield "had directed Mr. Ferris, the district committeeman, to oust Mr. Hodgdon, so that a place might be made for the Supervisor's friend," were both erroneous. Mrs. Brownlow is not a widow, but the wife of a respected citizen of Danbury, and she had been requested to go to Georgetown merely to fill a vacancy for a few days, knowing nothing of the discharge of the Principal until she arrived there and learned that he was not ill, as she had believed. Mrs. Brownlow is not a candidate for the Principalship or for any post as teacher, and a place was not being made for her.

DEBUTANTE DANCE FOR MISS CLAFLIN

Mrs. John Claflin Entertains at Sherry's for Her Youngest Daughter, Agnes.

FAVORS FOR 250 GUESTS

Hostess and Her Three Daughters Receive in Red Room—Most of Season's Buds Present.

Mrs. John Claflin of Washington Square gave a small dance last evening at Sherry's for her youngest and débutante daughter, Miss Agnes Claflin. The small ballroom and the adjoining suite were used for the entertainment, and though there was no cotillion there were favors for the guests.

Mrs. Claflin, her married daughter, Mrs. Gustavus T. Kirby, and the Misses Bessie and Agnes Claflin received in the rose red room. The decorations throughout were green, and a seated supper was served between 1 and 2, the guests being asked to come at 10, and the dancing beginning shortly after 11.

The favors for the girls included fancy mob caps, gayly covered bandboxes, crystal hearts, and small fancy trifles, and the men received large boxes of cigarettes. There was no breakfast, the dance being over at a comparatively early hour.

The guests asked, who included about 250, were most of the season's débutantes, a few of last year's buds, and the young dancing men, among whom were a number of college boys. Among them were the Misses Sybil Davis, Noel Johnston, Helen Gourd, Frances Henry, Vieva Fisher, Frances Wyeth, Lucy Dahlgren, Helen Turnbull, Justine Ingersoll, Martha Bowers, Mary Haskell, Hope Warren, Caramal Carroll, Helen Jenkins, Phyllis McVickar, Winifred Chisolm, Josephine Nicoll, Frances Breese, Marjorie and Florence Blair, Jean Morris, Elizabeth Stillman Kendall, Dorothy Adriance, Edith and Alice Pine, Ursula Brown, Caro Brown, Margaret Knapp, Margaret Bowers, Ruth Adams, Vouletti Proctor, Eugenie Philbin, Elizabeth Turnure, Katharine Lawrance, Emily Sherman, Sarah Manice, Jeannie Duncan, Rosalie Coe, Elizabeth Thompson, and Agnes Ely.

Also, George Wagstaff, Oliver Wagstaff, Rivington and Grafton Pyne, Henry Emmet, Jr., Philip Stimson, Colles Coe, Walter Camp, George N. Miller, Maccolloch Miller, Malcolm Sloane, F. B. Hoffman, Jr, Amory Haskell, Jonathan Thompson, William Manice, William Remsen, George Dickson, John Darragh, Gallatin Pell, Alfred Ely, David Ely, Robert R. Livingston, Gustavus T. Kirby, and others.

DOG IN AMATEURS' COMEDY.

"Buster Smith" Has a Rôle in "Prince Karl of Kronstadt."

"Buster Smith," a bulldog, will have his name on the programme with many society amateurs, who compose the newly organized Musical Dramatic Club, which is to present a two-act musical comedy, "Prince Karl of Kronstadt," at the Plaza on the evenings of Jan. 29 and 31 for charity.

The dog is the pet of Miss Rosalie Smith, whose engagement to J. Roderick Buchanan was recently announced, and will be the first dog to appear upon the stage in a small rôle for the amusement of society. His part will be merely to look wise and to bark when the proper cue is given.

Buster will appear at both performances, the first to be given for the benefit of the Day and Night Camps of the New York Throat, Nose, and Lung Hospital. The proceeds of the second performance will be divided equally between the Friendly Aid Society and the Vivisection Investigation League.

The Secretary of the club is Mrs. Pierre Crosby Waring of 144 East Fifty-sixth Street, and Miss Maud R. Ingersoll of 117 East Twenty-first Street is the Treasurer.

There will be dancing following the supper after each performance.

GARDEN EFFFECTS AT DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hastings Entertain at the St. Regis.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hastings entertained at dinner last night at the St. Regis. The guests, numbering about seventy, were seated at a large oval table in the marble ballroom, in the centre of which was a sunken garden, with an electric fountain playing in the midst of tall bay trees, lilac bushes in bloom and forsythia. Canary birds chirped in cages in the green foliage and several cockatoos ran about wild.

After the dinner Ruth St Denis danced the Nautch and Cobra dances, accompanied by her Hindoo musicians. Later there was general dancing among the guests.

Among those at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden; Mr. and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Delano, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Eustis Mr. and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. Bourke Cockran, Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gray Griswold, Miss Anne Morgan, the Misses Edith Mortimer, Edith Starr Miller, Mabel and Angelica Garry, Mabel Choate, Harriet Alexander, Alice Nicholas, Marion Hollins, Beatrice Bend, and Moncure Robinson, Bertram Cruger, Perry Osborn, Lawrence Butler, Craig Wadsworth, Worthington Whitehouse, Robert Potter, R. L. Cottenet, John Cowdin, H. P. Burden, Charles A. Munn, Alphonse Navarro, Devereux Milburn, James Barney, Chester Aldrich, and Egerton Winthrop.

MRS. BAINBRIDGE RECEIVES.

Entertains 300 Guests in Honor of Her Daughter-in-Law.

A reception was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. William F. Bainbridge at her home, 34 Gramercy Park, for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bainbridge, wife of Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge, at which she was assisted in receiving by her daughter, Miss Helen Bainbridge. The home was decorated with roses, lilies of the valley, and Chinese lilies, and the bride, who has just returned from her honeymoon in Europe, received in her wedding gown, all of which gave to a very pretty affair the appearance of a wedding reception.

About 300 guests were received, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Chambers, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Thompson, Dr Louis Stephen Pilcher of Brooklyn, the Misses Thursby, Mrs. A. F. Schauffler and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Henry P. Schauffler, Dr. and Mrs. George L. Brodhead, Mr. and Mrs. William Stiles Bennet, Dr. and Mrs. Albert W. Ferris, Miss Colgate, Dr. and Mrs. Mittendorf, Mrs. Charles Henry Lee, Walter Heber Wheeler, Mrs. Dr. John Wyeth, Mrs. Charles Gilmore Curley, and Miss Cuyler.

Tea for Mrs. S. Wyman Aldrich.

Mrs. S. Wyman Aldrich was the guest of honor at the tea given yesterday by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Spencer Aldrich, at her town house, 29 West Fiftieth Street. Mrs. Aldrich and Mrs. Wyman Aldrich were assisted in receiving by Miss Maude Aldrich, Mrs. William C. Weissner, and Miss Mary Aldrich poured tea. The tea was followed by a dinner and a small theatre party.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Wyman Aldrich will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich for a time, and will spend the Winter in town.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt has cards out for two bridges, on Jan. 30 and Feb. 1, at her home, 8 East Fifty-second Street.

Miss Margaret Clement of Rutland, Vt., has taken an apartment at the Renaissance, 512 Fifth Avenue, for the remainder of the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Morton Whitman are at the Hotel Gotham for the week-end.

Mrs. August Rust-Oppenheim (Miss Claiborne) is giving a tea to-day at her residence, 68 East Seventy-seventh Street.

Mrs. William R. Chapman will give a reception with music to-morrow from 4 to 7 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

J. Insley Blair of 6 East Sixty-first Street has taken the Peabody Camp on the upper St. Regis Lake for the coming Summer.

Mrs. Robert R. Livingston gave a dinner last night for Miss Sybil Davis, and afterward a number of the guests went to the dance for Miss Agnes Claflin.

Mrs. Howard Carroll of 4 East Sixty-fourth Street is giving a dinner this evening for Gen. and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford.

Mrs. Justus Ruperti will give a card party on Feb. 14 for Mrs. Gustav Amsinck at 140 East Seventy-first Street.

The wedding of Miss Florence Cazenove Jones to Henry W. Doughten, Jr., will take place to-day in Wellesley, Mass. After March 1 Mr. Doughten and his bride will be at 31 West Eleventh Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Russell and Mrs. C. H. Auchincloss are sailing to-day to remain abroad till Summer.

Mrs. William Allen Adriance gave a dinner last evening for her daughter, Miss Dorothy Adriance. Afterward the guests went to Miss Claflin's dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Swift have moved from 670 Lexington Avenue to Stanley Court, 30 West 106th Street.

Mrs. Joseph C. Willetts, who spent the Summer in Europe with her son, William Allen Willetts, now at Cambridge, Mass., has closed her country place, the Bowlders, at Skaneateles, and is at 130 West Fifty-seventh Street for the Winter.

Owing to the death of Mrs. Anson G. Hard, an aunt of Miss Eleanor Granville Brown, the wedding reception on Feb. 7, when Miss Brown will marry C. Alan Hudson, will be confined to the relatives only. The church wedding will be as planned, but all wedding festivities have been abandoned, and Mr. Hudson's bachelor dinner and theatre party will be confined to those of his ushers, who are not in mourning.

Two benefit performances will be given this afternoon and evening at the Plaza in aid of the Chrystie Street House. The afternoon session will be followed by tea and the evening performance by dancing. There are to be Russian, Japanese, and Quaker dances, songs by Mrs. John Flagler, and Slavic pantomime.

COL. ROOSEVELT HONOR GUEST.

At Reception for Artists of Three Arts Club Benefit Performance.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a reception given by the managers of the Three Arts Club at the club, 340 West Eighty-fifth Street. He arrived about 4 o'clock, and from that time until he left nearly all of the guests, numbering about 300, had shaken hands with him.

The reception was for the artists who are to take part in a benefit performance which the club is to give at the Republic Theatre on the afternoon of Feb. 6.

Among those present were Mrs. John H. Hammond, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mrs. Marry Markoe, Mrs. Breck P. Trowbridge, Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, Mrs. Robert Burnside Porter, and Mrs. Twombly. Bishop Greer is the Honorary President of the club, and Mrs. Hammond, Acting President. President Taft is to be an honorary patron of the benefit performance, also Col. Roosevelt and Joseph H. Choate.

FLINN-WARWICK WEDDING

Pittsburg Cotillion Leader Married to Mrs. Warrington Warwick.

The wedding of Mrs. Warrington Warwick, daughter of the late J. J. Gillespie of Pittsburgh, to Ralph E. Flinn, a son of ex-State Senator William Flinn of Pennsylvania, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's niece, Mrs. George W. Barr, 130 East Sixty-seventh Street. Only relatives and a few intimate friends were present.

The bride is a sister of the late Mrs. Christopher Lyman Magee of Pittsburgh, and has been active socially in Pittsburgh for some time.

Mr. Flinn is Secretary and Treasurer of the Freehold Oil and Gas Company, and was graduated from Yale, class of '01. He is a member of the Duquesne and the University Clubs of Pittsburgh, and is well known there as a cotillion leader.

After a bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Flinn will reside in Pittsburgh.

WM. W. NILES TO MARRY.

Wealthy Bronx Resident, Aged 50, to Wed Miss Florence Brown, 21.

William W. Niles of this city and Miss Florence May Brown of 3,202 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, took out a marriage license yesterday at the City Hall. Mr. Niles is 50 years old, and his bride to be is 21. He is a member of the Niles family of the Bronx, and lives in an old mansion in the Bedford Park section of the Bronx, which has long been a landmark, and is within sight of Miss Brown's home.

Mr. Niles is reported to be worth several millions, and has extensive real estate holdings in the Bronx and New York. The wedding will take place shortly.

Among those who will appear are Maud Raymond, Yorke and Adams, Stella Tracey, Frank Morrell, Frank Fogarty, McConnel and Simpson, Billy Gould and Belle Ashlin, the five Satsudas, and other prominent vaudeville performers.

GEORGINE ISELIN A PAPAL COUNTESS

Honor and Title Conferred by Pope on Banker's Daughter for Services to Church.

NEW CARDINAL THE MEDIUM

He Also Distributes Titles and Decorations to James Butler, John J. O'Rourke, and John B. Manning.

Cardinal Farley spent another busy day in his archiepiscopal residence yesterday receiving callers, among them the honored few for whom he had brought back from the Vatican high honors. He announced the names of two more Monsignori, three domestic prelates, three laymen elevated to the rank of Knights of St. Gregory, and one Countess. It was also said that the names of three additional Monsignori would be made public to-day.

Miss Georgine Iselin, daughter of the late Adrian Iselin of New Rochelle, was presented with the declarations and documents of a Countess, one of the highest honors that can be given to a woman in the Catholic Church.

It was Miss Iselin's father who was mainly instrumental in building St. Joseph's and St. Gabriel's Churches in New Rochelle. He also built the school for Catholic children in connection with St. Gabriel's Church. Miss Iselin is the sister of Adrian Iselin, Jr., and she, as well as her father and brother, have been closely identified with church work. Miss Iselin lives at 449 Park Avenue, and has a large country estate at New Rochelle.

The new Monsignori are the Rev. Francis McNickol, rector of St. Catherine's Church in Pelham, and the Rev. Charles R. Corley, who has been rector of St. Mary's Church in Yonkers for the last thirty-five years. Father Corley is one of the irremovable rectors of the archdiocese, and has a wide reputation as a parochial educator.

The new domestic prelates are the Rev. John J. Kean, rector of the Church of the Name of Jesus, Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street; the Rev. Matthew A. Taylor, rector of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament on West Seventy-first Street, near Broadway, and the Very Rev. Dean Lings, for the past forty-one years rector of St. Joseph's Church in Yonkers. Dean Lings is the author and translator of a number of religious works, and as Dean he presides over ecclesiastical affairs in Westchester, Dutchess, and Putnam Counties.

To James Butler, the merchant, was accorded the highest honor that the Pope can bestow upon a layman. He was vested as a Knight of St. Gregory of the highest class. There are four classes, and Mr. Butler's name goes in the category of the Order of the Grand Cross. There is only one other man in the United States who has received a like honor. He is Frederick Penfield of Philadelphia, now traveling in Europe. Mr. Butler, it was said at the Cardinal's residence yesterday, had won his distinction by his devotion and service to the Catholic Church. Notable among his gifts was the magnificent Reynard estate, comprising twelve acres of land near Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, valued at $250,000, which he prsented to the Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Mary. The new convent and school of Marymount, located in the centre of this State, was also donated by him, in memory of his wife. Mr. Butler is President of James Butler, Inc., President of Sinclair Realty Company, and Director of the Fidelity Trust Company. He is 55 years old, and started his career as a poor boy.

Another layman to receive the high honor of membership in the Knights of St. Gregory, though of a lower order, was John J. O'Rourke, another self-made man. Mr. O'Rourke, born as a poor boy on the east side, now stands in the fore rank as an engineer. He is the builder of the new Pennsylvania station and the New York Central's new terminal. Both he and Mr. Butler, it is understood, subscribed freely to raise the $600,000 debt from the cathedral a few years ago.

The third layman to receive Papal honors was John B. Manning, a prominent stock broker. He was invested with the same honors accorded Mr. O'Rourke. These two will wear their Papal decorations around their neck. Mr. Butler will wear an extra sash over the left shoulder with a gold cross suspended over his heart.

Among the other callers were Capt. Harraaowitz of the steamer Berlin, who brought the Cardinal safely to this port. Cardinal Farley was so glad to see the Captain that he invited him to stay for dinner. Others at the table were Bishop Gabriels of Ogdensburg, N. Y.; Vicar Generals Mooney, Lavelle, and Edwards, Mgr. Hayes, Chancellor of the diocese, and Mgr. Lewis, the Cardinal's Secretary.

COLUMBIA PLAYERS SEEN.

Students Appear in "The Recruiting Officer" at Carnegie Lyceum.

The Columbia University Dramatic Association presented Farquhar's "The Recruiting Officer" before a large audience at Carnegie Lyceum last night. The production was the first offering of Columbia men and women students organized for the purpose of encouraging serious dramatic effort. Heretofore Columbia has been represented in dramatics only by its annual 'Varsity Show, a musical comedy, in which the principal attraction has been the masquerading of the boys as chorus girls. While it is not expected that the 'Varsity Show will ever give way to the more serious plays, last night's performance seemed to satisfy a distinct undergraduate demand, and it is likely that hereafter it will assume a position of almost equal importance with its frivolous rival.

"The Recruiting Officer" was staged by Eugene S. Sawyer, as coach, aided by members of the Department of English at Columbia. R. Hale, in the leading rôle of Capt. Plume, demonstrated that he can act almost as well as he throws the sixteen-pound shot when he wears Columbia's colors as a member of its track team. The title feminine rôle of Sylvia was also well handled by Miss E. Higgins, who before coming to Columbia had played in California amateur productions.

The full cast was as follows:

Capt. Plume	R. Hale, '14
Ballance	R. S. Harris, '12
Brazen	S. M. Janney, '14
Worthy	F. D. Zeman, '14
Sergt. Kite	O. C. Isbell, '12
Bullock	R. Bonsib, '138
Castor	L. P. Reed, '13
Appletree	W. Knapp, '13 (T. C.)
William	A. A. Knapp, '12
Sylvia	Miss E. Higgins (Pg.)
Melinda	Miss L. F. Kelsay, '12 (T. C.)
Lucy	Miss A. Bowden, '13 (T. C.)
Rose	Miss R. N. Braus, '15 (T. C.)

In the Mob—A. Norek, '14; L. Branger, '15; H. B. Henderson, '13; W. M. Nevin, '14; L. M. Cooper '15, and A. A. Nicholson, '15.

The play will be repeated this afternoon.

WILL REVIVE "COUSIN KATE."

Ethel Barrymore to Appear in Davies Comedy on Jan. 29 for Three Weeks.

Charles Frohman decided yesterday to have Ethel Barrymore make a change of bill at the Empire Theatre for the last three weeks of her New York season, beginning on Jan. 29. After one week more of "The Witness for the Defense" she will drop that play, and will appear in "Cousin Kate," which is to be preceded by a thirty-five-minute novelty, the nature of which Mr. Frohman refuses to disclose. Mr. Frohman thinks the theatregoers will enjoy this "novelty" more if it comes to them as a surprise.

Miss Barrymore has not been seen in the Hubert Henry Davies comedy, "Cousin Kate," for several years. Her New York season will end on Feb. 10.

CANARY MAKES OPERA DEBUT

Bird Bursts Into Torrents of Song at Rehearsal of "Versiegelt."

A canary made a sensation as singer yesterday morning at the Metropolitan Opera House. It trilled with the assurance of Melba, and its voice carried over the Wagnerian orchestration which Leo Blech has provided for his opera "Versiegelt."

It was at the dress rehearsal of this opera, which will receive its first American performance to-day, that the bird made his début. The canary had been caged for some time in one of the wardrobe mistress's rooms. When the setting for "Versiegelt," which calls for a room in a German house, was devised, it was thought that the canary would add atmosphere, and so it proved. He was hung in his cage in the big bay window of the scene.

The canary was not noticed when the opera began, but just as the lovers make their entrance he burst into torrents of song, which he continued for some time.

"What a delightful idea," people exclaimed, thinking it some new orchestral device. Thereafter he sang whenever he felt like it, hopping around in his cage delightedly. Now "Koenigskinder" has its cackling geese, "Le Donne Curiose" has its barking poodle, and "Versiegelt" its singing canary.

DEVOTED TO WAGNER MUSIC.

Symphony Society's Programme at Century Follows Yearly Custom.

Walter Damrosch devoted the programme of the Symphony Society at the Century Theatre yesterday afternoon to music by Richard Wagner, as he is accustomed to do once a year. The programme will be repeated on Sunday.

The soloists on this occasion were Gertrude Rennyson and John F. Braun, who sang the entire third scene of the first act of "Die Walküre," the love duet. Miss Rennyson was further heard in an air from "Tannhäuser." David Mannes played Wagner's song, "Träume," on his violin to the accompaniment of the orchestra, and the orchestral numbers included the prelude to "Lohengrin," the "Ride of the Valkyries," and "Siegfried's Rhine Journey."

STRIKE HALTS OPERA AGAIN.

Curtain on Monna Vanna Delayed Till 9:30 O'Clock at Paris Performance.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The stagehands at the Opera made common cause with the members of the ballet, who struck on Monday night, and refused to work tonight as the curtain was about to go up on the first act of "Monna Vanna."

At first the director announced that there would be no performance, but after a stormy meeting on the stage a compromise with the stagehands was reached, and the performance began at 9:30 o'clock.

The ballet struck because the director refused to dismiss two unpopular dancers.

Alice Nielsen Appears in 'La Boheme.'

A performance of "La Bohême" at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening gave Mme. Alice Nielsen her first chance of the season to appear there. She of course sang the rôle of Mimi. Mr. Smirnoff was the Rodolfo, and the other characters were in familiar hands, Messrs. Scotti, Didur, De Segurola, and Pini-Corsi and Mme. Alten undertaking them. Mr. Sturani conducted.

Caruso's Song Goes to "The Million."

Caruso's song, words and music by himself, is to be sung in "The Million" next week. It will be made a feature of the third act, and will be rendered by Paul Ker in the rôle of Frederico Donatella, who is suposed to be a tempermental opera tenor. Caruso saw the play a few weeks ago, and yesterday he sent a copy of the song to Henry W. Savage, with the suggestion that the tenor of the farce sing it. The English title is "Dreams of Long Ago."

FOUR DAYS' FETES FOR CONNAUGHTS

Many Festivities Planned for the Visit Here of the Duke and Duchess.

DISTINCTION FOR MRS. REID

She Will Be the First Hostess to Entertain British Royalty Here Since 1860.

Society is keenly expectant over the approaching visit of the Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, and uncle of the King of England, and his Duchess, with their daughter, Princess Patricia, who are to arrive here on Monday morning from Ottawa for a four days' visit with the Ambassador to the Court of St James and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

Mrs. Reid will hold the distinction of being the first New York hostess to entain British royalty as house guests. It is really the first time that personages of such rank in England ever paid this country a visit since the year 1860, when the Prince of Wales, the late King Edward VII., was a much-feted visitor not only in this city but in Chicago, St. Louis, Washington, Philadelphia, and Boston. While in New York he stopped at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

As the visit of the regal party is purely social, there will be many entertainments crowded into the four days of their stay here. The social plans as announced yesterday in THE TIMES, which have been arranged by Ambassador and Mrs. Reid for the entertainment of their distinguished guests, and which include several dinners and a dance, will be augmented by several other smaller affairs, principally luncheons, which will probably be announced to-day or to-morrow.

There will be music after the dinner which the Ambassador and his wife will tender to their guests on Monday night at their residence, 451 Madison Avenue. Dancing will follow the dinner on Tuesday evening, and Mrs. Ogden Mills's entertainment on Wednesday night will be in the nature of a dinner, followed by a reception with music, to which additional guests will be asked. The arrangements for the music are not yet completed.

No announcement has been made of the number of invitations issued either by Ambassador and Mrs. Reid or Mrs. Mills for the entertainments which they are to give. When the Ambassador and Mrs. Reid gave a dinner and dance in honor of the King and Queen of England and Princess Victoria last July in London there were present, besides the leaders in the political and social world of England, many New Yorkers, including Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Ogden Mills, and Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt.

At their dinner and dance on June 29 at Dorchester House, which was in the nature of a farewell to the Duke of Connaught, Mrs. Charles P. Taft, Miss Taft, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Stanford White, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dodge, Mrs. C. B. Alexander, the Misses Alexander, and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown were among those well known on this side who were present.

Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt gave a luncheon of twenty-two covers yesterday in honor of Mrs. Reid. The luncheon was followed by music, for which a number of additional guests came in. The guests at the luncheon included Mrs. William Jay, Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. James Speyer, and Mrs. Ogden Mills. Mme. Namara-Toye sang and a Russian pianiste played.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The fact that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with their daughter, the Princess Patricia, are not to visit Washington while they are in the United States is causing some comment here, although it is believed there must be some good explanation for their decision.

It is usual, when royal personages are on a visit to a foreign country, even if semi-officially, for them to pay their respects to the head of the nation in which they are guests. The Duke of Connaught has the reputation of always doing the right thing, and people here refuse to believe that he is now making any mistake.

The visit to Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid was arranged before the Duke and Duchess of Connaught went to Canada, and follows the farewell dinner given to them at Dorchester House. In fact, they have frequently been guests of the United States Ambassador.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. CAROLINE WALTER NEUSTADTER, widow of Henry Neustadter, died yesterday in her apartments in the Hotel Netherlands. Mrs. Neustadter was born in this city seventy-two years ago. She was a daughter of Israel D. Walter. Mr. Neustadter, who made a fortune as a merchant in San Francisco, died eight years ago. His widow was a great traveler, and she had been in every part of the world. She took her own automobiles abroad with her, and a few years ago she was the first American woman to automobile through Norway and Sweden. The funeral services will take place at the hotel at 9:30 to-morrow morning.

GEORGE F. LEETE, treasurer of the Butler Exchange Company, and for more than forty years prominent in the business life of Philadelphia, died there yesterday at the age of 64. Recently Mr. Leete had been local representative of J. P. Morgan & Co.

WILLIAM J. DOIG, proprietor of the Globe Hotel in Red Bank, N. J., and well known in the State, died yesterday of hardening of the arteries at his home. He was born in Newburg, N. Y., and was 52 years old. He was a son of the late Alexander Doig, and went to Monmouth County twenty-five years ago. Mr. Doig was a member of the Red Bank Masonic Lodge and of the Elks. He leaves a widow and a daughter, Mrs. Elsie Doig Parson.

PHOEBE DURYEA STAGG, widow of Benjamin Stagg and a resident of this city for 96 years, died Wednesday at the home of her son-in-law, Henry Gallagher, 525 West 142d Street. Mrs. Stagg was born in Pearl Street when that thoroughfare was the centre of the city's finest residential section.

WILLIAM H. McCARTHY, 68 years old, who served several terms as member of the Board of Aldermen, died Thursday in St. Vincent's Hospital. He lived at 1,845 Madison Avenue. Mr. McCarthy was at one time high in the councils of Tammany Hall and a close friend of Richard Croker when the latter was Democratic leader here. He was a delegate to two Democratic National Conventions.

Mrs. CATHERINE WILIAMS MURCHISON, widow of Col. Kenneth Mackenzie Murchison, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James L. Sprunt, in Wilmington, N. C.

JAMES MONROE HOCKER, 89 years old, died Thursday at his home in Lexington, Ky. He was a founder of Hamilton College, and several months ago he celebrated the sixty-seventh anniversary of his marriage.

Miss MARY WHITALL WORTHINGTON, daughter of Mrs. M. G. Worthington of 29 East Seventy-seventh Street, died on Wednesday at the Rockefeller Institute. Miss Worthington was born in Baltimore 22 years ago.

EDGAR F. MUSGROVE, a hardware merchant at 507 West Forty-fifth Street, died at his home in Yonkers on Thursday. He was 75 years old.

CHARLES H. CORBETT, a business man of Sherman, N. Y., died there yesterday. He was a former member of the Democratic State Committee, and was the only Democrat ever elected to the New York State Assembly from the First Chautauqua District.

Mrs. LAURA CURTIS BULLARD, widow of Enoch Patterson Bullard and mother of Harold Curtis Bullard, died yesterday at her home, 2 West Eighty-eighth Street.

Mrs. EVA HARGRAVES KANE, wife of Lieut. Col. Theodore Porter Kane of the United States Marine Corps, died yesterday at The Portner, Washington, D. C.

ALBERT E. HUNT of The New York Herald died yesterday at his home in the Courtwood Apartments, 600 West 169th Street. He was 41 years old. Mr. Hunt began his newspaper career when only 18 years old. His first work was done on The Philadelphia Ledger. In 1895 he entered the service of The Associated Press. He reported the trial of H. H. Holmes, the wife murderer; the Hazleton riots in Pennsylvania, and he accompanied William Jennings Bryan through his Presidential campaigns. During the Spanish-American war Mr. Hunt was assigned to the army work at Key West.

THOMAS TYNAN, 61 years old, of Liverpool, England, who had been ten years in the Cunard service as Inspector, was found dead from heart disease in his berth on board the Franconia yesterday morning.

CANCEL TEXAS BOOKINGS.

Klaw & Erlanger Shift Companies to Escape Meningitis Epidemic.

Owing the prevalence of meningitis in some parts of Texas, Klaw & Erlanger have decided to cancel all theatrical bookings for the northern part of that State until the disease has been checked. This has been done not so much on account of the probable bad business that comes to theatres during an epidemic, but on account of the members of the theatrical companies. It is feared that some member of a company might contract the disease, which would mean the quarantining of the entire company and considerable expense and discomfort to the actors.

Besides the Klaw & Erlanger attractions a number of other theatrical organizations traveling in the South have shifted their bookings to escape the affected part of Texas.

HERMANN WINKELMANN DEAD

Operatic Tenor, Who Created Title Rôle in "Parsifal" at Baireuth.

VIENNA, Austria, Jan. 19.—Hermann Winkelmann, the operatic tenor, died to-day. Winkelmann was a man of great stature and splendid voice and was at his best in scenes of a genuinely dramatic character. He was born in Brunswick in 1845, and was, like Frau Materna and Herr Scaria, a Wagnerian singer of note, and in addition he possessed great talent as an actor. It was this combination of voice and dramatic ability which attracted the attention of Pollini, the manager of the opera at Hamburg. Winkelmann was the "discovery" of an opera season, and he soon acquired a fame in Hamburg that called Wagner's attention to him. The remarkable performance of the singer as Siegfried particularly induced Wagner to assign to him the title rôle in "Parsifal" at the Baireuth festival in 1880, and it was as the creator of this rôle that the singer became most noted.

Rev. Francis Michael Sheeran.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—The Rev. Francis Michael Sheeran, former President of Villanova College and former Prior of the Dominican Monastery of St. Thomas, at Villanova, died to-day. BALKED AT SUICIDE, SLAYER IN SING SING

Ferrone Again Tries to Kill Himself to Avoid Death in Electric Chair.

BOUND LIKE SACK IN COURT

Shakes Head Defiantly at Sentence—Armed with Sharp Tin Blade Even on Train.

Joseph Ferrone, recently convicted of killing his wife, was locked in a cell in the death house in Sing Sing Prison yesterday afternoon. The little Italian, who first tried to kill a juror and then slashed his own throat with a piece of glass on the day he was convicted, tried twice yesterday to cheat the electric chair to which Judge Foster in General Sessions sentenced him in the morning.

Ferrone is to be put to death in the week of Feb. 26, unless he manages to take his life before then. Sheriff Harburger, who escorted Ferrone to Sing Sing, and those who had charge of him in the Tombs, agree that the least relaxing of vigil by Ferrone's guards will be followed by his suicide. The Sheriff declares that Ferrone is one of the most desperate characters he has ever heard of.

Ferrone's actions in the Tombs had given his keepers warning of what they might expect if they gave him the least liberty, and when they went to his cell yesterday to lead him before Judge Foster they were equipped with leg irons and several lengths of heavy rope, as well as the usual handcuffs. His hands had been manacled since he made the attack on the juror and on himself.

As the keepers approached his cell, Ferrone sprang from his bunk, shouting, and raised his hands to his throat. He tore away the bandage about the slash in his neck, and with his fingers sought to tear open the wound. The keepers hastily opened the cell door, and several of them sprang on him. Ferrone fought with the strength of a madman, trying only to reach the wound in his neck and paying no heed to the blows the keepers rained on him. He succumbed only when Deputy Warden John Hanley stunned him with a blow on the head.

Trussed Up in Court.

Extra manacles were put on Ferrone's hands, his arms were tied to his sides, and his legs were bandaged from waist to heels in many windings of rope. When he had been trussed up until he could not make a move, he was carried across the Bridge of Sighs and into the pen in the rear of Judge Foster's courtroom. A curious crowd had been kept out by a squad of court officers, and when Judge Foster had ascended the bench Ferrone was carried in and placed in a chair facing him.

The wound in his neck had not been rebandaged, but a handkerchief had been tied around it. Through this the blood seeped as Ferrone sat silent and sullen looking, awaiting Judge Foster's words. These were brief, but as Judge Foster uttered the few sentences which sentenced Ferrone to die in the electric chair, the man shook his head vigorously as though denying that he would submit to his fate and his small eyes seemed popping from his head under the strain of his exertions as he tugged at the steel chains about his wrists.

The sentence pronounced, Sheriff Harburger and five of his men crowded around the condemned man and hustled him out of the courtroom and back to the Tombs to await the arrival of the prison van, which should carry him on his last journey in life. As he was being led away Ferrone exhibited the first spark of feeling when he asked that he be permitted to see his daughter. The little girl was waiting and she watched her father through the bars of the prison pen as he was led away. The child is only five years old, and after gazing an instant at her father she burst into tears and was led away.

Ferrone had not long to wait for the prison van and soon was on his way to the Grand Central Station, where Sheriff Harburger, with Deputy Sheriff Carroll, put him aboard the 11:55 o'clock train. On the trip to the station a dark-haired man with a sweeping mustache leaped to the steps on the rear of the van. The Sheriff ordered him to jump down, but the man did not obey and Deputy Sheriff Carroll kicked the man in the stomach, flinging him into the street. What he wanted neither of the officers knew.

Wanted to Die on Train.

When he had landed his prisoner safely in Sing Sing, Sheriff Harburger appeared greatly relieved.

"That man Ferrone is a devil in the shape of a man," he exclaimed. "I knew he would try to play some trick on me on the train, and as a precaution I would not let him sit next to the window for fear he might try to poke his head through it. He kept acting as though he wanted to get his hands free, and when we were near Tarrytown he made such efforts to get his hands into one of his coat pockets that I asked him what he wanted. He said he wanted to get a light for his cigar, and so I lit it for him.

"For a time he sat quiet, but presently he said: 'I'll tell you. I didn't want a match so much as I wanted something else in my pocket. Feel in my left-hand coatpocket and you'll see what it was.' I did so and found a piece of tin about two inches long and an inch in width."

The Sheriff said this piece of tin had been sharpened on one side until its edge was like that of a razor. The marks on it showed that it had been worn down against stone.

"When I got this from his pocket," continued the Sheriff, "Ferrone spat out another piece of tin which was nothing more than a splinter. He had held it in his mouth. I believe he will kill himself in a minute if the chance ever is given to him."

Ferrone cut his wife's throat while bidding her good-bye at 145th Street and Bradhurst Avenue, the Bronx, on the evening of last Oct. 24. Mrs. Ferrone left her husband three years before, after he had tried to sell her into slavery, and returned from Philadelphia only when Ferrone sent her word that her daughter was dying. Finding the man had lied, Mrs. Ferrone was leaving him when he asked her to kiss him good-bye. As the woman raised her face Ferrone slashed her throat with a razor.

Ferrone had been arrested in 1896 in connection with the murder of little Mamie Cunningham, who was found dead in a room on the east side. He committed perjury in testifying that he had seen Edward McCormack strangle her, but was never punished, as it was shown that he was not under oath in the Magistrate's Court where he made the statement.

MRS. ELDER WINS INJUNCTION

Justice Jaycox Hands Down Decision in Brooklyn Woman Suffrage Case.

Justice Jaycox handed down a decision yesterday in the injunction proceedings recently argued before him favoring Mrs. Robert H. Elder and her supporters in the Woman Suffrage Party. The decision is a restraining injunction on the regulars and the "Tower crowd" from holding another election for the purpose of selecting a Borough Chairman in the place of Mrs. Elder. Justice Jaycox made this injunction permanent.

Several contentions raised by the Elderites were approved by the court. In the first place, Justice Jaycox declared that the meeting at the home of Mrs. R. C. Talbot Perkins, in Gates Avenue, on Oct. 14, was legal and that Mrs. Elder's election was valid. The court further decided that the Executive Committee at that meeting acted within its rights in removing three members and district leaders against whom charges were preferred. The expelled members were Mrs. Grace C. Wolterbeek, leader of the Sixteenth Assembly District; Miss Ida Craft, leader of the Fifth, and Mrs. Priscilla D. Hackstaff, leader of the Eighteenth.

Charles C. Suffren, a lawyer representing the anti-Elderites, argued against the making of the injunction a permanent one. He said that some district leaders appointed to represent their districts at the meeting on Oct. 14 were not allowed to vote. The Elder faction, in answering these claims, had witnesses who testified that the conventions called to elect these district leaders were not in accordance with the by-laws of the party, as the Borough Chairman was not notified of these conventions in time to be present when the leaders were elected.

TEX RICKARD AS A WITNESS.

Fight Promoter Testifies Ryan Sought Control of Scheftel Mines.

Tex Rickard, who handled the Jeffries-Johnson fight, appeared yesterday at the Scheftels trial in the light of a mining expert. He was called by George Graham Rice and was permitted to testify immediately as he sailed to-day for Paraguay to start a ranch. He denied laughingly that he had any hope of finding a white hope in those regions. When he took the stand he gave the Court a surprise.

"What has been some of your occupations?" asked Rice.

"Well, I've promoted prize fights, run hotels and owned gambling houses."

"Did you say you ran gambling houses?" asked Judge Ray.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness, quietly. It appeared later from the testimony that these institutions were licensed by Rickard's State, Nevada, and that consequently he was within the law.

Rice had called Rickard to show that he, as a practical miner, thought highly of Rawhide Coalition and Ely Central, and that J. D. Ryan, President of the Amalgamated Copper Company, had authorized him to offer the Scheftels firm $2 a share for the control of the latter mine. Mr. Dorr objected to Rickard being used as a mining expert and said there was no proof that he was a mine owner.

"Why," exclaimed Rice, "this man buys mining leases like some of us buy drinks. Out West we're in the habit of taking the opinion of a practical miner before that of a school-trained expert."

The Court permitted Rickard to testify as to his opinion of the Scheftels mines, and the names of W. B. Thompson and Frank C. Armstrong of the Copper Mining Company were mentioned as two of those who had been willing to pay $2 a share for Ely Central control.

M. Dorr, it was, on cross-examination, who brought out that J. D. Ryan wanted to get hold of Ely Central. Then Rice on re-direct examination showed that the shares of a number of mines are selling on the Curb for $4 a share although not a pound of ore has been shipped from them, and that the Inspiration Copper Company is valued at $10,000,000 although it is in the same condition.

The purpose of this line of testimony was to show by inference that the Scheftels concern were not booming a property proved to be worthless. The trial will be resumed on Monday.

RUSHING HUDSON BAY LINE.

More Men to be Put to Work—New Winnipeg-Fort Churchill Road.

Special to The New York Times.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Jan. 19.—Work is now being rushed on the Government railroad to Hudson Bay, and orders have gone forth to add immediately to the number of men employed on construction. To-day Mackenzie and Mann announced they would build a straight line from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, to Lepas, the junction on the Government road, 150 miles from the bay. This will give Montana and Washington a direct line to the bay, for the lines are now constructed south from Prince Albert to the boundary. Work on this line is to be started immediately.

Announcement was made this afternoon that the Manitoba Government would build a railway from Winnipeg north to Fort Churchill, and that work will be started at once. These lines will bring the European markets a thousand miles or more nearer the wheat fields and will save a vast rail haul, which always takes considerably from the profits. Navigation through Hudson Strait is possible each year for as long as via the eastern route, so the bulk of the grain crops of the Northwest will be spread out that way.

Rutgers Alumni Dine.

The annual dinner of the Rutgers College Alumni Association of New York was held last night in the north ballroom of the Hotel Astor. More than 225 alumni attended, including Leonore F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad; the Rev. Dr. William Pierson Merrill, and Charles E. Pattison. The college was represented by Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, the President.

Ice Gorge Breaks, Vessels Lost.

PARKERSBURG, West Va., Jan. 19.—The breaking of an ice gorge in the Little Kanawha River here to-day carried $100,000 worth of river craft into the Ohio River, including the docks of the Parkersburg Dock Company, the towboats Maggie May and Iron City, half a dozen motor boats, and a dozen houseboats. The most valuable craft were rescued by towboats before they were damaged.

YOUNG GIRLS TELL OF LAUNDRY HARDSHIPS

Fifteen-Year-Old Witness Says Fifty-six Hours a Week Brought Her Only $4.

NOT TO PROSECUTE OWNERS

Bureau of Mediation Report Is Expected to Produce a Law Limiting Women's Working Hours.

State Labor Commissioner John Williams questioned some of the witnesses in the investigation of the strike of laundry workers yesterday, the last day of the hearings. The testimony corroborated statements of former witnesses that the law had been repeatedly violated in the number of hours employes were required to work, in the tender ages of some of the girl workers, and in the failures to obey orders of the Factory Inspectors for the improvement of sanitary conditions in some of the laundries.

It was practically decided yesterday that no attempt will be made to prosecute any person for these violations. A number of them are of long standing. Also the memory of the witnesses, very sharp now on the misdoings of some of the employers, might grow faulty in the event of a speedy and satisfactory ending of the present troubles. The Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration expects to make a report within ten days.

This report, it is believed, will have an accelerating influence in the making of a law limiting the working hours of women to fifty-four a week. Bills containing this provision have been before the Legislature for several years, but they have always failed of passage. At the last session a similar bill got through the House but failed in the Senate. Gov. Dix is said to be greatly interested in putting through such a law and will use his influence in having the bill passed.

Morris Spiegelglass, representing the hand laundries, testified that every effort had been made to induce the steam laundries to adjust their difficulties with their employes, even the offer to pay more for the net work, which some of the steam laundrymen declared was the cause of all the trouble. The witness said that only the coarser kind of wash was put into the nets, the finer kind not being trusted to them.

A long line of witnesses complained of long hours, insanitary conditions, and grinding labor. Annabel Walker, a little girl with her dress above the tops of her shoes, timidly approached the witness chair. She lives at 279 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, and has worked for the Manhattan Steam Laundry in Greenpoint.

"How old are you?" asked Chairman Rogers.

"I'll be 15 years old next May," she replied.

"Have you your working papers?"

"Yes, Sir."

Then she was asked how many hours she worked, and she counted them up and made it fifty-six a week for a wage of $4. Katharine Murphy, 18 years old, worked at Preuss's Laundry, at Broadway and 168th Street, and quit, she said, because her employer would not let her go home after she had fainted at her work. She said the employes were harshly treated and that no place was provided for them to sit down. John Legado, head washer at this same laundry, earned $21 a week, but he had to work sixty-five hours a week.

Kate McKane groped her way to the witness chair. She is nearly blind and looks 50, although she gave her age as 38. She worked in the Manhattan Steam Laundry and earned $5 a week.

"There is only one dressing room there," she said, "and it is so small that it will only hold one at a time."

Samuel Silverman worked in the Imperial Laundry for $12 a week. Often he worked all night.

"I am a slave," he said.

There was a change in the testimony when Nellie Larkin, also an employe in the Imperial Laundry, was questioned. She is a good-looking woman with chestnut hair and a self-possessed manner. She wore a velvet coat and hat and was jaunty and well-poised.

"How old are you?" asked the Chairman.

Miss Larkin shrugged her shoulders and tossed her head.

"You won't tell?" queried the Chairman. "Well, you are over 21?"

The witness bowed her head gravely and the answer was recorded in the affirmative. She earned $12 a week and did not go out on strike. Things were satisfactory to her and she implied that they ought to be so to all of the other employes. Then came Morris Reinitz, proprietor of the Imperial, who complained bitterly of the hard conditions of the laundry business. It doesn't pay any dividends, he said, and sometimes he had to wash seventy pieces in a net for only 5 cents.

"Sometimes we wash 400 nets a day," he said, "and lose 14 cents on each net."

Abe Miller said he worked nearly eighty-three hours a week for the Imperial for $12. James McCue said that sometimes he worked for the Imperial twenty-three hours a day and that he frequently worked until 11 and 12 o'clock at night. This was a direct contradiction of the testimony of some of the other witnesses. Tony Spinari, a machine collar starcher, 20 years old, earned $6.50 a week in the Howard Laundry, and worked from 7:30 A. M. until as late as 1 o'clock the next morning.

"Are you married?" asked the Chairman.

"What!" cried Tony, "on six and a half per?"

Leopold Ehrlich, proprietor of the Manhattan Laundry, said he supplied 175 hand laundries. He flatly contradicted the testimony of the witnesses who told of the long hours. Other employers also denied that the hours were too long, considering that there was little work on Saturdays.

FINDS GEMS AFTER 19 YEARS.

Scrap of Paper by Strange Chance Reveals Owner to Finder.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 19.—Accidental reading by a man in San Francisco of a stray piece of the "Lost and Found" column, torn from a Chicago paper published nineteen years ago, will result in a Louisville woman recovering jewels worth $1,500, which she lost at the Chicago Exposition.

The owner of the jewels is Mrs. H. C. Turner of Belgravia, this city; the jewels were found by Mrs. B. T. Marks of San Francisco. They were in Chicago at the same time. Mrs. Turner mislaid two diamond rings and one with a ruby set; Mrs. Marks picked them up. Then began a fruitless quest on both sides, the one to recover her rings, the other to restore them.

Mrs. Turner had almost forgotten her loss when a detective called on her yesterday with a letter which the Chief of Police had received from Mrs. Marks. According to the story, A. B. McFadden reached San Francisco recently in a wagon in which he had crossed the plains. His horses were in bad condition, and involved him in trouble with the authorities. McFadden found help in a livery man, the husband of Mrs. Marks. Mr. Marks was examining the wagon, and on a piece of an old newspaper in the bottom he saw a "want ad" with a description of lost jewels which tallied with those held by Mrs. Marks since she found them in 1893.

The "ad" was torn, and the obliterated address read: "Mrs. Tur—, — Third Street, Louisville." On this clue Mrs. Marks wrote to the Louisville police asking for an investigation. Mrs. Turner sent proof of ownership, and the jewels will be restored at once.

CONTEST OLD GUNNER'S WILL

Nieces Say His Brothers Made Him Cut Them Off Day Before He Died.

Surrogate Cohalan heard testimony yesterday in the contest over the will of John Nolan, a veteran of the civil war, who lost his right arm while serving as a naval gunner in the battle of Fort Fisher. Nolan left an estate of a few thousand dollars. He had lived for several years previous to his death with his nieces, Mary Mulligan and Annie Hayes, on West Twenty-eighth Street. They were not mentioned in his will, which was made at the home of his brother, Patrick Nolan, in Perth Amboy, where he died.

The nieces, who are contesting the will, say that he went on a short visit to his brother's home when he was stricken with his fatal illness, and that his brother brought in a lawyer on the day before the veteran's death, who drew a will which left them out. They say he had made an earlier will in which he left his estate principally to them. The contents of this will were testified to by Mrs. Maggie McAlaney, his housekeeper. Mrs. Anna Fagan, a sister of the veteran and a beneficiary under the later will, promised to bring the earlier will to court Monday. Her son, Patrick Fagan, obtained it from Mrs. McAlaney in a tin box containing the old sailor's war record and pension papers a few days after his death.

Francis X. Wazeter and Denis A. Spellissy represent the contestants and Franz Nielson appears for the proponents of the will.

MYSTERY IN THIS ASSAULT.

Union Hill Candy Manufacturer Found with His Skull Crushed.

Charles Segelken, a wholesale candy manufacturer at 304 Summit Avenue, Union Hill, N. J., was found unconscious at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at the bottom of the stairs leading into the basement of his premises. His body was doubled up and his skull was crushed. Near by was an iron bar, two feet long, with which he had been attacked. The wound was on the back of the head. There was blood on the stairs.

Albert Brockmann, who lives on the second floor of the building, heard Segelken groaning and, going to the basement to investigate, found the injured man. A physician was summoned and Segelken was removed to the North Hudson Hospital, where he remained unconscious last night.

Although he carried a watch and some money, Segelken's pockets were untouched. Nothing was missed from his store, either, so the motive of the attack evidently was not robbery. While Segelken's recovery is doubtful, an account of the attack may yet be had from his own lips, as his physicians look for an interval of consciousness.

Segelken attended to the manufacture of candy himself, and had no assistants working with him in the basement.

HUGE WAVE RAKED THE TAGUS'S DECKS

Seasick Passengers, Returning from Bermuda, Swept Aft in Their Steamer Chairs.

BRIDGE PLANKS SHATTERED

Liner's Cooks and the Dinner Washed Out on Deck—Ship Lay Helpless for Hours.

The 238 cabin passengers who arrived yesterday from Bermuda on the Royal Mail Steam Packet Tagus, twenty-four hours late, passed through an experience in a storm on Wednesday night which they will not easily forget. A number of them were swept along the promenade deck by a hugh wave that passed over the ship, and others were rolled out of their berths a few hours later, when the Tagus had to stop for an hour and a half and lay wallowing in the trough of the sea.

Acording to Capt. C. F. Laws, R. N. R., the Tagus left Bermuda at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and ran immediately into a heavy westerly swell outside, which veered to the northwest that night. The next morning it was blowing about fifty miles and hour, with an angry sea running to extraordinary heights, sending the foam in a straight column up in the air.

In the first dog watch on Wednesday afternoon the Captain was on the bridge with Chief Officer H. T. Hillier and Fourth Officer J. C. Morgan. The ship was in Latitude 32 north and Longitude 66 west, and was making about ten knots an hour.

Suddenly a giant wave was seen rapidly approaching the ship on the port bow. The Captain barely had time to ring down to stop the engines and grasp an iron stanchion, as the chief officer shouted: "Look out, Sir," when the water came solidly over the bridge and overwhelmed them. He and the chief officer clung for their lives to the stanchions, which were twisted by the wave, while the fourth officer, Morgan, hung to the rail behind the chartroom.

Shook from Stem to Stern.

The Tagus shook from stem to stern with the weight of the water, which Capt. Laws described as a real tidal wave. It smashed in a half dozen planks of the bridge and the teak wood rail on the port side, carried away the ladders leading down to the forward deck, and moving over the chartroom, smashed the galley skylight. It also went down the funnel, putting all the fires out, and washing the cooks with their pots and pans, and the dinner for the first cabin, out of the door of the galley on the deck on the starboard side. The dinner was delayed an hour.

Many of the passengers were in their cabins at the time, but a large number of the seasick were sitting helpless in their deck chairs, hoping that a wave would come and take them away. The big sea struck the canvas screen at the forward end of the promenade deck and tore it to shreds. It swept along the deck with a great force, carrying the sufferers and their chairs with it. It was fortunate that the screen broke the impact of the water a little, or serious consequences might have befallen the passengers, it was said.

The shock to the vessel was so great that it disarranged the airpumps in the engine room, and it was realized that the ship must be stopped to give the engineers time to put the pumps in working order again. Capt. Laws decided with the chief officer and chief engineer that it would be best to go ahead slowly as long as possible, in the hope of the weather moderating.

Made But Two Knots an Hour.

Until after midnight, six hours in all, the Tagus made only two knots an hour, just steering way, in the mountainous sea against a fifty-mile gale. By that time it had become absolutely necessary to fix the airpumps. The Tagus was stopped and fell off into the trough of the sea.

The roll of the ship was so heavy that the passengers became alarmed, and ran out in the alleyways with life preservers buckled on, imploring the stewards to tell them what was happening. One woman became hysterical and started to utter loud screams. Leaving the chief officer in charge of the bridge Capt. Laws, with the second, third, fourth, and fifth officers, purser, and doctor, went below and informed the frightened passengers that there was no danger. Falling crockery in the pantry and bottles smashing in the bar added to the din of the creaking of the ship as she rolled with the sea. At 2:30 A. M. the chief engineer sent word that the repairs were finished, and the ship started once more, head to sea. The passengers then returned to their berths.

The weather did not moderate until Thursday afternoon when the Tagus was making up under the lee of the land. Her average speed from 6 o'clock Wednesday night till 10 o'clock Thursday morning was five knots an hour.

Before landing the passengers presented a testimonial to the Captain, officers, and crew, thanking them for the able manner in which the ship had been handled, and for the care shown them in the storm. The Tagus leaves again at 10 o'clock this morning for Bermuda.

FREES MRS. SNEAD AS SANE.

Court Releases Wife of Banker Who Killed A. G. Boyce, Sr.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 19.—Mrs. J. B. Snead, wife of a wealthy banker, obtained her release to-day from a sanitarium here, where she asserted, she had been illegally detained by relatives. The District Court, after taking testimony, held that she was not insane.

Mrs. Snead was recently brought back from Winnipeg, whither it was alleged, she had eloped with A. G. Boyce, Jr. The killing of A. G. Boyce, Sr., by Mrs. Snead's husband, was a sequel to the elopement.

Mrs. Hall has been in jail two weeks, pending the investigation.

YOUNG DEPEW DENIES IT.

Declares His Wife Lost No Clothes in Hotel Plaza Accident.

Chauncey Mitchell Depew, 2d, indignantly denied to a TIMES reporter last night that his wife had lost $5,000 worth of clothes in an elevator accident at the Hotel Plaza. It was reported in an afternoon paper that an elevator, presumably a freight lift, had dropped nine stories and cut in half a trunk containing the clothes. When Mr. Depew was seen he said that there had been no such accident. He denied that his wife had gone to bed ill with grief at her loss.

An air of deep mystery pervaded the Plaza during the afternoon after the report, became current in the newspapers, and inquiry provoked only vehement denials by the hotel people. One of the house porters, however, was telling THE TIMES reporter all about somebody's trunk getting damaged when he was stopped peremptorily by one of the managers. The enigma is still unsolved, because it seems clear that some one's trunk was mussed up and nobody wishes to claim the trunk.

LONDON TRACTION MERGER COMPLETED

To Correct Much Overlapping and Duplication of Facilities, Says Sir Edgar Speyer.

CO-ORDINATION THE OBJECT

By the Merger London Omnibus Shareholders Get £215 in Stock for Each £100 They Hold.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The official announcement of the combination of the London underground railways and omnibus companies, made this morning, fully confirms the outline of the merger cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday.

Sir Edgar Speyer, Chairman of the Underground Electric Railways Company of London, has made the following statement to a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in reference to the combination:

"When my firm began in 1902 to take an active interest in the London traffic question, no motor omnibuses existed, nor could the difficulties have been foreseen that were occasioned by the opposition and unfriendly attitude of the local authorities.

"I believe that London is the only great city in the world where traffic facilities have developed in such a remarkable way without bringing adequate remuneration to those who provided them. Nowhere else does there exist so much overlapping and duplication of traveling facilities, with the regrettable result that street traffic is impeded, causing all those drawbacks which formed the subject of the report of the Royal Commission on Traffic.

"That report still slumbers in the pigeonholes of the Board of Trade, which issues every year a most valuable report, without, however, inducing the authorities to take action.

"The London traffic companies cannot wait forever for the reforms so strongly urged by the Royal Commission. They cannot stand still. They must perform the arrangement now come to, which marks a new epoch, and it is the first step in the right direction.

"The co-ordination of all the traffic agencies of London can only be a question of time, in my opinion. Parliament and the Government will have to deal with it sooner or later."

Sir Edgar Speyer is the subject generally of a congratulatory editorial in The Daily Mail, which says:

"The magnitude of this master stroke of finance is only equaled by the immensity of the material interests it must evoke in the minds of Londoners and visitors to London, whose welfare depends in so marked a degree upon the traveling facilities the metropolis affords through the great combination whose tentacles extend all over London and its suburbs.

"The Underground Electric, controlling companies which carry about 250,000,000 passengers a year, from whom they receive about £2,000,000 in fares, is also to control the London General Omnibus Company, which likewise receives about £2,000,000 a year from 200,000,000 passengers. The total capital of the huge undertaking, when the combination is brought about, will be about £16,500,000."

After referring to the difficulties that remain to be overcome, the chief of which is the objection on the part of stockholders of the Omnibus Company, which pays, while the Underground Electric does not, The Daily Mail says:

"Sir Edgar Speyer frankly and boldly admits that the aim is a monopoly of London's passenger service—railway, omnibus, and tramways. This amalgamation, he says, is only a first step. There is no monoply at present, because the streets are free, but amalgamation is to be brought about to combat competition. meantime, and monoply, under public control, which is the aim of the new combination, will certainly not be powerful enough to crush competition in these days of keen enlightenment. Omnibuses will not be allowed to earn 12 per cent. profit for stockholders without arousing jealous rivalry, and already ample signs of rivalry are forthcoming.

"Sir Edgar Speyer's point is that a wealthy monopolistic service, under proper control and well organized, may be a greater advantage to the public than a chaos of competition on the streets. That is true enough, but something is to be said for healthy competition, and all attempts at monopoly must be strictly watched."

The London Times makes an announcement, which may be taken as indicating that a transportation war, already preparing for this company with the Premier Motor Omnibus Company, will probably be floated in a few days by the latter, putting a fleet of motor omnibuses on the London streets. The capital is to be £250,000.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The Daily Telegraph publishes the terms on which the absorption of the London General Omnibus Company by the Underground Electric Railways Company of London have been provisionally agreed upon.

The existing amount of London General Omnibus ordinary capital is £1,200,696, and the proposal is to give for every £100 stock:

(a) £105 of 6 per cent. debentures, redeemable at 125 on or before 1841, and secured on the whole of the undertaking of the Underground Electric Railways and the 'Bus Company.

(b) £105 of 6 per cent. income stock, ranking equally with the present income bonds of the Underground Electric Railways Company.

(c) 100 shares of 1s. each, entitled to one-third of the surplus profits after the income bonds have received their full dividend, with voting power in the event of liquidation equal to that of the ordinary £10 shares of the Underground Electric Railways, and entitled further to one-third of any surplus in a winding up after the income stock has been paid off.

This means the creation of £1,260,730 6 per cent. debentures, £1,260,730 6 per cent. income bonds, and £60,035 shares of 1s. each.

As a result of certain issues of London Electric Railways preference stock and District and London Electric Railways joint power house rent charge stock made last year, the proceeds of which were devoted to redeeming the prior charges of the Underground Electric Railways Company, the capital of the last now consists of:

£1,730,000 4½ per cent. bonds.
£4,928,050 6 per cent. income bonds.
£4,888,522 ordinary shares of £10 each.

If the fusion is carried out the capital of the Underground Electric Railways Company will become at once as under:

£1,730,000 4½ per cent. bonds.
£1,260,730 6 per cent. redeemable debs.
£6,188,780 6 per cent. income bonds.
£4,888,522 ordinary shares of £10.
£60,035 (1,200,696) shares of 1s. each.

There will also remain £654,000 redeemable debentures and £891,680 6 per cent. preference stock of the London General Omnibus Company.

Earnings of London Underground.

Accounts of the London Underground Railways for the second half of 1911 have not yet been made up, but the company expects to be able to show a surplus equivalent to more than 2 per cent. on the outstanding income bonds, or a balance of about $500,000. The Metropolitan District Railway has just declared an initial dividend of 2 per cent. on its second preferred stock, all of which is owned by the Underground Company. The company has reduced its fixed charges by about 25 per cent., through the redemption of its £1,000,000 prior lien bonds and £1,088,000 of its 4½ per cent. bonds.

MAKING STEEL RAILS BETTER.

An Authority Points Out Causes That Make Superior Rails Seem Inferior.

There are many in these days like Louis D. Brandeis, who urge as an argument against trusts that they do not turn out as good a product as the individual corporations out of which the trust was formed. Steel rails are often pointed to by these critics as an example of a standard article of commerce which has deteriorated in recent years, and for proof of their assertion they point to the large number of train accidents that have resulted from broken rails. T. W. Robertson, Vice President of the Illinois Steel Company, undertakes to refute the charge in an article written for the current issue of The Iron Age, in which he says, among other things:

"The average quality of American steel has never been so high as it is to-day.

"The statement is sometimes made that the modern rail is inferior to those formerly made. It is true that there are failures in the modern rail, as there have always been failures since rails began to be used, but this fact does not warrant the statement that the modern rail is inferior. Rails are being made to-day under an enlightened knowledge of metallurgical practice and mechanical equipment. They are manufactured under more rigid and comprehensive specifications than ever before. If present rail specifications are inadequate, then they are so in spite of the co-operative effort of both the rail makers and the railroads to make the methods of manufacture fit the requirements.

"In 1885, 65 pound to 75 pound rails were used in standard railroad construction. To-day 85-pound rails are common, and 100-pound rails practically represent the maximum weight in use. In 1885 the average driving wheel loads of the locomotive were less than 11,000 pounds. To-day wheel loads of 30,000 pounds are common. That the density of traffic and the average weight of our cars and locomotives have largely increased is generally appreciated, but the combined and cumulative effect of increased load and modern high speed is not so well recognized. It is important to emphasize that under modern load and track conditions the static and dynamic fiber stresses in our rail, even in the largest sections, are much higher to-day than ever before. In view of this fact, as well as in recognition of the increasing demands, it behooves us to strengthen the rapidly vanishing factor of safety in our rails."

'PHONE COMPANIES MERGE.

Northern New York Corporations Join Forces with the American Lines.

At the annual meeting of the Mountain Home Telephone Company at Saranac Lake yesterday, formal steps were taken to merge the independent telephone systems of the entire mountain, lake, and St. Lawrence River districts of Northern New York with the New York Telephone Company, a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

In a statement issued by the New York Telephone Company yesterday it was said that the new service will be under the direction of representative business men in each locality in which the new company will operate, and these men will make up the new Board of Directors to the number of fifteen.

Approximately 12,000 telephones are involved and about 900 miles of toll lines. The property values are in excess of $2,250,000. It is also stated that the merged company will remain a Northern New York enterprise, and its officers, Directors, and employes will be from that section. The New York Telephone Company will own a substantial amount of the stock.

The properties included are the Mountain Home Company, the Clinton Telephone Company of Plattsburgh, Dannemora Telephone Company, the Adirondack Home Telephone Company of Malone, Norwood, Canton, Potsdam, and neighboring towns, and the properties of the New York Telephone Company in the four counties. Ogdensburg and Gouverneur, in which there are no competing telephones, are to be included in the new company's territory.

GAS COMPANIES SEEK MERGER

Consolidated Wants to Control Entire Supply of Queens County.

The Consolidated Gas Company, which already, through the New Amsterdam Gas Company, has been supplying a large part of Queens with gas, has applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to purchase the control of the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company and the New York and Queens Gas Company. The former operates all over the Borough of Queens, except in the Rockaway district, and the latter has a franchise for Flushing, Whitestone, College Point, and Bayside.

Both these companies are controlled at the present time by the same interests, and the Queens Electric Company is paying 4¼ per cent. on its $1,250,000 of preferred stock and nothing on its $1,250,000 of common stock. The Queens Gas Company has never paid any dividend on its $600,000 of common stock.

In its petition the Consolidated Gas Company points out that by the amalgamation of these concerns with itself the people of Queens would have the benefit of its own large plant. It states that in any case the Queens Electric Company will be forced next year to purchase power from the New York Edison Company, which is a subsidiary of the Consolidated, and that the Queens Gas Company already needs a new holder. Both companies, it alleges, are short of working capital, and the people of Queens would be benefited by their absorption by the Consolidated not only because thereby extensions and improvements would be made possible, but also as a safeguard against any accidents to the small plants of the local companies.

Commissioner Maltbie will hold a hearing on the application on Jan. 31.

FOR NEW NEWPORT ROUTE.

Talk That New Haven Will Buy Jamestown Ferry Company.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Jan. 19.—According to reports the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad may buy the Jamestown and Newport Ferry Company, operating ferries from Saunderstown and Jamestown, thence to Newport. The road, by laying a track from Kingston to Saunderstown, could reduce the run from New York to Newport by an hour by using ferries from Saunderstown instead of running to Wickford Junction. The Saunderstown route would be a paying proposition and end the protests of Summer residents and Newport citizens, who are now compelled to go to Wickford Junction, thence to Wickford by a small train and to Newport by steamer.

ALLIS-CHALMERS GARY DEBT.

Statement Denying the Amount of It, as Reported, Promptly Withdrawn.

Denials that the Allis-Chalmers Company owed Judge Gary, former Chairman of that company, $160,000 purporting to come from interests identified with the management, were repudiated yesterday afternoon.

The denial was put out over the ticker in a statement which said that the balance due him was "exceptionally small." Part of the $250,000 advanced by Judge Gary during the after-panic period four years ago has been paid back, but the amount still due him is the major portion, or $160,000, mentioned in THE TIMES yesterday.

Swiss Banks Unite.

The Swiss Bankverein of Basle, Switzerland, which has important connections in New York, has arranged to acquire the banking house of Von Speyr & Co., also of Basle, according to advices which have reached the bank's connections here.

FOMENT NEW STRIFE IN TOBACCO CASE

Holders of Old Southern State Bonds Start War Because Trust Helped North Carolina.

CUE GIVEN TO INDEPENDENTS

And Reorganization May Be Thrown Back Into Supreme Court for Review—Suit Has Been Begun.

Means by which the independent retail tobacconists might obtain a footing in court and eventually in the Supreme Court in their fight against the American Tobacco Company and the United Cigar Stores Company were suggested to them by the North Carolina Bondholders' Committee, which has been trying for years to bring about the redemption of that State's repudiated bonds which were issued by the carpet-bag Government during the reconstruction period following the civil war. This advice was taken and a bill of review, as outlined by Edward L. Andrews, counsel for the committee, was filed in the United States District Court last Monday in the name of Otto S. Jonas, Secretary of the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association.

This suit was a surprise alike to the defendants and to other independent tobacco interests, which had apparently exhausted every resource to intervene in the dissolution proceedings. Their final step was a petition to the United States Supreme Court, and when it was denied everybody concerned thought the legal fight against the reorganization plan was ended. The Jonas suit was filed a few days after the way was pointed out by Mr. Andrews, and just before the time limit of sixty days after the decree of the Circuit Court expired. Service has not yet been made on the defendants, but the summonses were placed in the hands of the Marshal yesterday for that purpose.

The concern of the North Carolina Bondholders' Committee is due to the action of the American Tobacco Company in taking part of an issue of new bonds put out by North Carolina about a year ago. Part of the committee's fight for the redemption of the repudiated bonds consisted in a campaign to prevent the flotation of any new issues. Mr. Andrews wrote to the Stock Exchange protesting against the proposed listing of these bonds and denouncing the action of North Carolina.

Whether because of these activities or not, the bond issue was a failure. No subscriptions could be obtained. The Governor of the State had prepared to call a special session of the Legislature to authorize selling the bonds below par or to increase the rate of interest when the American Tobacco Company wired a subscription for $1,000,000 of the bonds.

Reassured by this action as to the success of the issue, North Carolina banks took the remainder of the $3,500,000 offered. The special session of the Legislature was not called and the committee representing the holders of repudiated bonds were incensed at the American Tobacco Company.

The Cause of War.

Their attitude was frankly stated in a letter sent to some of the independent tobacco people a short time ago. This letter was on the letter head of the committee and was signed by William R. Garrison, who is associated with Mr. Andrews. The initials at the bottom indicated that it was dictated by Mr. Andrews himself. It read as follows:

NORTH CAROLINA BONDHOLDERS.
Office of the Committee, 25 Broad Street, Room 718.

Dear Sirs: Some months ago the Tobacco Trust intermeddled in the arrangements of this committee for the settlement of the North Carolina State debt and prevented a favorable result, after the committee had expended much money and time.

In view of this conduct toward our committee by the trust we are inclined to do everything in our power in favor of the independents in the present fight.

We have, therefore, obtained from the attorney of our committee an opinion which might quite put the independents in the saddle.

We inclose a copy of the same, and will merely add that if you do anything it must be done within the next three or four days. I beg to remain, Yours truly,

WILLIAM R. GARRISON.

The inclosure was addressed to L. E. Whicher, a member of the Stock Exchange firm of Ball & Whicher of 111 Broadway, which failed about two months ago. Mr. Whicher is the most active member of the Bondholders' Committee. It has no Chairman since the death of John G. Carlisle. This letter read as follows:

NORTH CAROLINA BONDHOLDERS,
Office of the Committee.
New York, Jan. 2, 1912.
L. E. Whicher, Esq., 111 Broadway, New York City:

Dear Sir—Pursuant to your request, I furnish you the following memorandum concerning the method of practice by which the tobacco independents can get a hearing on their merits.

The independents could file a bill in the nature of a bill of review. This is the proceeding for attacking a decree by non-parties to the litigation, being the old Chancery practice, which stil prevails in the Federal courts.

While such a bill could not be filed by persons who have no interest in overturning a decree, the independents have such a legal interest, emphasized by the seventh section of the Sherman law.

The proceeding must be instituted within sixty days from the date of the entry of the decree, thus leaving only a few days to draw the papers. Faithfully yours,

E. L. ANDREWS.

P. S.—In the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States on the aplication already made by the independents, there is an intimation favorable to the suggestion above made.

A conference resulted between Mr. Andrews and Henry H. Hunter, counsel for the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, following which Mr. Andrews outlined more fully his idea of how the suit should be started in a letter to Mr. Hunter, which read as follows:

"New York, Jan. 12, 1912.
"Henry H. Hunter, Esq., Attorney for Retail Tobacconists' Association.

"Dear Sir: Your inquiry is to the following effect:

"Is there any legal process by which the tobacco independents may obtain a hearing before the Supreme Court of the United States on the merits of their objections to the present plan of disintegration of the Tobacco Trust?

"The main difficulty of the independents has seemed to consist in the fact that they are not parties to the suit brought by the Attorney General against the American Tobacco Company. To attain that position they have initiated various proceedings which resulted in an adverse decision of the Supreme Court. In the opinion upon these motions our highest court employed this guarded language:

"'The general nature and character of the interest which the movers allege they have in the papers filed is not in any event of such a character as to authorize them in this proceeding to assail the action of the court below.'

"The careful restriction of its denial of those applications by the independent associations to the proceeding then at bar must be taken as possessing the full significance of any utterance from that conservative source. It cannot, therefore, hav any other meaning than a reference to the existence of some other "proceeding to assail the action of the court below" and to obtain the desired hearing and decision upon the merits of this controversy.

The Law of It Found.

"This solution is emphasized by the fact that a well-established chancery proceeding is applicable to a situation of this character. It is specially intended for employment by interests that are not formal parties to a litigation, but which are affected by the judgment rendered. It is denominated 'A Bill in the Nature of a Bill of Review.'

"It is intended for the correction of errors of law that are apparent on the face of the record of the existing litigation, and does not require the leave of the court for its filing, being designed to furnish an absolute right to non-litigants whose interests are injured by decrees in which they are not participants. The mere statement of this proceeding shows its beneficent nature and illustrates the reluctance of the Supreme Court to exclude the independents from getting their day in court through its employment.

"The sole phase of this subject which would justify further illustration relates to the adaptation of Bills of Review to litigations instituted under the Sherman act, though the remarks of the Supreme Court quoted above were comprised in a proceeding under that statute. It has been noted above that the complainant in a Bill of Review must not be a mere stranger to the subject of the original controversy, he must have some interest thereby affected. The character of this interest must be ascertained by the nature of the controversy, against the results of which he seeks to protect himself. The familiar instances of the invocation of Bills of Review have necessarily included stockholders, remaindermen, and other successive or subordinate interests affected by decrees rendered in the original litigation.

"Into this condition of Federal equity practice the Sherman law has been projected. Let us glance at the substantive position of competitive interests affected by proceedings under it. The purposes, provisions, and interpretations of the statute demonstrate that competitors of condemned trusts are not mere aliens to the administration of this law.

"The entire theory and structure of anti-trust law would furnish sufficient ground for interests competitive with trusts 'to assail in this proceeding' their proposed plans of disintegration as further restraints of commerce.

"Moreover, the statute affairms a legal connection between conspiring combinations and their competitors by the seventh section of the Sherman act, conferring the right to triple damages. It would be anomalous that injured competitors could recover enlarged pecuniary indemnities for injuries committed by trust, and could be excluded from relief by bill of review, as uninterested parties, against continued combinations claimed to be still in the field for the perpetuation of injury to them. Upon the plainest legal analogy there is sufficent interest in competitors so protected for their inclusion in the scope of a proceeding which is open to the holder of a single share of stock or a hundred-dollar judgment.

Supreme Court Precedents.

"Passing to the examination of this question from the strict standpoint of procedure, the Supreme Court has itself heretofore disposed of the matter in principle. That court has held that the equity powers of the United States courts under the Sherman law are as ample in respect to procedure and its adaptation as the resources of any court of chancery. Upon these lines it must be remembered that at common law equity these independents as competitors could have brought their own bills to restrain the activities of trusts as conspiracies in restraint of their trade. While the Federal Government has been made the appointed complainant to institute such proceedings in the interest of competitors as well as the public it would, indeed, be a paradox that competitors who could have instituted suits in equity for the stoppage of trusts before the passage of the Sherman law should be by the operation of that statute, passed for their benefit, excluded from the right to hearings under bills of review on the ground that they had no interest in the subject of controversy.

"It is the logical result of the system of disintegration, necessarily affecting in a multitude of phases the interests of competitors, that they should have an opportunity to advocate or to contest the judicial ordinances controlling competition and directing their legal interests. It would be difficult to conceive a more pertinent occasion for the fulfillment of the function of a bill of review.

"It is my opinion that your orderly course of procedure is to file such a bill in the present District Court, entitling either party to a hearing in due course before the Supreme Court of the United States. Faithfully yours,

"EDWARD L. ANDREWS."

The Legal Procedure.

In an interview yesterday regarding the suit, Mr. Hunter referred to encouragement the independents had received "fom unexpected sources," and concluded by saying that "the legal steps to enable us to present our merits to the Supreme Court nave been taken under the advice of our counsel, Edward L. Andrews."

"The independents," said Mr. Hunter, "propose to avail themselves of the remedies given to them by the law for the single purpose of placing their case before the Supreme Court of the United States.

"When the plan was under discussion before the Circuit Court the Attorney General made some strenuous and even eloquent objections to the plan for continuing the monopoly. When these points were overruled, why did he not take his positions to Washington? Why did he prefer to accept the decision of the lower court, and with due deference—a court which had been reversed upon the main case?

"Then the President of the United States sent a message to Congress containing an elaborate argument to show that the independents ought to be satisfied with the decision of the Circuit Court. With less trouble he could have directed Attorney General Wickersham to take the judgment to the highest court. Why should all this persistence be evinced to keep this case away from the Supreme Court?

"This matter affects the fundamental rights and vital interest of thousands of individuals throughout the country. There are local associations of our association in every city of any substantial size in the Union. They do not intend to be deprived of their day in court.

"This proceeding is taken in the name of the Secretary of the New York Association, whose firm is one of the oldest in the business. In substance, it sets forth the errors in the so-called plan of disintegration, including the objections thereto that were advanced by the Attorney General. It is based to a considerable extent upon the language in which the Supreme Court itself embodied its latest ruling in this case."

The letters printed here were brought to the attention of American Tobacco Company officials yesterday, and they were asked just what was meant by the "intermeddling" of the American Tobacco Company in the settlement of the repudiated bonds. They said the reference could be only to the fact that the company had subscribed for a part of the new North Carolina issue, as they had never taken any other steps in any way related to the campaign of the committee.

"We subscribed to the bonds," one of the Tobacco heads said, "because we have large funds to keep invested, and we bought the bonds because we knew they were good. We have large property interests in North Carolina, and the company is perhaps the largest taxpayer in the State. We are naturally interested in the preservation of the State's credit, and that was a motive that actuated us."

Mr. Andrews is also counsel for the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders of London and H. E. Hollins & Co. of New York, readjustment managers for the repudiated bonds of Mississippi. Last year, when Mississippi planned a new bond issue, he fought it the same as he did that of North Carolina. In a letter to George W. Ely, Secretary of the Stock Exchange, protesting against the proposal to list these bonds, he used the same arguments as in the North Carolina case.

Old Gunny Bagging Must Stand Duty —Antiques Enter Duty Free.

The Texas & Pacific Railway Company and Oberle & Henry failed yesterday before the Board of United States General Appraisers to secure free entry for old gunny bagging, which was assessed for duty as waste not specially provided for under the terms of the Tariff act of 1909. Duty was exacted at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem, whereas the importers alleged that the merchandise falls within the classes of bagging free because intended for paper making. Judge Somerville holds that the goods are not ordinarily used in this manner and overrules the protests. A protest filed by T. Hefeller & Co., also relating to old bagging, was overruled owing to lack of testimony.

It was decided that antiques imported by P. E. Sargent are more than 100 years old, and therefore entitled to enter free of duty inasmuch as the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury have been complied with. The action of the Collector of Customs at Boston in levying duty is reversed.

The following protests were unsupported and overruled: Pedro Guisti, R. Valdecilia & Co., the Maldurmin Importing Company, the New York Merchandise Company, G. S. Bush & Co., and Massoe & Co.

Suspends Cincinnati Freight Rates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Increases in both class and commodity freight rates from Cincinnati and points of origin in various States to destinations on the Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio Railway today were suspended by the Inter-State Commerce Commission until May 24, 1912. Approximately fifty railroads are made defendants in the proceedings.

The Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio is a newly constructed road which it was expected would afford connection for the Southern manufacturing interests in the Carolinas and other industrial centres of the Southern territory with the coalfields of Ohio and the Middle West.

TRUST COMPANIES MERGE.

Directors of the Continental and Equitable So Decide.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Directors of the Continental Title and Trust Company and of the Equitable Trust Company unanimously decided to-day to merge. The coalition will take effect in about three weeks. The name decided upon for the new company is the Continental-Equitable Trust Company. The capital will be $1,000,000, the surplus $1,000,000. The undivided profits will be the assets of the two companies in excess of these amounts.

No decision was arrived at with regard to the proposal to erect a new building at Twelfth and Market Streets on a site recently acquired by the Continental Company. In the meantime the business of the new concern will be conducted at the present quarters of the Continental Trust Company in the Stephen Girard Building.

T. M. Daly, President of the Continental Title and Trust Company, will be President of the new company.

A Story of Tragic
Human Interest
In The Sunday Times To-morrow

How John D. Rockefeller acquired control of the famous Missabe Mines and the details of his dealings with the Merritts. * * * A thrilling and interesting tale of High Finance involving millions, intrigue, trickery, and attempts at blackmail. * * * What great capitalists have to contend with in dealing with schemers and promoters. * * * How they get in and how they get out. * * * An intimate view of a chapter in the life of John D. Rockefeller, written for The New York Times by Frederick T. Gates, who represents Mr. Rockefeller.

The attack made on Mr. Rockefeller concerning the Missabe Mines transaction by Leonidas and Alfred Merritt before the Stanley Committee in Washington recently caused a sensation. This article gives fully the Rockefeller side of the matter. It will occupy three pages of TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY NEW YORK TIMES.

To be sure of getting a copy of Sunday's Times your newsdealer should have an advance order, for he always sells out.

Hill Stocks Strong on Unconfirmed Reports — Reading Up and Tobacco Issues Rise Further.

LEHIGH LOANS AT PREMIUM

Short Covering Under Way as Stock Sells ex-Rights—Heavy Inflow of Cash.

Enough reports were in circulation yesterday affecting railroad and other properties listed on the Stock Exchange to have accounted for much more than the moderate expansion in activity which the day brought. The net changes in prices were very decided in a considerable number of issues, but the trading was small in all of these with the single exception of Reading. That stock contributed just about one-quarter of the day's total and made a net gain of over 3 points. From the market point of view the advance was attributed to buying by the same interests which were conspicuous in the recent upward movement in Lehigh Valley. The ability of the Reading Company to do something for its stockholders similar to what two of the other anthracite coal roads have already done is generally accepted as a fact, but predictions that some such plan is to be resorted to in the near future receive no encouragement in banking quarters usually well posted regarding Reading affairs.

Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and the joint bonds of these roads issued at the time of the acquisition of the Burlington were conspicuous yesterday for their strength and the bonds likewise for their activity. The story regarding possible readjustments of railroad relations involving the purchase of Northern Pacific's equity in Burlington, and the establishment of an arrangement with the Denver & Rio Grande by which the Burlington could reach the Pacific Coast over the Western Pacific, were circumstantial. It appears so far, however, to be based on little more than the recognition in banking circles closely associated with the roads which would carry on such negotiations with the Hill lines that an alliance looking to the joint use of the Western Pacific might profitably be entered into. Neither the suggestion nor the talked-of readjustment of the ownership of the Burlington are new, but they undoubtedly were given considerable weight yesterday on the Stock Exchange.

The advance in prices on relatively light trading which had been going on for some days in the Tobacco stocks continued yesterday with even more abruptness than on any previous day, while the bonds were again active at slightly higher prices. An interesting incident of the day was the trading in Lehigh Valley with the value of the subscription privilege and the special 10 per cent. dividend taken off the price of the stock. It sold just about 20 points under the close of the previous day, and then advanced 1⅛. A good deal of the stock was bought for cash, which trade carried the subscription rights. This doubtless represented short covering, though the fact that one-eighth of 1 per cent. was paid for the use of the stock over-night, indicated that not all of the short interest was eliminated. It seemed again true that it was easier to buy the stock than to borrow it.

One of the grounds on which some of the afternoon buying was predicated were statements made in some Wall Street quarters that the declaration of the usual St. Paul dividend at next week's meeting of the Directors was much less uncertain than most in the financial district have heretofore felt it to be. St. Paul itself advanced a point, but lost all but a quarter of this gain before the close. The earnings of the road are admittedly insufficient to provide the full dividend, and it is believed that there is strong sentiment among at least some members of the board in favor of recognizing this fact in the action to be taken at next Thursday's meeting.

An inflow of cash this week, variously estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, pointed in the direction of still further ease in a money market in which banks are already finding it difficult to place loans except at further recessions in rates. A little more gold was taken for export to South America, and discussion continued in banking circles regarding the probability that the ease in money here will go so far as to lead to gold exports to Europe. The further decline to 3 per cent. in the discount rates in Berlin, making that centre by a considerable margin the cheapest money market in Europe, though still above our own, was regarded here as the result of preparations being made in Germany to assure a favorable reception to the Government loans announced on Thursday. Assuming the correctness of this interpretation of the very low Berlin discount rate, much interest will attach to the course of that money market after the exigencies of the large Government bond flotation have been met. So far as to our own bank statement to-day is concerned, the probability is that the week's purchase of bonds and short term securities by banking institutions will offset in part the effect upon the surplus reserve of the very large inflow of cash.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Heredity and Tobacco Stocks.

The new tobacco issues growing out of the reorganization of the American Tobacco Company appear to have all of the vigor of the stocks of the parent concern. The Liggett & Myer and P. Lorillard stocks were first traded in on the Stock Exchange a week ago yesterday. The common stock of the former company opened on that day at 157 and has since advanced 18¾ points. The P. Lorillard stock first sold on the board at 169, and has advanced 16½ points in a little more than a week. Both issues made new high prices yesterday and scored most of the total gain during yesterday's trading. Liggett & Myer common made a net gain for the day of 13½ and P. Lorillard of 9. The other tobacco stocks and the bonds have been less conspicuous in their strength, but have likewise sold up in the past few days.

⁂

Big Advance in Rutland.

The Rutland Stockholders' Minority Committee may not have succeeded in convincing the Public Service Commission of the merits of their claim or the courts of their right to a higher division of the joint rate received for business moving over the Rutland and New York Central, but their agitation appears to have borne fruit in advancing the market price of the preferred more than enough to defray their expenses. Rutland preferred sold yesterday at 54½, a gain of 9½ in about a week. This advance led to the report that the New Haven, which acquired a half interest with the Central last year and which expected to take over the Central's remaining interest, was following out the Mellen policy in buying up all of the minority stock on the market. The 7 per cent. dividend on Rutland is cumulative, but there was never more than 4 per cent. paid in any one year, and there have been no dividends since 1908. Accumulated dividends now total $200 a share. If there appeared any likelihood of the company's ever paying up its back dividends, yesterday's price would look exceedingly cheap. One of the most active holders of Rutland has long boasted that before litigation is finally settled minority holders will get 102 for their stock. This is understood to be the price which the Central was asked to pay. New York Central interests were unwilling to bid more than 45 for the stock.

⁂

Burlington-Western Pacific.

About two years ago, before the Western Pacific was completed, Edwin Hawley, one of the Directors of the Denver & Rio Grande's extension to the Pacific Coast, proposed to the Hill interests that the Burlington take a half interest in the Western Pacific. The proposal did not meet much encouragement and was dropped. Rumors were afloat again yesterday that the Burlington would buy the Western Pacific. One important difficulty in the way of such a deal was immediately pointed out in the fact that since the proposal was first made to the Burlington the stock of the Western Pacific owned by the Denver has been pledged under its new bond issue. What is thought favorably of, however, by some of the banking interests concerned is the suggestion that the Denver and the Burlington reach an agreement by which they could both use the Western Pacific, the Denver as the owner of the Pacific Coast line and the Burlington under a traffic alliance. This proposal while well thought of has not, it is said, been made the subject of any negotiations between the two systems.

⁂

Other Hill Road Reports.

The recent arrangement between the Chicago & Northwestern and the Northern Pacific under which the former road runs through trains to the Pacific Coast over the Northern Pacific line was pointed to yesterday as increasing the likelihood that the Northern Pacific would relinquish to the Great Northern its half interest in the Burlington, as it has long been reported will be done some day. The strength of the bonds under which the Burlington stock is pledged gave some support yesterday to the reports that the ownership of the Burlington was to be readjusted, but all knowledge of any such plan was denied in banking quarters most closely informed regarding Northern Pacific and Great Northern affairs. One usual feature of this story, the probability of a large distribution to the Northern Pacific stockholders out of the money which the Great Northern would pay for the other road's equity in the Burlington, was not lacking in yesterday's repetition.

⁂

Bank Clearings Better.

Although stock market operations at New York were on a somewhat smaller scale last week than in the same period last year, bank clearings here, according to the statistics compiled by Dun's Review, show a gain over 1911 of 6.3 per cent. Outside of New York the gain is 1.9 per cent., a number of the outside cities complaining that business has been retarded by the extremely cold weather. Compared with 1910, when the financial markets here were unusually active, the showing for the week represents a loss of 22.1 per cent., while the outside cities show a gain of 1.9 per cent.

⁂

British Banks' Losses.

The declines in market values of consols and other gilt-edge securities in Great Britain has obliged leading banks in England to write off large amounts for depreciation in the past few years. Returns in the latest half year's reports show that the depreciation charges in the past half year are smaller than has been in the case in previous like periods. Of a dozen banks whose returns show the actual amounts written off and do not conceal it by merely stating "profits after selling for investment depreciation," the largest is indicated in Lloyds, which shows $537,500 written off from profits and $500,000 from reserve funds. The London City and Midland reports $1,000,000 written off from reserve funds. Both of these, however, are reporting for a full year. The largest cut in a report for the six months ended with December is that shown by the London Joint Stock Bank, which cut $410,000 from profits. The Union of London and Smith's shows $300,000 taken from profits. None of these institutions have reduced dividends.

⁂

More Rail Orders.

Supplementing many fair-sized rail orders which have been coming in to the steel mills in recent weeks is the Erie's order for 30,000 tons, which was reported from Pittsburgh yesterday, and the report of a 20,000-ton order about to be contracted for by the Lackawanna. The Erie order is for Bessemer rails, and nothing is said in the dispatches of vexatious specifications such as have called for vanadium and other open-hearth qualities in other contracts.

Cotton Mill Declares Dividend.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.—The Pacific Mills, capitalized at $3,000,000, declared to-day a dividend of $20 a share, payable Feb. 1. The dividend is at the rate of $120 a share, or 12 per cent. annually, and was necessitated by a change in the time of declaration. The Pacific Mills is the third largest cotton goods corporation in the United States and operates large plants and print works at Lawrence and Dover, N. H.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Day of Slack Trading, Though Local Issues Are Active in Markets of Other Cities.

PRICES ARE IRREGULAR

National Biscuit at High Record in Chicago, with Local Issues Mix Gains and Losses.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets yesterday showed mixed results. There were some moderate gains and numerous declines.

The bond market in Baltimore was again the centre of interest, the demand soaring upward to a new record. Consolidated Gas and United Railways led in the activity. United incomes gained ⅝ of a point on big blocks. Atlantic Coast Line Railroad debenture 4s sold at the former figure, with ¾ advance for small demands.

Pressure was applied to North Butte in Boston, and the issue was forced off to 25, but rallied in sympathy with strength in others, principally Amalgamated, which touched 65. Other features of local trading were East Butte, which was active above 13½, and the broadening of the list to include larger lots of standard coppers. Industrial and railroad shares were dull but steady. New England Telephone sold at an advance of 2½ points, and Georgia Electric common gained 3 points.

Chicago stocks were strong, and the movement in some of the leaders indicated inside support after profit-taking. This was particularly true of Booth Fisheries, whose junior issue sold up a point when offerings were cleaned up. Booth Fisheries debenture 6s are closely held, most of them having remained in the hands of the bankers who took the issue last March. Under the proposed financial readjustment, it will be optional with them whether they exchange the bonds for 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, redeemable at 110 at the company's option, but evidently they have expressed such preference. The debentures are callable at 101. President Carpenter explains the proposed common stock issue as a mere contingency issue. It is said that the proposition to buy a California fisheries concern has been dropped.

National Biscuit sold at 149, its highest level on the local Exchange, and there were moderate gains in Sears-Roebuck and Chicago Railways No. 2 certificates. Swift and American Can were steady, while Chicago Elevated fell back half a point.

Bonds were less active, but transactions were again chiefly in the traction issues. Chicago Railways A 5s sold at 96¼, Chicago Railway 5s at 102¾, and Chicago Railways 5s at 100⅛.

The chief interest in Philadelphia, as in New York, centred around Lehigh Valley, the stock following the quotations in Wall Street. It opened in Philadelphia at 83, a difference of 9⅜ from yesterday's closing sale, and then rallied. Reading, on the other hand, fell back at first, but subsequently rose sharply. Whereas the short interest in "Valley" is thought to have been pretty completely covered during the last few days, that in Reading is still said to be quite substantial.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

A general buying movement was in progress on the Consolidated Stock Exchange when the market closed. The rise in the Hill shares early in the day had started covering in other sections of the list, with the demand for stocks gradually broadening. Reading was the great leader in the afternoon, its rise of more than three points resulting in a revival of extra dividend talk.

Money in Fair Demand in London, but Discount Rates Were Quiet.

PRICES ARE WEAK IN PARIS

Industrial Reports Strengthen Prices in Berlin—Banks of Bombay and Bengal Discount Raised.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 20.—The London Times in its City article says:

"Money was in fair demand yesterday. Rather higher rates were paid for short fixtures, owing to the endeavors of the market to liquidate its debt to the Bank of England, which it succeeded in doing to the extent of about one-half the total due.

"The India Council, however, renewed loans for about a month on slightly easier terms. Discount quotations hardly altered, there being very little movement in bills.

"Paris checks again moved in favor of London.

"In the House, interest almost entirely centred in the miscellaneous market. London General Omnibus stock advanced 11½ on the appearance of the long-expected announcement regarding the amalgamation of the Underground Railways Company.

"Hudson's Bay, Marconi, and Royal Mail Steamship shares all closed appreciably higher. Mexican and Grand Trunk Railway stocks were in renewed request, and there was some steady buying of Japanese and Chinese bonds.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Money was in strong demand, but discount rates were quiet to-day.

The stock market was quiet and hesitating. The miners' strike notices checked British securities, especially home rails, but foreign shares ruled firm. Japanese bonds and Chinese and Mexican rails were steady features, while traction stocks closed active and higher.

American securities opened quiet, and during the forenoon advanced a small fraction on covering. Later Canadian Pacific advanced sharply, but the rest of the list scarcely moved. The closing was dull.

Money, 3@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅝ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.90; at Lisbon, 9.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Prices were weak on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 95f 10c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 24c for checks.

Private discount rate, 3⅝ per cent.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Good industrial reports strengthened prices on the Boerse to-day, and the market closed firm.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 48½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 2½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3 per cent.

BOMBAY, Jan. 19.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bombay was raised from 6 to 7 per cent. to-day.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 19.—The rate of discount of the Bank of Bengal was raised from 6 to 7 per cent. to-day.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday an easier tone was shown in the leading commodities. Copper was a shade lower in the asking price for near by deliveries. Tin was irregular; spot improved nearly ¼c. in the bid, but receded ⅛c. in the asking price.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.	Thursday. Bid.	Thursday. Asked.
Standard copper—Spot	14.00	14.15	14.00	14.25
January	14.00	14.15	14.00	14.25
February	14.00	14.20	14.00	14.25
March	14.00	14.25	14.00	14.25
Lead	4.40	4.50	4.40	4.50
Spelter	6.45	6.55	6.45	6.55
Tin	42.70	42.85	42.50	43.50

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday, the following table of prices obtained for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These final figures for the day compare with Thursday's last prices:

	Friday. £ s. d.	Thursday. £ s. d.
Copper, spot	62 16 3	63 0 0
Copper, futures	63 11 3	63 15 0
Pig tin, spot	190 5 0	192 0 0
Pig tin, futures	187 5 0	186 15 0

The market ended easy. Spanish pig lead was up 2s. 6d. to £15 11s. 3d. Spelter was unchanged at £26 15s. Cleveland warrants were firm at 49s. 4½d.

DEMANDS ON THE L. & N.

Louisville & Henderson Stockholders Organizing for Dividends.

Preferred stockholders of the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway are being organized for the purpose of making a concerted demand upon the Louisville & Nashville, owner of the road, for the payment of dividends on their stock. The preferred is entitled to 5 per cent. dividends, but they are not cumulative, and the committee has been unable to make the controlling road admit the justice of their claim.

When the old Louisville, St. Louis & Texas line was reorganized as the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis in 1896, holders of the company's bonds received $1,600,000 of the new company's $2,000,000 of preferred stock in part payment for their bonds. The committee feels that the road should have regarded this preferred stock as in the nature of an income bond obligation, inasmuch as many of the holders had been dependent upon the interest on the bonds given in exchange, and inaugurated dividends as soon as a sufficient surplus was earned. Instead of this being done, it is asserted, earnings have been put back into the property from year to year, where they have accrued to the benefit of the common stock, nearly all of which is in the Louisville's treasury.

The Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis, with its leased mileage, is less than 200 miles in length, but it is part of the Louisville & Nashville's main line from Cincinnati to St. Louis. One of the stockholders, who is trying to get dividends on his shares, pointed out yesterday that to all intents and purposes the smaller road is a part of the Louisville & Nashville system, which has a total capitalization of $41,000 a mile, all of which is receiving interest or dividends, while the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis's total capitalization is under $33,000 a mile with fixed charges on only $12,500 a mile. "If the reorganizers had made the preferred dividend cumulative, you may be sure it would have been paid years ago," he said.

The Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis has $2,000,000 each of common and preferred stock and $2,500,000 of bonds. The Louisville & Nashville owns 81.5 per cent. of the common and 38.8 per cent. of the preferred. Two of the members of the committee acting for the preferred stockholders, Otto Marx of Otto Marx & Co., bankers of Birmingham, and W. M. Bullitt of Louisville, are members of the company's Board of Directors as well. The other members of the stockholders' committee are Felix Rosen of Hayden, Stone & Co. of New York; Alfred Shepherd of Edinburgh, Scotland, and E. F. Enslen, President of the Jefferson County Savings Bank of Birmingham.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general trade conditions, Dun's Review says:

Extreme cold weather, while it has stimulated certain branches of trade, has had the general effect of checking retail distribution; otherwise the business situation shows a strengthened confidence, combined with a clearly defined conservatism. In the dry goods trade some labor disturbances retard mill operations to some extent, but the outlook continues very satisfactory, the volume of transactions showing marked gains without speculative features. It is noteworthy that exports of cotton goods to China have been resumed. The woolen goods distribution continues large, with prices firm. The New England shoe business is quite active. Leather is very firm, though sales are not quite so large. Hides are more active. The grain market is firmer, but raw cotton is very irregular. Railroad gross earnings are barely up to those of last year, showing a loss of 1.7 per cent. in the first week of January. It is noticeable that as the business outlook is conservatively improved in the United States, there is an undercurrent of unrest and uneasiness abroad, the extent and the effect of which cannot be at present readily measured.

Bradstreet's says:

Jobbers are doing a moderate volume of business. Mail orders to fill stocks that were broken as the result of very cold weather make up a moderate volume. Wholesale trade, taken as a whole, remains quiet, it being too early for noteworthy results from road salesmen, and at the same time the recent inclement weather has tended to keep visiting buyers out of the markets. Of course, retail trade in heavy Winter goods, rubbers and footwear has been benefited, but on the other hand clearance sales of furnishings and light lines have been hampered.

Cheaper raw cotton has enabled makers of cotton blankets to open the season with what are deemed attractive prices, reductions of 2½ to 15 cents a pair being quoted, but buyers are not disposed to make free purchases, and such being the case, manufacturers and dealers are compelled to await developments as regards retailers' demands.

Wool trading at Boston is restricted by the strike of textile workers at Lawrence, and by the natural tendency to await the opening of the heavyweight season in the goods market. Still, trade is of fair volume and prices are actually firmer or higher. Foreign markets tend upward.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading In Reduced Volume, with Narrow Price Movements.

Trading on the Curb was in diminished volume yesterday, the Tobacco issues particularly showing a slackened interest. British-American Tobacco, which moved between 17 and 17⅛, sold only 3,000 against 18,000 on Thursday. The close was at 17⅛, even with the opening. The coppers moved narrowly, many closing even with the opening levels. Greene-Cananea, which was the most active, sold 3,000 from 8⅝ to 8¾. Inspiration, which had reported sales of over 16,000 on Thursday, sold 1,800, from 10⅝ to 10¾.

⁂

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Wheat, Coarse Grains, and Cotton Rule Firm—Provisions Down.

Wheat prices hold on the strength of the foreign markets despite a very limited speculative demand and slightly increased movement. Corn and oats continue very steady with reports of liberal country selling and movement not very depressing. Provisions reacted on larger receipts than expected. Cotton exhibited an undertone of firmness with the settlement of the Lancashire dispute and evidence of increased support from the bull clique.

WHEAT.

Values during the day displayed a very steady undertone, although the market has not given evidence of having dismembered itself from the characteristics of being largely professional. Aside from the firmness in feed stuffs, pressure is discouraged by the continued strength of the foreign markets, with the prices abroad yesterday again a factor. While Argentine advices appear to have lost considerable of their influence on this side, the prevailing undertone of strength abroad is generally attributed to disappointment, as a result of the harvest in South America. Were the demand for American wheats greater, which would tend to emphasize the strength abroad, and were the stocks at Western points lowered, it is generally conceded that the confidence in the wheat situation would manifest itself more readily in substantial buying orders.

A small export business was reported yesterday in Manitoba wheats. Cash demand in the aggregate was quiet, while flour inquiry is still limited. The Northwest at times showed relative heaviness reflecting somewhat larger movement than anticipated. Reports that the reduced freight rates on Canadian wheat was only on wheat intended for export caused a little buying. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 2,943,000 bushels, against 2,528,000 bushels last year, and since Jan. 1 total to 93,464,000 bushels, against 68,709,000 bushels last year. Movement of wheat as a result of somewhat more favorable weather is heavier and the interior receipts so far this week total 2,390,000 bushels, against 1,657,000 bushels last week, and 2,877,000 bushels a year ago. Shipments have not increased proportionately, totaling to 972,000 bushels, against 777,000 bushels and 1,100,000 bushels, respectively.

Weather conditions for the new Winter wheat crop are quite favorable, and while it is believed that in some sections, particularly east of the river and in the more southern regions, the snow covering has been reduced, as a whole the crop is believed to be well protected from freezing weather. The report of The Modern Miller was in partial confirmation of this view. Cash No. 2 red was quoted at 99⅛c, elevator, export basis, and $1.01⅜, free on board, afloat for export; No. 2 hard, $1.11; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.20½; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.14¾.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—Country houses were reported liberal sellers during the day, and this pressure, in connection with moderate profit taking, caused fractional recessions early, but gradually offerings were absorbed. Many dispatches were at hand claiming that weather conditions showed improvement and that if cars are to be had the movement will be extremely heavy, but the inquiry on the small declines was sufficient to result in the maintenance of a steady undertone. Demand is thought to be active, although possibly checked to some extent by the recent bulge, it being quite apparent, however, that hedge pressure and other selling is not creating the impression on prices generally anticipated. Export sales of about 264,000 bushels were reported at the outports. Cash No. 3 was quoted at 72c; steamer, 71½c, elevator, domestic basis, and No. 2, 71c¾c, free on board.

OATS.—Prices were heavy early with other markets, but as corn steadied the tendency was for pressure to relax. Leadership appears to be on the buying side. Movement is slightly heavier, but distribution is also good; receipts thus far this week amounting to 1,520,000 bushels, against 990,000 bushels last week and 2,822,000 a year ago. Shipments were 1,835,000 bushels, against 1,400,000 bushels and 2,600,000 bushels, respectively. Cash standards were quoted at 55c; No. 2 and No. 3 white, 55½c.

PROVISIONS.

Provisions were heavy during the day, despite liberal short coverings. Receipts of hogs and large stocks are bearish features. Cash trade is not especially active, as is suggested by relative heaviness in the January deliveries.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Further profit taking occurred, and it was thought that were it not for the limited offerings of crude, the depression would have been greater. The easier tone in pure lard exerted influence. Some March liquidation was in evidence, and it is generally conceded that there will be a liberal volume of this, although switching operation by the leading bulls with later positions purchased are also expected. Aggressive support from refiners is still absent, probably reflecting a less urgent consuming inquiry, but on the other hand the hedge pressure is comparatively light, emphasizing the unwillingness of the South to sell freely. Crude was quoted at 4.34 in the Southeast and Texas, and 4.40 bid in the valley. Future quotations follow:

COTTON.

Laboring under the impression that large interests will support the list on the basis of about 9⅛c for May, bear aggressiveness during the day was less in evidence and sentiment correspondingly improved. Pessimistic price assertions are still in evidence with their customary vigor, but it is quite apparent that in some quarters there is a disposition to utilize reactions for the purpose of purchasing cotton, and several operators are seemingly endeavoring to reconcile themselves to the idea that the upward movement of recent date has not culminated. During the greater part of yesterday's session the trade awaited news concerning the progress of the meeting at Lancashire, and while there were many conflicting statements, latest cables were quite emphatic of an agreement having been reached, and that the mills would resume operations on Monday.

On the receipt of such advices the strength of the market appeared to become more pronounced, although the outcome had been generally anticipated. Buying and bidding for large locks of cotton thought to be for spot interests was noticeable, and although Southern hedge pressure is still in evidence, and to be expected, offerings were readily cared for. Prices ruled at small gains during the entire session, receiving stimulus at the start on the satisfactory public cables from Liverpool, that market being slightly above a parity, with a rebound in the volume of spot business to about 12,000 bales. The advices from Lawrence, Mass., continue to indicate the prospects of an early termination to that dispute, although some authorities pointed out that the fifty-four-hour law may result in numerous spasmodic strikes throughout the New England sections this season, and which belief may be partly accountable for the reluctance of Northern spinners in purchasing cotton, as compared with others, particularly Southern spinners.

An improvement is looked for in climatic conditions, but reports suggest that about a week of clear weather is desired to restore the movement to normal, and to indicate just how willing Southern holders are to dispose of part of their cotton at current prices. In the meanwhile advices concerning next season's acreage and the use of fertilizers appear biased in many instances, with conservatives inclined to the belief that it is rather early for definite knowledge of the probabilities. Southern spot markets continue steady, with continued reference made to the comparative limited offerings of the better grades of cotton.

The weekly figures did not occasion much surprise. The visible decreased 9,000 bales, against an increase of 42,000 bales last week, and comparing with a decrease of 64,000 bales a year ago. Bad weather, retarding movement, was largely accountable for this, and was reflected in the into sight of 352,000 bales, against 424,000 last week and 279,000 a year ago, the indicated total since Sept. 1 being [illegible] bales, against 8,486,000 last year and 8,110,000 two years ago. The visible total of American cotton is 4,862,000 bales, against 4,205,000 a year ago.

COFFEE.

Coffee trading was less active, total sales amounting to only 34,500 bags, but after a steady opening, when values were unchanged to 1 point lower, the market sagged and closed 2@7 points net lower. The undertone was nervous. Both Havre and Hamburg closed ¼ lower to ¼ higher. Rio was 25 reis lower, and Santos, after showing an advance of 100 reis on the early cable, declined 50 reis. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were somewhat irregular; slightly lower to slightly higher, and the demand for cost and freight coffee was somewhat less active.

Spot coffee was quiet but steady; 14c for Rio No. 7.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

7,949. PAPER BOTTLES.—An American Consul in a European country reports that a leading grocer and dairyman in his district desires to be placed in communication with American manufacturerrs of papier mache or paper bottles for delivering milk with a view to purchasing large quantities of such bottles. The Consul states that as paper bottles and containers in general are practically unknown in his district the present opportunity would seem to be a favorable one for making them known to the local trade, and in a short time quite a profitable market might be worked up in this line.

7,950. TUBEROSE AND GLADIOLAS BULBS.—An American Consular officer in a European country reports that a business man in his district would like to secure the names of American growers of tuberose and gladiolas bulbs. The inquirer has been purchasing heretofore from growers of these plants in The Netherlands, but he is anxious to develop a trade with American florists. He will pay cash with all orders.

7,951. COMPRESSED WOOD PANELS OR SIMILAR PRODUCTS.—A prominent lumber merchant in a European city has informed an American Consulate that he would like to hear from American manufacturers of "Meplat," compressed wood panels, or similar products utilized in automobile coach work and cabinet making in general with a view to representing them in the territory in which he does business.

7,952. LEATHER, COTTON DRILLS, HARDWARE AND PAPER.—An American Consul in a Mediterranean country reports that a firm in his district has made a request to be placed in touch with American exporters of the following: Leather, calf and kid of best grades; cotton drills and cotton threads; files, locks, rasps, and similar hardware, and paper of all kinds. The firm desires to become agent for firms exporting the articles mentioned. The Consul states there ought to be a good market for these goods, as the trade in the several lines is already established, but is practically monopolized by English and Continental houses.

7,953. REPRESENTATION IN BRAZIL.—A report from an American Consular officer in the United Kingdom states that a Brazilian residing in his district is anxious to obtain an agency in Brazil for an American concern. He states that he has had two years banking experience, has been for seven years with English import and export merchants, and has also acted as factory manager for three years. He also adds that he speaks English, Portuguese, German, Spanish, and French, and is prepared to supply any references that may be desired.

7,954. FLOUR BAGS.—A business man in Russia informs an American Consular officer that he would like to correspond with American manufacturers of a certain kind of bags made from wood pulp, to be used for flour and cereals. The inquirer states he is of the opinion that a profitable trade may be built up in this article.

7,955. ANHYDROUS AMMONIA AND CHLORIDE CALCIUM.—An American Consul reports that a business man in his district who makes annual purchase of anhydrous ammonia amounting to 5,000 pounds, has been purchasing this article in Shanghai up to the present, but believes that he could do better by purchasing direct from the manufacturers, and would therefore like to have American manufacturers quote him prices, cost, insurance, and freight, certain city, for pure anhydrous ammonia. He also desires to receive, cost, insurance, and freight quotations for chloride calcium suitable for refrigerating purposes.

7,956. COTTONSEED OIL.—A report from an American Consular officer states that two reliable persons in the country in which he is located are desirous of entering into correspondence with American producers of cottonseed oil with a view to obtaining agencies in the entirely new market which will be opened as a result of the decision of the Government to admit cottonseed oil into the country as an edible product without requiring it to be denatured, as has heretofore been the case.

7,957. BEET SUGAR FACTORY.—It is the intention of capitalists in a foreign country to erect a beet sugar factory, the capital to be about $515,000. Land has been examined by experts and has been pronounced well adapted for beet culture. The Government authorities are also said to be favorable to the enterprise, and will make a grant of 2,100 acres of Government land for the purpose. An American Consul, who furnished this information, stated that the leading man in this enterprise would like to secure catalogues with prices, cost, insurance, and freight, certain city; also specifications and any other particulars.

7,958. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consular officer states that two members of one of the most important European concerns dealing in agricultural implements and machinery, will visit the United States early in March and will be pleased to meet the leading exporters interested in their lines. This is an excellent opportunity for American manufacturers to get in touch with experienced importers of high standing. This company, which is already a large importer of American products, maintains branch establishments in a number of foreign cities, and is therefore equipped to cover a vast territroy.

7,959. PUBLIC UTILITY CONCESSIONS.—An American consular officer writes that in response to a circular sent out to the leading provincial cities of a certain foreign country requesting information as to the possibility of American capitalists securing public utility concessions, such as tramways, electric lighting systems, and canalization, the City Boards of three municipalities write that they are open to offers of foreign capitalists. The question of constructing electric tramways and canalization work will shortly be determined by two of the cities, and the Consular officer states these are regarded as splendid opportunities for the investment of foreign capital.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Block Front on Line of New Lexington Avenue Subway Purchased by Builders—Big Commercial Structure Planned for Site—A Times Square Deal—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

In a sale approximating close to $450,000 on Lexington Avenue, involving nearly the entire block front on the east side between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets, a striking evidence is given of the approaching activity in realty and building operations on that thoroughfare due to the subway work now in progress and the substantial improvements in the area from Forty-second to Fiftieth Street already made and contemplated for the near future by the New York Central Railroad.

The property just sold includes the old houses, mostly three-story dwellings, at 523 to 537 Lexington Avenue, 136 and 138 East Forty-ninth Street, and 137 and 139 East Forty-eighth Street, the entire block front, with the exception of a plot, 60 by 70, on the northeast corner of the avenue and Forty-eighth Street. The frontage is about 140 feet on the avenue, 120 feet on Forty-ninth Street, with an extension of 40 feet on Forty-eighth Street.

James C. McGuire & Co., builders of several structures in the Grand Central section as well as in other parts of the city, are the buyers, and when the existing leases expire they intend to improve the entire site with a twelve or sixteen story commercial structure. Montgomery Maze was the broker negotiating the deal, and the plot was assembled for the new owners by H. Reinheimer.

This is the largest parcel of Lexington Avenue realty now controlled in a single ownership between Forty-second and Fifty-ninth Streets, with the exception of the railroad and the Cooper estate holdings, between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets on the east side. Just one block below the parcel just sold on the west side is the new Grand Central Palace business and exhibition building, completed a year ago by the New York Central Railroad, and the block to the north is to be improved in a somewhat similar manner, possibly with a structure which shall combine a large auditorium for extensive exhibits, taking the place of Madison Square Garden when that building is torn down.

Another Lexington Avenue Sale.

Another investment purchase further north on the avenue was reported by the Cross & Brown Company, who sold to Mrs. Paul R. Reynolds 1,105 Lexington Avenue.

The property consists of a three-story structure on a lot 16.8 by 75, 35 feet north of the proposed station at Seventy-seventh Street.

Times Square Deal in 48th Street.

A deal in the Times Square section in the block, which has recently attracted some theatrical attention, has been made in the purchase by Irving I. Lewine and Isidor H. Kempner, President of the New Amsterdam Realty Company, of the old three-story dwelling at 164 West Forty-eighth Street, on a plot 17 by 100. The purchase was made from the United States Trust Company. It adjoins the holdings of Frederick F. Brueck, who controls a 50-foot frontage on Broadway. A new theatre, it is stated, is about to be erected on the 95-foot frontage from 138 to 146 West Forty-eighth Street, almost opposite the Brady Playhouse.

Increases Pearl Street Holdings.

Robert W. De Forest has purchased from Marie M. de Courval 274 Pearl Street, a four-story loft building, on a lot 23.6 by 57.8. The buyer owns the adjoining parcel. Horace S. Ely and the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the sale.

Investor Buys Harlem Dwelling.

Porter & Co. have sold for the Wells Holding Company, to a client for investment, the three-story brownstone dwelling located at 218 West 128th Street, on a lot 16.8 by 100.

Record Lease in Shopping Centre.

What is said to be the highest priced lease ever made in the uptown shopping district for store space has just been made by John W. Miller of the United Realty Company, who has leased to the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company the Thirty-third Street corner store in the new McAlpin Hotel now being erected by the Greeley Square Hotel Company on the McAlpin block, including the entire Broadway east side frontage between Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets. The store leased for the railroad offices will contain about 600 square feet, and the price to be paid represents about $80 a square foot. Last year the United Drug Company leased the Thirty-fourth Street corner store, about 5,000 square feet, at the rate of $20 a square foot.

Bronx.

The West Side Construction Company, Jacob Axelrod, President, has sold twenty-four lots on the Grand Boulevard and Sheridan Avenue, 75 feet north of 167th Street, to Plough & Fox, builders, who will improve the plot with a six-story apartment house.

Rosina K. Goger has sold 2,085 Tiebout Avenue, a five-story apartment house on a lot 25 by 100, to Charles Blowitt, who gave in exchange 170, 171, and 172 Quinby Avenue, White Plains, a vacant plot, 75 by 100.

John A. Steinmetz has sold for J. Mason to Dr. G. W. Rautenberg 991 Union Avenue, a five-story apartment house on plot 40 by 110 by 164.

The Krabo-Ernst Realty Company has sold the five-story apartment house with store at the southeast corner of Daly Avenue and 180th Street, on plot 100 by 52.

The Kanevale Realty Company has purchased from Helene Stein of Paris the two six-story apartment houses, known as 1,201 to 1,205 Simpson Street and 927 Home Street, occupying a plot fronting about 80 feet on Simpson Street and 100.3 feet on Home Street, within a block of Southern Boulevard, near the Simpson and Freeman Street Subway stations.

Brooklyn.

The Bulkley & Horton Company has sold 991 Bergen Street, between Franklin and Bedford Avenues, the two-story and basement brownstone dwelling, 20 by 110 feet, to James T. Kelty for occupancy.

Charles E. Rickerson has leased 769 Carroll Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, a three-story and basement bay window brownstone dwelling, for a client to Mr. John J. Campbell, Jr., and 201 Sixth Avenue, between Berkeley Place and Union Street, a three-story and basement brownstone dwelling, for Milton Herzog to Mrs. Catherine T. Stuart for a term of years.

Frank A. Seaves has sold the two-family brick house, 8,635 Bay Thirteenth Street, for A. Gulliksen to an investor.

Historic Buildings Bring $700.

The old Hudson County House, on upper Newark Avenue, Jersey City, built in 1840 at a cost of $15,000, and the Hall of Records, which adjoins it and was built in 1885 at a cost of about $45,000, were sold to Thomas Hill for $700 at auction yesterday.

The buildings must be razed in sixty days, according to the conditions of the sale. The city retains title to the land.

Orange, N. J., Bank Buys Site.

The Half-Dime Savings Bank of Orange, N. J., has purchased a site for a new structure on Main Street. Final plans have not yet been decided upon. The property purchased, which is opposite Cleveland Street, has been held for several years by George H. Warner.

Long Island.

Shields Company has sold to a client, at Great Neck Villa, a house of Spanish Mission design occupying about one-half acre of ground, situated on the corner of Manhasset Avenue and Villa Road East. This is one of the many houses erected at Great Neck Villa during the past year and is an excellent example of the type of house now so much in demand.

Elizabeth J. Graham has sold to the Colpe Realty Company of Manhattan a parcel 570 by 956 on the east side of College Point Causeway, adjoining the land of Poppenhusen, College Point.

The Middletown Realty Company has sold to Charles A. Williams of Manhattan a parcel of fifty-three lots at Broadway.

A mortgage has been given by the Colpo Realty Company to the Williamsburg Savings Bank for $90,000 on property at College Point, known as Strattonville, a parcel with a frontage of 505 feet on the east side of the Causeway, 956 feet deep and running along the creek 980 feet; also, 63 feet on the east side of the Causeway and 1,686 feet along the creek; also, 1,087 by 925 adjoining the above parcel and 644 feet on College Avenue, with a depth of 600 feet.

Recent Buyers.

Dr. H. C. Hoefling is the buyer of the dwelling 241 East Seventeenth Street, the sale of which was reported yesterday.

To Reconstruct Tefft-Weller Building.

James N. Jarvie, who recently paid about $500,000 for the Tefft-Weller property, at 326 to 330 Broadway, has retained Goldwin, Starrett & Van Vleck to prepare plans for the reconstruction of the building. The improvements will include an entire new front of tapestry brick, glazed terra cotta, plate glass, and marble for the Broadway front, and new store fronts on the Worth Street and Pearl Street buildings. These latter fronts will take in the first two floors of the respective buildings.

The Pearl Street building will be offered for rental separately. The ground floor of the Broadway-Worth Street building will be lowered to the level of the sidewalk. This building has frontages of 75 feet on Broadway and 75 feet on Worth Street and seven renting floors. Each floor will contain about 15,000 square feet. Maple floors and steel ceilings will be installed throughout.

The building will also be furnished with an automatic sprinkler system, will have three large electric elevators, and five lines of fireproof stairs, as well as an independent fire protection system on every floor. It is expected that the rebuilding will be started within the next ten days, and the contracts provide for completion prior to May 1. The Charles F. Noyes Company has been appointed exclusive agent for the property and reports that a number of important negotiations are pending to lease premises in the new building.

Leases.

Denzer Brothers have leased for a long term of years for the estate of Max Mendel the store, basement, and subbasement, containing 2,400 square feet, at 104 and 106 Bleecker Street, southeast corner of Greene Street, to Lazar Jacobsohn; also, for Golde & Cohen to the S. & G. Importing Company 11,000 square feet at 69 and 71 Wooster Street, through to 383 and 385 West Broadway; also, for the A. & S. Construction Company to A. Blumberg & Brother the eighth loft at 142 and 144 West Twenty-sixth Street; also, for John W. T. Nichols to A. & H. Weill the first loft at 106 Grand Street, northeast corner of Mercer Street; also, for R. Leerburger to J. Harman the fourth loft at 69 West Houston Street; also, for Joseph Goldberg to the American Button Works the first loft at 143 Greene Street, and to the Bob Raincoat Company the second loft at 151 Spring Street.

Leon S. Altmayer has leased for a client to Thomas Murphy, for a term of years, the store and basement at the southwest corner of Eighty-seventh Street and Park Avenue, known as 1,056 Park Avenue.

The Duross Company has leased the store 103 West Fourteenth Street to M. J. Purcell for a term of years.

D. Birdsall & Co. have leased the building 20 West Twenty-third Street, for a term of years, to a concern in the fur business, at a rental aggregating about $100,000; also, for fifteen years, the property 180 and 182 Bowery, at a rental aggregating $90,000.

Notes.

Nast & Springsteen are preparing plans for a high-class six-story elevator apartment house at the southeast corner of 172d Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, for the Paterno & Son Contracting Company, owner. This operation will cost about $150,000.

A new department store has been planned for the corner of Fulton Street and Elm Place, Brooklyn, to cost about $150,000.

The estimate and assessment Commissioners who were appointed in the city's proceedings to open and extend Sixty-fourth Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues, Brooklyn, have prepared their bill of costs, and will present it for taxation to the Supreme Court on Jan. 31.

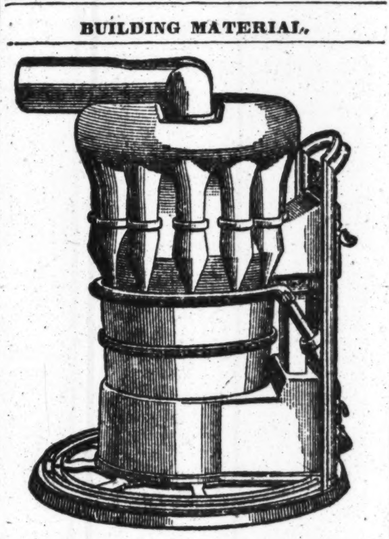
BUILDING MATERIAL.



STAMFORD

Keeping clean costs money. We could save a good deal if we never washed our clothing, but wore it till it went to pieces.

So we can heat our houses quite cheaply if we never change the air in them, but keep on breathing the same air over and over, as when we heat with steam or hot water.

The Stamford Furnace keeps up a constant supply of clean, fresh air, comfortably warm.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held in the Post Office Building in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 17th day of January, 1912. Present: Honorable Charles M. Hough, U. S. D. J.—In the matter of PARAGON FLOWER & FEATHER COMPANY, Bankrupt.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of Walbridge S. Tait, verified the 19th day of January, 1912, that a petition was filed in this court on the 29th day of June, 1911, praying that the above-named Paragon Flower & Feather Company be adjudged a bankrupt, and that a subpoena directed to said alleged bankrupt was duly issued out of this court to the U. S. Marshal of this district, and that the said Marshal has been unable to serve same, and that the officers and others upon whom process might be served are not now within this district so that personal service may be made, and that diligent efforts have been made to ascertain their whereabouts, that they are not now within the jurisdiction of this court, now on motion of Carell & Henkel, attorneys for the receiver in this proceeding, it is Ordered that the above-named alleged bankrupt plead, answer, or demur on or about the 6th day of February, 1912, to the petition herein filed in the office of the Clerk of this court upon the 29th day of June, 1911, and in case of its failure to plead, answer, or demur thereto, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer of said petition, and it is further Ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 20th day of January, 1912, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt to its last known place of business, No. 34 West 22d Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the date of the first publication.

[Seal.] C. M. HOUGH, U. S. D. J.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Snows and rains Thursday night east of the Mississippi River were followed by rising pressure, clearing weather, and a decided fall in temperature, the storm centre in the meantime having moved to New Brunswick.

In the West generally fair weather prevailed and temperatures were higher.

The weather will be somewhat unsettled Saturday in the Northwest, and on Saturday night or Sunday in the Upper Mississippi Valley, with scattered snows. With these exceptions generally fair weather will prevail Saturday and Sunday over the country, except for rains in the North Pacific States.

It will be colder Saturday in the Atlantic States, with a moderate cold wave over the northern districts and warmer in the central valleys. It will be warmer Sunday in the Upper Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds along the New England Coast will be brisk northwest and west, diminishing by Saturday night; Middle Atlantic Coast, diminishing northwest, becoming variable Sunday; South Atlantic Coast, moderate north and northeast.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have brisk northwest winds, with fair, colder weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and colder Saturday; diminishing northwest winds. Sunday, fair; slightly warmer.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair and colder Saturday; moderate northwest winds. Sunday, fair; slightly warmer.

New England—Fair and colder Saturday; moderate cold wave in north portion; brisk northwest winds, diminishing by night. Sunday, fair; slightly warmer in the west portion.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1911.	1912.		1911.	1912.
3 A. M.	28	45	4 P. M.	37	38
6 A. M.	25	46	6 P. M.	37	32
9 A. M.	27	52	9 P. M.	36	27
12 M.	31	46	12 P. M.	34	25

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 38; for the corresponding date last year it was 31; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 50; at 8 P. M. it was 29. Maximum temperature, 52 degrees at 9 A. M.; minimum, 25 degrees at 10:05 P. M. Humidity, 88 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 55 per cent. at 8 P. M.

A Dog Story

The following advertisement appeared in The New York Times:

LOST—Wednesday evening, small Schipperke, or tailless dog; had on small collar studded with imitation turquoises; last seen about 8 o'clock, Madison Av., near 45th St. Liberal reward if returned to 624 5th Av.

On Saturday word was received from L. P. Rider, the owner, that the dog had been returned as a result of the advertisement in The New York Times.

This is gratifying, as Mr. Rider had previously advertised in two other newspapers without results.

SUICIDE IN HOSPITAL INVITES INQUIRY

So Coroner Says of Death of Inventor C. H. Moore, Who Jumped from Window.

FIFTH TO DIE IN THAT WAY

Neurological Institute's Head Insists Coroner Is Angry Because Body Wasn't Given to His Undertaker.

Charles H. Moore, an inventor, for many years connected with the J. L. Mott Iron Works, killed himself yesterday by jumping from a window of the Neurological Institute, 149 East Sixty-seventh Street, where he had been a patient. Through what the hospital claims was a mistake, but which Coroner's Physician T. D. Lehane alleges was only one of the obstacles the management put in the way of the Coroner, three different addresses were given as the residence of the dead man. Consquently, there was needless delay in notifying the man's relatives, and this led Dr. Lehane to call special attention to the fact that there have been at least five deaths in two years by patients jumping from the roof or the windows of the institute.

Supt. Alexander Candlish of the institute denied that anything had been done to hinder the Coroner's investigation. He made the charge that both Dr. Lehane and Coroner Holtzhauser had attempted to coerce Dr. Oglivie into giving the body to an undertaker who accompanied them to the institute.

Mr. Moore was taken to the institute about 3 P. M. Thursday by Dr. Pierce Bailey of 52 West Fifty-third Street. He had gone to the doctor for treatment for shaking palsy, and the physician advised that he enter the Neurological Institute. At the institute Mr. Moore gave his address as 6,908 Tenth Avenue, Bay Ridge. He was assigned to a room on the fourth floor with another patient. A nurse went to the room at 6:30 yesterday morning and gave Mr. Moore a bath. When she returned at 7:15 he was missing. His body was found in the court at the east side of the building. Moore evidently had gotten out of bed soon after the nurse left the room, opened the window, and thrown himself out.

The police were at once notified, but through what the Superintendent said was a mistake of the telephone operator the address was given as 698 Tenth Avenue, Bayside, L. I. The police station is next door to the institute, and as soon as it was found that a mistake was made a policeman was sent to the institute to get the correct address. This time he understoon the address was in Tenth Avenue, Manhattan. Another trip resulted in the giving of the correct address.

While this was going on Coroner Holtzhauser and Dr. Lehane arrived. The officials were indignant over the giving of the wrong address, and say they found much difficulty in getting any information from the institute people. The Coroner said that it was with much reluctance that they gave the right address of the dead man. So indignant were both that there was talk of investigating the institute, and Dr. Lehane called attention to the frequency with which patients jumped from the institute's windows.

Supt. Candlish's Statement.

What happened during the visit of the officials to the institute is told in a statement made by Superintendent Candlish:

"Some time before the coming of the Coroner and his physician," said Mr. Candlish, "an individual appeared who said he was waiting for the Coroner. When the officials got there Dr. Oglivie was called to give the necessary information to the Coroner. The third man was with them, and we believed that he was an official connected with the Board of Health. Dr. Oglivie took the three without question to view the body and the room where the patient had slept.

"When the Coroner had ended his work and signed the death certificate the man who first arrived explained that he was an undertaker. He handed the doctor a card which read, 'W. W. Smith, 307 West Fifty-first Street. With Leon T. Stowe.' He explained that the Coroner's physician had ordered the removal of the body to his establishment.

"Dr. Ogilvie declared that this could not be done until such an order had been made by the dead man's relatives. The undertaker insisted that he had the authority of the Coroner for his act. The doctor said that in as much as the Coroner had become satisfied as to the cause of death and the certificate had been signed he had no longer any legal rights as to the removal of the body, except to order it to the Morgue or for an autopsy. He could not order the body to a private undertaking shop."

The Superintendent said that the undertaker appealed to the Coroner and his physician, who were leaving. Dr. Lehane, he asserts, insisted that the body must be given to the undertaker. An hour after the departure of the officials, the doctor said, the undertaker returned to take away the body. He was told that he could not have it, and then declared he would notify the Coroner and return with the police to see that the Coroner's orders were carried out. He did not come back.

Mr. Candlish said that the Coroner took the death certificate away with him, and that when the man's son came he had to go to the Coroner's office to get it. Later it was explained from that office over the telephone that a mistake had been made and a private undertaker could remove the body.

"And that," the Superintendent added, "may give an idea why there was so much indignation shown and why suicides in our institution were referred to. It must be understood that this is not a free hospital or a place of commitment, and so we cannot treat our patients as prisoners. Mr. Moore was apparently in his right mind when he came here, and he was carefully attended."

Thought Him Institute's Undertaker.

Dr. Lehane was indignant when he heard the charge brought by Mr. Candlish. He absolutely denied that there had been any attempt to turn the body over to an undertaker. "Why don't they put bars on the windows and keep the door to the roof locked?" he asked. "I do not remember the undertaker incident. I left before the Coroner."

Coroner Holtzhauser said that he was going to call the attention of the District Attorney to the condition of the Neurological Institute, especially the unbarred windows and the lack of precaution to prevent patients killing themselves.

"After I had completed my investigation," he said, "I was going to order the body sent to the Morgue. Dr. Ogilvie begged me not to do so. An undertaker was there, and I took him for the house undertaker, as I did not know him, and he did not come with me, so I said I would turn the body over to him, if the relatives were willing. This is all there is to the story.

Mr. Moore was 60 years old. He had patented a number of inventions, some of which he sold to the Mott Iron Works. He retired from active business life three or four years ago. His health had been very bad of late. A week ago Mrs. Moore took him to Lakewood, but the change did not seem to do him any good. He suffered greatly from insomnia.

KILLS BOY, THEN RACES AWAY

Police Looking for the Chauffeur—Woman Also Killed by Auto.

The police are looking for the chauffeur of an automobile which struck and killed ten-year-old Patrick Fay of 12 West End Avenue, almost in front of his home, yesterday afternoon. Thomas Lorenz of 14 West End Avenue, the dead boy's chum, ran to his own home after the accident, told his mother that he knew the chauffeur and the number of the automobile, and then hurried from the house saying he was going to find the man and car. He returned late last night, and said he had been unable to find the chauffeur.

There were many small boys in the street when the accident happened, and they say they all shouted to the chauffeur to stop, but that the man redoubled the speed of his car, crying to them when they shouted that he had hit a boy: "Oh, that's nothing."

Mrs. Rose Sileo, 55 years old, of 189 Thompson Street, walked in front of an automobile truck in Houston Street at Thompson Street last night and was cut and crushed so that she died later in St. Vincent's Hospital. Many persons witnessed the accident, and they exonerated William A. Burns of 172 West 107th Street, the chauffeur.

AUTO CRASH AT YONKERS.

Driver Saves Life by Jumping—Women in Trolley Are Badly Frightened.

An automobile owned by Charles L. Vanfossen, Superintendent of the Hastings Home Company, and operated by Harry McGrath, crashed into a trolley car on Warburton Avenue, opposite Pine Crest, in Yonkers, yesterday. The machine was wrecked and the chauffeur probably saved his life by leaping from his seat. The fifteen passengers in the trolley, a majority of them women, suffered only from shock, though when the machine hit the car they were seized with panic and all tried to get out at the same moment.

McGrath was driving north between the trolley tracks and the trolley car was going south. A dense fog hung over the tracks and McGrath did not see the trolley until he was almost upon it, and when he attempted to turn aside the machine skidded.

Cleveland Disclaims Loftin Johnson, Son of Former Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Loftin E. Johnson, only son of the late Mayor Tom Johnson, is placed in an embarrassing situation by reason of a letter received by the City Board of Tax Review to-day from the New York City Department of Taxes and a reply by Frank Sarstedt, chief of the local board.

The letter from New York states that Loftin Johnson has been charged on the New York City personal tax duplicate with $50,000 worth of property left him by his father's will.

"Please take notice that Loftin E. Johnson claims to be a legal resident of Cleveland," the letter says. "He has been assessed here for $50,000 in personal property and has claimed exemption because he is a resident of Cleveland."

"Loftin Johnson is not now a resident of Cleveland, nor has he been for three years," said Mr. Sarstedt this afternoon. "I have so informed the New York Tax Board that he cannot escape a payment of legal taxes by claiming residence here when he is not a resident."

Labor Men to Carry Protest Against Labor Commissioner to Legislature.

At a meeting of the Central Federated Union last night it was announced that a committee would be sent to both bodies of the State Legislature to ask for the removal of State Commissioner of Labor John Williams. The committee will be armed with a bill of complaint. This action, it is said, follows an appeal to Gov. Dix, which he has disregarded.

Delegate Matthew McConville, of the Engineers' Union, cited accidents in the State where laboring men had been killed and nothing done. He said labor wanted to know whether Dix, the merchant, was afraid of the influence of the State Commissioner of Labor, now that he was a politician.

4 Hurt in New York Central Collision.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Four persons, including three passengers and a mail clerk, were injured this morning in a collision of New York Central trains in the Exchange Street sheds. Two of them were of New York—H. E. House of 156 Fifth Avenue, and Edward Albany of 150 East Eighty-second Street. The accident, according to the railroad officials, was due directly to the slippery rails.

RECORDS SHOW DELAY AT EQUITABLE FIRE

High-Pressure System Not Called Into Use for an Hour, Though Johnson Said Otherwise.

CHIEF KENLON IS SILENT

Declines to Discuss the Case—Commissioner Also Refuses Now—Relief Funds Grow.

Records of the Water Department disclosed yesterday that the high-pressure system was not used at the Equitable Building fire on Tuesday of last week until the fourth alarm had been sent in, or after the fire had been burning over an hour.

Fire Commissioner Johnson said a few days ago, in defending Chief Kenlon and the entire department from charges made in The Evening Post of delay in handling the fire, that even though there had been an interval of twenty-one minutes between the sending of the first and second alarms, the number of high-pressure hydrants used on the first alarm was equivalent to the extra apparatus which the second alarm would have brought.

The fire started at about 5:15 A. M., and the first alarm, because of the act of the Equitable watchmen in trying to fight it unaided, was not turned in until 5:34. Between 5:34 and 5:55, when the second alarm was pulled, the fire was being fought, according to Commissioner Johnson's statement, "with four companies and the high-pressure streams."

The records show, however, that the high pressure was not turned on until 6:23 A. M. At the department's office it was said that not until that hour had the pumping station been ordered to turn on the water. From 6:23 A. M., on the morning of Jan. 9, the high pressure remained on until 4:37 P. M., on the evening of the 12th. According to these records, therefore, the third alarm, at 6:01, and the fourth, at 6:03, were sounded before any call was put in for the high pressure and the fifth alarm, at 6:28, was sounded five minutes after the high-pressure alarm. From the time the first alarm was sounded to the time the high pressure was turned on was an interval of forty-nine minutes. During that time eighteen engines and five trucks had been called to the fire.

Deputy Water Commissioner Bennett explained yesterday how the Water Supply Department checked up fire alarms as well as calls for the high pressure.

"In the pumping stations, where the high pressure is generated," he said, "every fire alarm in the city is recorded just as it is recorded at Fire Headquarters. If an alarm from one of the boxes in the high-pressure districts comes in the engineer in charge immediately turns on the engine pumps and raises the pressure to 125 pounds.

"The box where the alarm was sounded for the Equitable fire is at Pine and Nassau Streets, just outside the high-pressure zone, which extends east of Nassau Street and north of Maiden Lane. This alarm, though outside the high-pressure zone, was recorded just as all others are, but the high pressure was not turned on, for the engineer in charge, under these circumstances, is allowed to turn it on only in response to an official request from the chief officer at the fire.

"At 6:23 the request came over the department's special telephone from Chief Kenlon. The pumps were immediately turned on and the pressure kept up to 125 pounds."

When asked specifically if by some chance the high pressure could not have been turned on before 6:23, the Deputy Commissioner said:

"Sometimes it may happen that there is a fire in the high-pressure district at the same time that there is one outside of it, in which a request from the Chief at the second fire would not be necessary. But in this case there was no such other fire. There was no high-pressure until 6:23 o'clock."

Fire Commissioner Johnson, when asked yesterday afternoon what he had to say in reply to the statement from the Water Department contradicting his own statement, said:

"I have nothing to say."

"Are the charges unfounded?"

"I have nothing to say."

Chief Kenlon was seen at his home, 44 Morton Street, last night. He had not heard of the new development in the controversy growing out of the first charges of delay in fighting the fire, he said. When a reporter handed him a copy of yesterday's Evening Post containing an account of the case, he looked at it and then said:

"I have nothing to say."

"Do you deny the charges?"

"I deny nothing," he said, "I simply have nothing to say."

Forty men continued the search in the Equitable ruins all last night for the body of Frank J. Neider, the missing watchman. The digging was confined near the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, from which many additional securities had been taken during the day. A huge pile of débris near the rear of the vaults is being reduced rapidly, and it is at the bottom of this débris that the body is expected to be found.

Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the committee collecting benefit subscriptions from tenants of the Equitable Building, reported yesterday that $89,788 had been collected. Among the subscribers are the Mutual Life Insurance Company for $10,000, and the National Exchange National Bank, the Union Pacific Railway Company, and the Southern Pacific Company, each for $5,000.

J. P. Morgan & Co., collectors for the proposed new relief fund for the benefit of the members of both the Fire and Police Departments, reported total collections yesterday amounting to $34,043. Among the new subscribers are the National Park Bank, for $2,500; Speyer & Co., $1,500, and the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, for $1,000.

HOSPITAL FUND TANGLED.

Knights of Columbus Books Mixed, Declares Friend of Former Treasurer.

It became known yesterday that a committee composed of members of the Hospital Bed Fund Association of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, has been making an investigation of the accounts kept by Patrick Henry Clune, a former Treasurer of the fund. Dr. F. A. Chicherio, President of the fund, is Chairman of the committee.

He said last night that the committee wants Clune to make an accounting, and has tried in vain to get him to do so. A sum not in excess of $14,000, which had been set aside for future use when the chapter feels that it is in a position to erect a home for tubercular members, is involved in the investigation.

Clune is bonded by the Title Guarantee and Surety Company in a sum considerably in excess of the $14,000, Dr. Chicherio said. Pending the investigation Clune was suspended as Treasurer at a meeting held late last November. James A. Dowd has been selected as Treasurer.

Dr. Chicherio, Dr. M. J. Dwyer, Owen F. Dolan, and Clune, were the officers of the fund, and when the investigation was begun a committee composed of Dr. Chicherio, William F. Hooley, and Frank W. Smith, the latter chief clerk in the Court of General Sessions, was selected to visit Clune and ask for an accounting. Dr. Chicherio says they were unable to get into communication with Clune. The committee which now has the investigation in hand comprises Dr. Chicherio, Mr. Smith, and William P. Larkin. Alfred J. Talley, an attorney of 165 Broadway, has been retained. Members of the organizations expressed the belief last night that the accounts had simply been badly mixed up in bookkeeping, and that everything would be adjusted satisfactorily.

Mr. Clune, who was made a Deputy Attorney General by former Attorney General Carmody, has offices at 180 Broadway, and lives at 2,497 Arthur Avenue, the Bronx.

Seymour Mork of 31 Nassau Street, a personal friend of Mr. Clune, who has been looking after his interests, said last night that all of the books of the Hospital Bed Fund were in the hands of the officers of that organization.

"The whole affair was the result of a mixup in bookkeeping," he said, "blunders in the books which have been straightened out, and it has been shown that Mr. Clune has not one penny in his possession to which the fund is entitled.

"I never have been retained by him and what I have done was done in a spirit of friendship. Most of the discussions on the matter have been between me and Mr. Smith. I do not think that the statement that Mr. Clune was suspended as Treasurer of the fund is true. My understanding is that his term expired.

"This publicity came as a thunderbolt, and Mr. Clune, who is absolutely innocent, is broken up by the strain under which he has gone. I can only attribute this to his personal enemies who are attempting this way to blast his character and reputation."

FOUGHT A ROBBER ON SUBWAY STEPS

Plucky Bookkeeper Spoiled Bold Attempt to Steal Swift & Co.'s $5,700.

THIEF TRIED FOR A KNOCKOUT

But Ran When Countered On, and Crowd Joined in His Chase and Capture.

The Brooklyn terminus of the Subway, at Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues, one of the busiest spots in the borough, was the scene yesterday afternoon of a hold-up and attempt at robbery the boldness of which amazed the police. A package containing $5,700 in checks and money that a slender young bookkeeper was carrying to a bank for his employers was what the daring thief tried to steal. He failed because of a plucky fight made by the bookkeeper, and was captured on a trolley car after an exciting chase in which hundreds of people took part.

Harris Mann, 24 years old, an employe of Swift & Co., wholesale meat dealers, was the man held up. At 2:30 o'clock Mann started from the office of his employers in Fort Greene Place, near Atlantic Avenue, for the bank of the People's Trust Company, in Montague Street. He carried with him $1,600 in money and $4,100 in checks, wrapped in heavy paper, which he intended to deposit. The bookkeeper had been making this trip daily at about the same hour for his employers. It is supposed that the robber knew this, and that the hold-up was deliberately planned.

As Mann left the office he noticed a sturdily built man walking on the other side of the street and keeping pace with him. When he reached the Subway station at Flatbush Avenue, two blocks away, Mann started down a stairway adjoining the entrance to the Long Island Railroad depot. The man whom he had noticed was then at his heels. At the time hundreds of people were moving about in the busy square, and the platforms of the Subway station were crowded with waiting passengers, the larger number of them women bound for the shopping district.

When half way down the stairs the stranger passed Mann, and then, turning swiftly, dealt him a heavy blow on the jaw with his clenched fist. Mann staggered against the wall, but held desperately to the package of checks and money. When the robber sought to wrest it from his grasp Mann struck him in the face. The combat attracted a crowd, to escape which the thief abandoned his attempt and fled to the street. Men on the platform below, attracted by the noise of the scuffle, ran up in pursuit of the robber. Newsboys in front of the Long Island depot took up the cry of "Stop thief!" and in a moment a yelling crowd of men and boys were at the heels of the fugitive.

The thief ran up Flatbush Avenue to Pacific Street, a block away, where he boarded a moving trolley car. Policeman Patrick Riley of the traffic force, who was on duty at Pacific Street, boarded the car a moment later and placed the man under arrest. Mann, who had joined in the chase, came up and identified his assailant.

At the Bergen Street Police Station the man said he was John Clark, 24 years old, a waiter, and that he lived in a rooming house in Third Avenue, Manhattan. He would say nothing more about himself. Capt. Hayes, the precinct commander, found in one of the prisoner's pockets a soft cap. The man was wearing a derby hat. The Captain is of the opinion that the hold-up man intended to throw away the derby and don the cap after committing the robbery to improve his chances of escape.

CRUIKSHANK SEEKS A JOB.

In Porto Rico Now with a Letter to an Engineer There.

The friends and associates of Capt. Barton S. Cruikshank, the former head of the Clarkson Memorial Institute at Potsdam, N. Y., who lived here under the name of Donald Douglas, after disappearing eighteen months ago, got word yesterday that he had arrived at San Juan, Porto Rico, and expected that he would now make his way to the small interior town of Guedo, his destination.

Francis B. Roberts, brother of Miss Caroline Roberts of 447 Rugby Road, Flatbush, to whom Cruikshank had been paying court, despite the fact that he had a wife in Potsdam, said yesterday that he was surprised that Cruikshank had gone to Porto Rico, believing that he would not go to a place where he could be easily found.

"Neither my sister nor myself invested any money in any of his schemes, nor did he get any money out of us," Mr. Roberts said. "We did give him $900 for a motor boat, which proved a failure, but we have the boat."

It was learned yesterday that recently there was shipped from Potsdam a library of several hundred books on engineering. The books were sent to "Donald Douglas" at his office, 30 Church Street, and it was assumed that they had been sent by Mrs. Cruikshank. Percival E. Whipple, a business associate of Cruikshank, said yesterday he did not know who had sent the books, but was sure it was not Mrs. Cruikshank. Cruikshank informed him they belonged to a friend of his in Potsdam, who had sent them here to be sold.

Mrs. Helen Bergen Steigner, the editor of a magazine at 16 West Thirty-first Street, said she became acquainted with Cruikshank several months ago, when he occupied an office in the same building with her. He talked a great deal about a beautiful Southern widow with whom he corresponded. Mrs. Steigner said that last Summer he lived in a cottage at Centre Moriches, L. I., with an elderly woman, and a younger woman, who were known as his mother and sister.

L. E. Ginn, attorney for Cruikshank, of 115 Broadway, said yesterday he believed Cruikshank to be suffering from mental depression. "I have been wrongly quoted," he said, "as assisting the man in hiding himself from the world. That is not true. I advised him to join his wife. He said he could not do that, but would have to go away to some foreign country. We thought under the circumstances he might go away temporarily, and he decided to go to Porto Rico until he could rehabilitate himself. He departed with a letter of introduction from me to an influential engineer there. He is not a bad fellow at all, but I am at a loss to account for his leaving his wife. He did not go away to hide."

The Secret of Good Candy Making

lies in the quickness with which the candy batch is brought to a boil. Confectioners' Gas Furnaces not only save from 5 to 15 minutes in the cooking of each 40-lb. batch of candy, but they require 50 per cent. less floor space than coal stoves; they do away with coal and ashes, and they turn out a cleaner, purer and more wholesome candy.

These and other worth-while facts about the advantages of gas for all industrial purposes will be demonstrated to the satisfaction of any interested manufacturer who will pay a brief visit to the

We will send you this Red Cedar Chest FREE

BURROWES Moth-Proof RED CEDAR CHEST

It is a beauty—a massive, handsome piece of furniture made of mountain grown, aromatic Tennessee Red Cedar, retaining all the natural beauty and delightful fragrance of the wood and unmarred by flimsy metal trimmings. The dove-tail corners are extremely ornamental.

The Burrowes Red Cedar Chest is large enough to protect your entire wardrobe from moths, dampness, dust, etc.—44½ in. long, 21½ in. wide, 17 in. high. It will last for a lifetime and longer, saving all storage bills. A constant source of satisfaction.
